

Cetera Advisor Networks LLC (Cetera Advisor Networks) is a broker-dealer registered with the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC). Cetera Advisor Networks is an indirect wholly-owned subsidiary of Cetera Financial Group, Inc., which also owns other broker-dealers and Registered Investment Advisors (RIAs) (all of these affiliated entities are referred to collectively as "Cetera"). Cetera Advisor Networks only provides securities brokerage services, but our affiliates, including Cetera Investment Advisers LLC (Cetera Investment Advisers) offer investment advisory services, as described in more detail below. In this document, "we," "us," or "our" refers to all of our affiliated companies as a group and, unless we state otherwise, includes our individual representatives.

We offer both securities brokerage and investment advisory services, as described in more detail below. Brokerage and advisory services differ, and it is important for the retail investor to understand the differences. Some services may be provided by our affiliated companies other than Cetera Advisor Networks, particularly investment advisory services, which are provided by Cetera Investment Advisers. The broker-dealers owned by Cetera may not all offer the same programs, services, or investment products. Please see "Important Information Regarding Our Relationship With You" (Supplemental Disclosure) at <https://cetera.com/cetera-advisor-networks/disclosures> for additional details. Cetera Advisor Networks is a member of the Financial Industry Regulatory Authority (FINRA) and the Securities Investor Protection Corporation (SIPC). Free and simple tools are available to research firms and financial professionals at Investor.gov/CRS, which also provides educational materials about broker-dealers, investment advisers, and investing.

We offer investment services to our customers through individuals that we refer to as "Financial Professionals," most of whom are licensed to provide both securities brokerage and investment advisory services. They provide securities brokerage as registered representatives of Cetera Advisor Networks and investment advisory services as Investment Adviser Representatives (IARs) of Cetera Investment Advisers. Some of them are licensed to offer only brokerage or only advisory services, and some are licensed to offer only specific investment products. Some of our Financial Professionals offer advisory services through other RIAs ("Outside RIAs" or "ORIAs") in addition to providing investment services through us. Many of our Financial Professionals also offer other non-investment services, such as sales of insurance and/or tax preparation through entities that are not related to us. If you have questions about the services that we or any of our Financial Professionals can provide, please ask your Financial Professional or see our Supplemental Disclosure.

What investment services and advice can you provide me?

Depending on your needs and investment objectives, we can provide you with brokerage services, investment advisory services, or both at the same time. This document will summarize the types of services that we provide and how you pay us for those services.

Brokerage Services	Investment Advisory Services
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • In a brokerage account, you purchase and sell investments and pay us sales charges (commissions) for each transaction. • You may select investments for your account, and we may recommend investments to you, but decisions about your investment strategy and the purchase or sale of investments will be yours. There is no minimum dollar amount required to open or maintain a brokerage account. If you want to decide which investments to buy or sell and pay a fee or charge for each transaction executed, a brokerage account may be the right choice for you. • We offer brokerage services with a variety of investments, including stocks, bonds and other fixed-income investments, mutual funds, exchange-traded funds (ETFs), annuities and alternative investments. • We offer a large number of investment products, but we do not offer all products available in any given investment category, such as mutual funds, ETFs, or annuities. Other firms may offer investment products that we do not. • We do not offer proprietary investment products. • It is important for you to understand we do not provide ongoing monitoring of investments in brokerage accounts. • For more detailed information about brokerage services and investment products we offer, please refer to our Supplemental Disclosure. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • If you want a Financial Professional to manage your investment portfolio, an investment advisory account may be the right choice. • We offer several investment advisory programs and services through our Financial Professionals who are IARs. These services include financial planning, consulting, asset management programs (including "wrap" asset management programs), and selection and monitoring of third-party investment managers. • Most of our advisory programs have minimum investment amounts. Please see our Supplemental Disclosure and our Form ADV Part 2A for additional information. • We provide ongoing investment advice and monitoring of the investments in your advisory account. • You may choose an account that allows us to buy and sell investments without asking you in advance (a "discretionary account"), or we may give you advice and you decide which investments to buy and sell (a "non-discretionary account"). • We will meet with you, either in person or by another agreed-upon method, no less than annually to review your portfolio. • Although we offer a wide variety of advisory products and services, our investment advice will cover a limited selection of investments, and other firms may offer more or different choices. For more information regarding our advisory services, please refer to our Form ADV Part 2A and our Supplemental Disclosure.

As you consider what type of services may be right for you, ask your Financial Professional the following questions:

- Given my financial situation, should I choose an investment advisory service? Should I choose a brokerage service? Should I choose both types of services? Why or why not?
- How will you choose investments to recommend to me?
- What is your relevant experience, including licenses, education and other qualifications? What do these qualifications mean?

What fees will I pay?

If you establish an account with us, you will pay us fees or other charges depending upon what type of account you establish, the types of investments you buy or sell, and how many transactions we execute for you. This is a summary of our fees and other charges for brokerage and investment advisory accounts.

Brokerage Accounts	Investment Advisory Accounts
<ul style="list-style-type: none">• If you open a brokerage account, you will pay a transaction-based fee, referred to as a “commission” or “sales charge,” each time you buy or sell an investment. You will be charged more when there are more trades in your account, and both we and your Financial Professional have an incentive to encourage you to trade more often.• With stocks or ETFs, the sales charge is added to or subtracted from the transaction amount and is determined by the quantity of the securities bought or sold, the dollar value of the transaction, or a combination of both. With other investments, such as bonds, the sales charge is usually part of the price you pay for the investment, referred to as a “mark-up” or “mark-down.” With mutual funds, the fee (typically called a sales charge or “load”) is a percentage of your investment and reduces the value of your investment.• Some investments (such as mutual funds and annuities) impose internal operating fees in addition to the fees that we charge. These fees increase the overall cost and will reduce the value of your investment over time.• With variable annuities and other variable insurance products, you will pay a sales charge that is a percentage of the amount invested. You will also incur additional fees if you select optional features or benefits, and you will pay fees referred to as “surrender” or contingent deferred sales charges if you sell within a stated time period. For more information about charges associated with investments in mutual funds, annuities, or alternative investments, please see our Supplemental Disclosure.• From a cost perspective, you may prefer a transaction-based account if you do not intend to trade often or if you plan to hold investments for long periods of time (a “buy and hold” strategy).• Our commissions on investment products vary. For certain investments, such as stocks, bonds, and ETFs, the commission you pay may be negotiable. The amount you pay in connection with any investment product will vary depending on the type of investment, how much you buy or sell and what kind of account you have.• In addition to sales charges, you will also pay other charges, such as account maintenance fees, and other fees for specific services. These charges vary by investment product and the type of account that you maintain. Please see our Supplemental Disclosure for additional information.• Your Financial Professional receives different compensation in connection with purchases and sales of different investments. We pay Financial Professionals a portion of the commissions, sales charges, and other revenue that they produce in connection with transactions in your accounts. In general, the more total revenue a Financial Professional produces in a given year, the greater the percentage of the revenue they receive. Please see our Supplemental Disclosure for additional information.	<ul style="list-style-type: none">• If you choose an advisory account, you will pay an on-going fee based on the value of the assets in your account. For financial planning or consulting services, fees are charged on an hourly or otherwise agreed-upon basis. Our fees are negotiable and vary depending on the advisory program selected and are billed on a monthly or quarterly basis, either in advance or in arrears.• In general, the greater the value of the assets in your account the more you will pay in fees, although the fee you pay as a percentage of the assets managed may decline as the value of the assets increases. The more assets there are in your advisory account, the more you will pay in fees, and we may therefore have an incentive to encourage you to increase the assets in your account.• For some advisory accounts, called “wrap fee” programs, the asset-based fee will include most transaction costs and custody services and is therefore higher than a typical asset-based advisory fee. A wrap-fee program could cost more than paying separately for advice and transactions.• For accounts that are not part of a wrap-fee program, you will pay an asset-based fee and a separate transaction fee when you buy or sell an investment. If you choose a program that does not have a wrap fee and you are not charged transaction fees, we have an incentive to trade less frequently in your account.• You will also pay retirement account, annual maintenance, and custodial fees within an advisory account, as applicable. Additional fees may include account service fees, such as asset movement, account transfer, checking, and fees for other optional services chosen by you on a per-event basis.• Some investments (such as mutual funds and annuities) impose internal operating fees in addition to the fees that we charge. These fees increase the overall cost and will reduce the value of your investment over time.• Our investment advice will cover a limited selection of investments. Other firms may provide advice on a wider range of investments, some of which might have lower costs.• We pay Financial Professionals a portion of the advisory fees and other revenue that they produce in connection with management of your account. In general, the more total revenue a Financial Professional produces in a given year, the greater the percentage of the revenue they receive, and they have an incentive to encourage you to deposit additional or otherwise increases the assets in your account. This creates a conflict between your interest and ours. Please see our Supplemental Disclosure for additional information.• The fees applicable to each type of advisory program are set forth in the advisory agreement for that program and are summarized in our Form ADV Part 2A. Please refer to it for additional information.

You will pay fees and costs whether you make or lose money on your investments. Fees and costs will reduce any amount of money you make on your investments over time. Please make sure you understand what fees and costs you are paying.

As you consider the cost of our services, ask your Financial Professional the following:

Help me understand how the fees and costs you charge might affect my investments. If I give you $10,000 to invest, how much will go to fees and costs, and how much will be invested for me?

What are your legal obligations to me when providing recommendations as my broker-dealer or when acting as my investment adviser? How else does your firm make money, and what conflicts of interest do you have?

When we provide you with a recommendation, we have to act in your best interest and not place our interest ahead of yours. At the same time, the way we make money creates some conflicts with your interests. You should understand and ask us about these conflicts because they can affect the recommendations and investment advice that we provide you. Here are some examples to help you understand what this means.

Brokerage Accounts	Investment Advisory Accounts
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> We are compensated directly by you and either directly or indirectly by third parties, including the sponsors of investments that you purchase. You are charged a commission or sales charge on every transaction. Since we receive compensation on every transaction, we have an incentive to encourage you to trade more often. We have arrangements with product sponsors under which we receive payments based on sales of their products, customer assets managed by the sponsor, or a combination. These payments are referred to as “revenue-sharing” arrangements. The fact that we receive compensation from a product sponsor or receive a greater amount of compensation from one product sponsor than another creates an incentive for us to recommend certain investments to you or to restrict the investment products that we offer. (Please see our Supplemental Disclosure for additional information.) We and our Financial Professionals receive payments from sponsors of investment products, such as mutual funds, annuities, and alternative investments, that we use to promote our services, provide information to customers and prospective customers, and pay for expenses that we incur in seeking or retaining customers. These payments are in addition to revenue-sharing and other similar payments that we receive from products sponsors and other third parties. For more information about these payments, please see our Supplemental Disclosure. Financial Professionals may also receive a portion of ongoing fees charged by mutual funds (“12b-1” fees) or annuities (trail commissions). Those fees also present a conflict of interest for us and our Financial Professionals. We utilize the services of Pershing, LLC (Pershing) and National Financial Services, LLC (NFS) as “clearing” brokers to execute purchases and sales of investments, process payments and other transactions, and hold securities as custodian for our customers. We receive various benefits in connection with our clearing firm relationships for brokerage business, and we retain a portion of certain fees charged to your accounts that exceed the amount we are charged by Pershing or NFS. When Pershing or NFS is the executing broker-dealer for a transaction, we receive a portion of the fees or charges applicable to the transaction. By directing brokerage transactions to Pershing or NFS, we may not be able to achieve the most favorable execution (best price) for customer transactions, which would cost you more money. This creates a conflict of interest. For a detailed explanation of charges and markups on clearing broker fees, please refer to our Supplemental Disclosure. We offer a program for uninvested cash held in your brokerage account (the “Cash Sweep program”). Uninvested cash is swept to either an FDIC-insured bank account or to a money-market mutual fund. We are compensated by the banks that participate in the Cash Sweep program and by Pershing with respect to investments in money-market mutual funds. This creates an incentive for us to recommend that you utilize the Cash Sweep program instead of leaving uninvested cash balances in your brokerage account or investing in other securities. For more information about the Cash Sweep program, please see our Supplemental Disclosure. When you purchase certain investments from us, such as fixed income securities, we engage in principal trading in which we buy or sell certain fixed income investments, such as bonds, directly to or from customers. Our revenue and profit depend on the prices we charge or pay you in connection with principal trades. This creates a conflict between our interest and yours. For more information about our brokerage fees, please see our Supplemental Disclosure. 	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> Our compensation varies among different advisory products and services, and we have a financial incentive to recommend one program or service over another if it increases our fees or other revenue that we receive. Many of our Financial Professionals offer both investment advisory and brokerage services. They sell securities through us and receive commissions or other compensation. Financial Professionals may earn more or different types of compensation on brokerage transactions and therefore have an incentive to recommend that you purchase securities in a brokerage account instead of in an advisory account. We clear securities transactions through Pershing, LLC (Pershing). For some of our advisory programs, you will establish a brokerage account with Charles Schwab & Co. (Schwab), which will act as the custodian and execute transactions on your behalf. When Pershing is the executing broker-dealer for a transaction, we receive a portion of the fees or charges applicable to that transaction. By directing brokerage transactions to Pershing, we may not be able to achieve the most favorable execution (best price) of client transactions, and this practice may cost you more. This presents a conflict of interest. We receive servicing fees from certain mutual fund companies that participate in “No-Transaction-Fee” programs. These programs present a conflict of interest as we are not charged a fee for transactions and receive additional revenue in the form of shareholder servicing fees in connection with purchases. Please see our Supplemental Disclosure. The greater the value of the assets in your account, the more you will pay in fees, and we have an incentive to encourage you to deposit additional assets or otherwise increase the amount of assets in your account. We receive compensation (revenue-sharing) from certain third-party advisors and product sponsors. A conflict of interest exists when we receive such compensation because there is an incentive to recommend these third-party advisors or investments offered by certain product sponsors over other investment opportunities in order to generate additional revenue. In addition to their relationship with us, your Financial Professional may also provide investment advisory services through an ORIA that is not affiliated with us. We provide support or other services, such as trade execution and clearing, performance reporting, and operational support, to some ORIAs, but they are responsible for their own compliance policies and procedures and adherence to applicable laws. The fees that your Financial Professional receives for advisory services through an ORIA may be more than the fees he or she would receive for similar services offered through us. This may create an incentive for your Financial Professional to recommend that you establish an advisory account with his or her ORIA, which would create a conflict with your interests. For more specific information regarding conflicts of interest, please see our Form ADV Part 2A and Supplemental Disclosure.

Our Financial Professionals receive a portion of the compensation that you pay us and also receive a portion of the revenue that we receive from third parties. The type and amount of compensation varies by product type (mutual funds, annuities, etc.), by the size of the investment, and by the services provided. Compensation for Financial Professionals includes:

- (i) Upfront or deferred commissions, sales charges or placement fees;
- (ii) Ongoing compensation for products such as mutual funds (12b-1 fees) and annuities and alternative investments (trail payments);
- (iii) Asset-based fees for advisory services;
- (iv) Hourly or flat fees for financial planning; and
- (v) Mark-ups or mark-downs (concessions) for bonds or other fixed income securities, such as structured products.

As you consider the type of relationship you may wish to establish with us, ask your Financial Professional the following:

How might your conflicts of interest affect me, and how will you address them?

How do your Financial Professionals make money?

You will pay us for providing you with brokerage services, investment advisory services, or both. Your Financial Professional receives a portion of the fees or charges you pay. These are examples of how your Financial Professional is compensated:

Brokerage Services	Investment Advisory Services
<ul style="list-style-type: none">• In a brokerage account, you purchase and sell investments and pay us sales charges (commissions) for each transaction. Your Financial Professional receives a portion of the sales charge on each transaction. In some instances, Financial Professionals receive a greater portion of the sales charge or other revenue for each transaction as the total revenue they produce increases.• Each type of investment product has a different sales charge. The amount of compensation your Financial Professional receives will be greater or smaller depending on the investments that you purchase or hold.• If you purchase certain investment products, such as mutual funds or variable annuities or insurance products, your Financial Professional will also receive a portion of the ongoing fees that we receive from sponsors of those investments ("12b-1" fees for mutual funds and "trail commissions" for annuities and certain other investments) for as long as you own the investment.• Your Financial Professional may also receive other payments or benefits from sponsors of investment products, including reimbursement for marketing expenses, attendance at events, and certain types of gifts and entertainment.• Your Financial Professional may become eligible to attend meetings, conferences, and other events that we sponsor and pay for. Eligibility is based upon the total amount of revenue that the Financial Professional produces on an annual or multiyear basis.• All of the payments that your Financial Professional receives create incentives for them to recommend that you purchase and hold certain investments and creates a conflict between your interest and ours.• For more detailed information about our brokerage services and the investment products we offer, please refer to our Supplemental Disclosure.	<ul style="list-style-type: none">• In an advisory account, you pay us a fee based upon either the value of the assets in your account or an annual or hourly fee. Your Financial Professional receives a portion of the fees that you pay us. The portion of the fee that your Financial Professional receives varies according to the advisory program. For more information, please refer to our Form ADV Part 2A, your Financial Professional's Form ADV Part 2B, and our Supplemental Disclosure.• In some instances, Financial Professionals receive a greater portion of the fees as the total amount of revenue they produce for us each year increases.• The greater the value of the assets in your account, the more you will pay in fees, and we and your Financial Professional have an incentive to encourage you to deposit additional assets or otherwise increase the amount of assets in your account.• Your Financial Professional may also receive other payments or benefits from sponsors of investment products, including reimbursement for marketing expenses, attendance at events, and certain types of gifts and entertainment.• Your Financial Professional may become eligible to attend meetings, conferences, and other events that we sponsor and pay for. Eligibility is based upon the amount of revenue the Financial Professional produces.• The payments your Financial Professional receives create incentives for them to recommend that you choose one advisory program over another and creates a conflict between your interest and ours.• You will pay us fees for providing advisory services whether or not we execute transactions in your account. This creates an incentive for your Financial Professional to recommend that you establish an advisory account instead of a brokerage account.• For more information regarding our advisory services, please refer to our Form ADV Part 2A and our Supplemental Disclosure.

Do you or your Financial Professionals have legal or disciplinary history?

FOR IRA ACCOUNTS ONLY

It is important to understand that your financial professional may have participated in activities that would hold him/her to an ERISA fiduciary standard when it comes to your retirement plan assets. This standard ensures that your financial professional must always have your best interests in mind and may prohibit him/her from engaging in certain transactions. This standard would also impact your financial professional's ability to solicit and/or accept your rollover dollars if you choose to roll retirement plan dollars into an IRA.

Cetera generally prohibits an IRA rollover account from being established in any of the following circumstances:

- If the financial professional previously provided and continued to offer fiduciary services within the meaning of ERISA to you as a plan participant concerning the investment of your plan account through the date on which you discussed rollover IRA services with the financial professional;
- If the financial professional serves as the plan's financial professional, and the plan sponsor promoted or encouraged you to engage the financial professional to provide rollover IRA services; or
- If, during a plan meeting held by the plan sponsor for participants (when the financial professional was serving as the plan's financial professional), the financial professional recommended or encouraged you to take a rollover distribution from the plan or discussed rollover investment strategies.

Client Attestation

I have received the "Things to Consider Before Making an IRA Rollover" educational document.

If rollover IRA services are being offered to me, or will be offered to me in the future, then such services are, or will be, separate and unrelated to any services that may be provided by any financial professional on behalf of the plan. I am not obligated in any way to work with the plan's financial professional when selecting a provider of rollover IRA services.

If my financial professional serves as the plan's financial professional, I understand that the financial professional is not acting as a plan officer or as a "fiduciary" to the plan (as defined above) when offering rollover IRA services to me, and the financial professional is not offering any rollover IRA services in a fiduciary capacity on behalf of the plan.

I understand that my financial professional may make recommendations on how funds rolled over into an IRA should be invested. Any fee for rollover IRA services will be payable individually by me or through my IRA, rather than the plan or the plan sponsor.

SELECTION OF RELATIONSHIP TYPE

Based on the information provided within this document and our discussions, I elect to establish either a commission-based or a fee-based account. Depending upon the relationship type selected, additional documentation may be required. There may be times where you initially establish a commission-based account and then convert to a fee-based account or a fee-based account and convert to a commission-based account. In these situations, there will be additional documentation to support your relationship type.

This best describes your overall relationship type at the time of this account opening:

DEFINITIONS

ACCOUNT OBJECTIVE

Capital Preservation: An objective seeking to produce a return that is at least equal to inflation while avoiding extreme volatility and the risk of significant loss. Investments are not likely to increase significantly in value.

Income: An objective seeking to generate interest and dividends for current income. While not as risk averse as "capital preservation," there is no expectation of long-term capital appreciation in the value of the portfolio.

Total Return: An objective seeking portfolio returns through the combination of current income vehicles as well as investments with a capital appreciation goal. The value of the portfolio may vary and the value of certain investments within the portfolio may be more volatile than others.

Growth: An objective seeking appreciation in the value of the portfolio. Both the value of individual investments within the portfolio and the value of the overall portfolio are likely to fluctuate from time to time. While certain investments within the portfolio may generate current income, income is not the primary investment objective.

Aggressive Growth: An objective seeking maximum returns in the portfolio by selecting investments with the greatest perceived opportunities for growth and price appreciation. The value of individual investments within the portfolio, as well as the portfolio as a whole, will likely experience significant fluctuation in value.

RISK TOLERANCE (presented from lowest to highest risk)

Conservative: Describes an investor who seeks to preserve the portfolio's value by investing in lower risk investments and is willing to forgo greater upside potential to protect the portfolio value.

Moderately Conservative: Describes an investor who seeks to preserve a large portion of the portfolio's total value and minimize volatility, but is willing to take on modest risk to outpace inflation.

Moderate: Describes an investor who seeks modest growth and is willing to accept more risk and investment fluctuation.

Moderately Aggressive: Describes an investor who seeks to outperform broad market indices when the market is up and, conversely, accepts lower returns than those same market indices when the market is down.

Significant Risk: Describes an investor who aggressively seeks maximum return and accepts being exposed to the risk of significant volatility and decreases in the value of the portfolio.

Further, I hereby indemnify you for any loss, claims or damages, including legal fees, which you may incur as a result of any securities recommendations or any securities related violations resulting from your reliance upon the information I have provided. I also acknowledge my responsibility to read the prospectus of any mutual fund/direct participation program, and/or public offering sold by prospectus, which contains complete information regarding investment objectives, risks and other material facts, including sales charges.
- 19. FINRA Public Disclosure. To receive information concerning the licensing status and/or disciplinary record of a broker-dealer or agent, contact FINRA at the following toll-free number 800.289.9999, or the website address at www.finra.org.

As a result, the "Relationship Type" selected above may be contrary to the terms of my investment advisory agreement with the registered investment adviser, which may include active management and ongoing advice and monitoring.

23. Arbitration Clause. THIS AGREEMENT CONTAINS A PREDISPUTE ARBITRATION CLAUSE. BY SIGNING AN ARBITRATION AGREEMENT, THE PARTIES AGREE AS FOLLOWS:

- (A) ALL PARTIES TO THIS AGREEMENT ARE GIVING UP THE RIGHT TO SUE EACH OTHER IN COURT, INCLUDING THE RIGHT TO A TRIAL BY JURY, EXCEPT AS PROVIDED BY THE RULES OF THE ARBITRATION FORUM IN WHICH A CLAIM IS FILED.
- (B) ARBITRATION AWARDS ARE GENERALLY FINAL AND BINDING; A PARTY'S ABILITY TO HAVE A COURT REVERSE OR MODIFY AN ARBITRATION AWARD IS VERY LIMITED.
- (C) THE ABILITY OF THE PARTIES TO OBTAIN DOCUMENTS, WITNESS STATEMENTS AND OTHER DISCOVERY IS GENERALLY MORE LIMITED IN ARBITRATION THAN IN COURT PROCEEDINGS.
- (D) THE ARBITRATORS DO NOT HAVE TO EXPLAIN THE REASON(S) FOR THEIR AWARD UNLESS, IN AN ELIGIBLE CASE, A JOINT REQUEST FOR AN EXPLAINED DECISION HAS BEEN SUBMITTED TO ALL PARTIES TO THE PANEL AT LEAST 20 DAYS PRIOR TO THE FIRST SCHEDULED HEARING DATE.
- (E) THE PANEL OF ARBITRATORS WILL TYPICALLY INCLUDE A MINORITY OF ARBITRATORS WHO WERE OR ARE AFFILIATED WITH THE SECURITIES INDUSTRY.

I AGREE THAT ANY DISPUTE BETWEEN YOU AND ME ARISING OUT OF THIS AGREEMENT SHALL BE SUBMITTED TO ARBITRATION CONDUCTED UNDER THE THEN APPLICABLE PROVISIONS OF THE CODE OF ARBITRATION PROCEDURE OF FINRA. Dear Valued Client:

Thank you for your business. We appreciate our relationship with you and want to help you understand the services we and/or our affiliates provide, how we are compensated, and the product and service alternatives that are available to you as part of your relationship with us. We would also like to provide you with information regarding conflicts of interest that exist between you, our firm, and our affiliated Financial Professionals when we provide advice and services to you. When we use the terms "Us," "Our," or "We" in this document, they refer to Cetera Advisor Networks LLC, our affiliated companies as a group, and includes our individual Financial Professionals. If that is not the case or the context otherwise requires, we will say so.

At or prior to the time when you receive this document, we will have also provided you with a document entitled "Form CRS." The Form CRS includes important information about Cetera Adviser Networks and the services we provide, and is intended to be read and understood in conjunction with the information set forth below. All of this information is also available on our website at <https://cetera.com/cetera-advisor-networks/disclosures>. If you have questions about your account or how we can further assist you, please contact your Financial Professional or ds@ceteranetworks.com.

1. INTRODUCTION

We provide securities brokerage, investment advice for a fee, and insurance services to you through one or more of our affiliated companies. We offer these services through individuals whom we refer to as "Financial Professionals." Your Financial Professional is licensed with us to provide services through one or more of our affiliates. (Please see the list of our affiliated companies below.) Some of our affiliated companies offer products or services that others do not. Our broker-dealers are all members of the Financial Industry Regulatory Authority (FINRA) and the Securities Investor Protection Corp. (SIPC).

Our affiliated broker-dealers are: Cetera Advisor Networks LLC; Cetera Investment Services LLC; Cetera Financial Specialists LLC; and Avantax Investment Services, Inc.

Our affiliated insurance agencies are: Cetera Advisors, LLC; Cetera Investment Services, LLC; Cetera Financial Specialists, LLC; First Allied Securities, Inc.; Cetera Insurance Agency, LLC; Cetera Advisor Networks Insurance Services, LLC; and Cetera Advisors Insurance Services, LLC.

We have delivered a document entitled "Form CRS" to you, either with this disclosure or separately. The Form CRS describes the services that we offer to customers through Financial Professionals who are affiliated with us. Each Financial Professional offers a combination of services, including securities brokerage or investment advisory services, and in most cases both. Depending on the nature of the services we deliver to you, those services will be provided through one or more of our affiliated companies that are listed above. For example, if you maintain a brokerage account, it will be with Cetera Advisor Networks and our clearing brokers, Pershing LLC (Pershing) and National Financial Services LLC (NFS). If you maintain an investment advisory account, it will be with one of our RIA affiliates listed above. If you establish an advisory account with us or one of our RIA affiliates, we will furnish you with a Form ADV for that firm, which will describe the services it provides, the compensation we receive, and the relationship between your Financial Professional and the RIA. For more information about our investment advisory services, please see the Form ADV for Cetera Advisor Networks at <https://cetera.com/cetera-advisor-networks/disclosures>.

The majority of our Financial Professionals who provide investment-related services to customers are independent contractors and are not our employees. They are subject to our supervision and oversight with respect to their securities business, but many of them are also engaged in other business activities that we do not supervise, including sales of products or services that are not securities, through companies that are not related to us. We do not share in the revenue that they produce from those activities, and we do not review or endorse the products or services that they offer through them. Our Financial Professionals, who are independent contractors, offer securities brokerage and investment advisory services and receive compensation from us as described in more detail below. They pay their own operating expenses, including the cost of hiring support staff and office space.

Most of our Financial Professionals are licensed to provide both securities brokerage and investment advisory services. Some of them are licensed to offer only brokerage or only investment advisory services and some are licensed to sell only specific investment products.

If there are limitations on the products or services that your Financial Professional offers through us, he or she will give you additional information about those limitations and how they may affect you.

Some of our Financial Professionals work in the offices of financial institutions such as banks or credit unions (Financial Institutions). In those cases, part of the compensation that you pay us for providing securities brokerage, investment advisory, or other services is paid to the Financial Institution at which your Financial Professional is located, based on a compensation formula agreed to between us, the Financial Professional, and the Financial Institution. The Financial Institution in turn either pays a portion of this compensation to your Financial Professional, or we pay a portion of the compensation attributable to the product or service provided directly to your Financial Professional. We have different financial and operational arrangements with each Financial Institution. Some offer different investment products and services than others, and each Financial Institution receives different types and amounts of compensation from us in connection with your accounts and the activity that takes place within them. In many cases, the amount that you pay us for investment products and services when we have an arrangement with a Financial Institution will be higher than you would pay if you established an investment or investment advisory account directly with us or another broker-dealer, investment adviser, or Financial Institution. If your Financial Professional operates in or is affiliated with a Financial Institution and you would like additional information about the relationship between your Financial Professional, the Financial Institution, and us, please ask your Financial Professional.

2. SERVICES THAT WE PROVIDE

We offer securities brokerage services, investment advisory services for a fee, and sales of certain non-securities investment products such as life insurance and fixed annuities.

2.1 Securities Brokerage Services

Securities brokerage involves purchases and sales of securities such as stocks, bonds and fixed income investments, mutual funds, and alternative investments such as private investment funds, non-traded real estate investment trusts (non-traded REITs), and non-traded business development companies (non-traded BDCs). We will recommend purchases or sales of securities to you for your approval, but all decisions regarding transactions in your account are made by you. If you choose to execute a transaction, we will be paid a fee or sales charge in connection with the transaction, often referred to as a commission. We also receive other types of ongoing compensation for so long as you own certain investment products. For example, we receive ongoing payments referred to as “12b-1” fees with respect to mutual funds, and “trail commissions” with respect to variable annuities and certain insurance products. For a more complete description of our compensation in connection with transactions in various types of investments, please see section 3, below.

Some customers wish to give their Financial Professional authority to execute transactions without consulting the customer. This is referred to as “exercising discretion” or having “discretionary authority”. We do not offer this service in connection with brokerage relationships. If you would like to give your Financial Professional authority to exercise discretion and execute transactions on your behalf without your approval for each transaction, you must enter into an investment advisory relationship with us or an ORIA that your Financial Professional is affiliated with.

When we execute transactions for you in a brokerage account, we follow the instructions that you give us. We will offer recommendations about securities that you may wish to purchase or sell. You may also select securities on your own and execute those transactions through us. You will pay us sales charges or commissions for all transactions that you execute through us, whether we recommend them or you choose them yourself. We do not offer ongoing monitoring or advice with respect to transactions or investments in your brokerage account. If you would like us to monitor your investment holdings or provide ongoing advice with respect to them, you must establish an investment advisory relationship with us. If you purchase or hold mutual fund shares, we receive 12b-1 fees or other ongoing compensation in connection with them. 12b-1 fees are paid to us by sponsors of mutual funds, and are intended to finance distribution activities and result in the sale of additional shares of the mutual fund. 12b-1 fees and other compensation paid to us by mutual fund sponsors are not compensation to us for providing ongoing advice or monitoring in connection with any investment that you own.

2.2 Brokerage Accounts and Direct Holdings of Investments

In order to purchase stocks, Exchange-Traded Funds (ETFs), Exchange-Traded Products (ETPs) and most fixed income investments such as bonds and structured products or notes, you must establish a securities brokerage account with us. Certain investments, including mutual funds, annuities, and alternative investments, may also be held on your behalf by the product sponsor or one of their affiliates. These investments are referred to as “direct” or “directly held” on your behalf, and are not in a brokerage account.

You will incur certain charges in connection with maintaining a brokerage account, depending on the assets in the account and the services that you utilize. (Please see section 3, below). For example, we and Pershing or NFS charge annual maintenance fees, and have charges for preparation and delivery of transaction confirmations and account statements, wire transfers, and copies of documents. Investment sponsors do not generally charge account-related fees for custody of investments such as mutual funds, variable annuities or alternative investments that are directly held. Depending on the securities you own and the services you use, the cost of having your investments held directly at a product sponsor will likely be lower than holding the same assets in a brokerage account. There are advantages for customers in holding investments in brokerage accounts, including insurance coverage from the Securities Investor

Protection Corp., (SIPC), ease of executing transactions, and receiving reports aggregating all of the transaction activity and holdings of multiple investments from a single source. Please consult with your Financial Professional about the costs, advantages, and disadvantages of holding securities in a brokerage account in comparison to direct holdings.

2.3 Investment Advisory Services

We also offer investment advisory services in which we give you advice and/or manage your portfolio of securities in exchange for a fee that is based upon the value of the assets under management, a fixed or hourly fee, or a combination of both. Investment advisory services may include financial planning, for which we charge a fixed or hourly fee. We offer several different types of investment advisory programs. In some of them, your Financial Professional will give you advice and execute transactions based on his or her own methodology. In other cases, your Financial Professional may recommend that you utilize the services of another investment manager (a “third-party asset manager” or “TPAM”) to select or manage some or all your investments. If you choose to utilize the services of a TPAM, you will pay for their services in addition to ours. All of our advisory programs have minimum investment amount requirements. In our sole discretion, we may waive the minimum investment requirement.

2.4 Insurance Products and Services

We also offer insurance products such as life insurance and fixed annuities. Some insurance products such as variable annuities and variable life insurance are also considered to be securities and are sold through Cetera Advisor Networks . Fixed insurance, including whole life, term life, and fixed-indexed and equity-indexed annuities that are not securities are sold through Cetera Advisor Networks or one of our affiliated insurance agencies. When you purchase fixed insurance products through us, we receive sales charges or commission payments from the insurance carrier that issued the policy. In most cases, we also receive ongoing payments from the insurance company for as long as the policy stays in force. Some of our Financial Professionals also offer insurance products through other agencies or companies that are not affiliated with us. We do not review or supervise the insurance products they offer through other companies or share in the revenue that they produce from those transactions. In some cases, the cost and/or compensation payable to your Financial Professional will be greater if you purchase a fixed insurance product through a company other than us.

If you would like additional information regarding fixed insurance products, please consult with your Financial Professional.

3. SCOPE AND TERMS OF OUR RELATIONSHIP WITH YOU

We are registered with the Securities and Exchange Commission (SEC) as both a broker-dealer and an RIA. Our brokerage and investment advisory services and fees differ, and it is important for you to understand these differences. Free and simple tools are available for you to research firms and Financial Professionals at Investor.gov/CRS, which also provides educational materials about broker-dealers, investment advisers, and investing.

Depending on your needs and your investment objectives, we may assist you with brokerage services, investment advisory services, or both. There are important differences between brokerage and advisory services, including their costs, the services we provide, and the rules that govern them. You should carefully consider these differences when deciding which type, or combination of types of services and accounts are right for you. Information regarding the differences between our brokerage and advisory services is also available in our Form CRS, which is available at <https://cetera.com/cetera-advisor-networks/disclosures>.

3.1 Our Capacity

All recommendations made by your Financial Professional regarding your brokerage account or directly-held investments will be made in our capacity as a broker-dealer, and all recommendations made in connection with our advisory programs will be made in our capacity as an investment adviser. If a Financial Professional is limited to making recommendations in either a broker-dealer capacity or investment advisory capacity only, they will provide you with a written summary before making a recommendation to you. For example, even though we offer both brokerage and advisory services, some of our Financial Professionals are only able to offer brokerage services with respect to certain types of investments such as mutual funds and variable insurance products, or only investment advisory services. In that situation, your Financial Professional would only be able to act in the capacity for which they are licensed or otherwise qualified.

3.1.1 Broker-Dealer Capacity

In our capacity as a broker-dealer, we can recommend and effect securities transactions for you, including buying and selling securities (including investment funds and other products) that can be held in your brokerage account or directly with an investment sponsor. We offer many different options of account types for your brokerage account, including accounts held at Pershing and/or NFS, our clearing firms, direct accounts, education accounts (often referred to as “Section 529 Plans”), Individual Retirement Accounts (IRAs), and certain specialty accounts such as margin and option accounts. In some cases, the custodian of your IRA account will not be the same entity as the trustee.

In addition, we offer the option to hold uninvested cash in your brokerage account in either money market mutual funds or bank accounts insured by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (FDIC). These options are both referred to as “Cash Sweep Vehicles,” and are described in more detail in section 11, below. We do not have any minimum dollar or value requirements to establish a brokerage account, but some of the investments you can purchase through us have minimum investment requirements. More information about minimum investment requirements applicable to specific investments is available in the offering document or prospectus.

We provide a number of services related to investments in securities, including taking customer orders, executing securities transactions, and providing general information regarding your investments. Our Financial Professionals also provide recommendations concerning whether to buy, sell, or hold securities. Our Financial Professionals do not make investment decisions for you or manage your brokerage account on a discretionary basis. Because our Financial Professionals do not have discretionary investment authority in brokerage accounts, this means that we cannot buy or sell investments in your brokerage account without first obtaining your consent. Our Financial Professionals may recommend investments to you, but you are responsible for making the decision about whether to purchase or sell investments, and we will only purchase or sell investments when specifically directed by you. Our Financial Professionals do not monitor your account after a securities transaction is affected for you, including those investments they recommend to you.

When we act in our capacity as a broker-dealer, we are subject to the Securities Act of 1933 and the Securities Exchange Act of 1934, as amended, the rules of self-regulatory organizations such as the Financial Industry Regulatory Authority, Inc. (FINRA), and applicable state laws.

With respect to purchases and sales of equity securities such as common and preferred stocks, we execute transactions for you as your agent. We do not hold an inventory of equity securities for purchase by or from our customers. Pershing and NFS act as “market-makers” for certain equity securities such as common stocks, and if you place an order to purchase or sell one of them, Pershing or NFS may purchase or sell it to you as a “principal,” which means that they are buying or selling it to you from their own inventory. If Pershing or NFS acts as a principal with respect to a transaction in your brokerage account, they will notify you.

With respect to most transactions in fixed-income investments such as bonds and notes, we execute transactions for you as a principal. This means that instead of acting exclusively as your agent in executing a transaction on an exchange or through a dealer and receiving a sales charge or commission, we purchase or sell the investment directly to you or from you. If we purchase an investment for you as a principal, we purchase it from a third party and then sell it to you, for which you will pay us a fee called a “markup”, which is added to the price that you pay us to purchase the investment. If you sell a fixed income investment, you will pay us a fee called a “markdown”, which is subtracted from the proceeds of the sale. Markups and markdowns are compensation to us for executing principal transactions. There may be other charges and fees associated with a transaction in addition to the markup or markdown. In most cases, we act as a “riskless” principal. As a riskless principal, we buy or sell investments directly to or from you, but we do not generally maintain an inventory of securities for sale or in anticipation of selling them to customers. If you give us an order to purchase or sell a security, we purchase or sell it from a third party and apply a markup or markdown.

3.1.2 Investment Adviser Capacity

As an investment adviser, we provide investment advice to you for a fee, including advice with respect to particular investments, as well as “wrap-fee” and other investment advisory programs. We also place orders for you as an investment adviser through a brokerage account with us or through a brokerage account at another broker-dealer. When we act in our capacity as an investment adviser, we will generally do so pursuant to a written agreement with you that sets forth the terms of the investment advisory relationship and our obligations to you.

At the outset of our investment advisory relationship with you, you will receive a disclosure document that describes our investment advisory services and includes important information about, among other things, our fees, personnel, other business activities, and conflicts between our interests and yours. More information about our investment advisory services, fees and costs, and conflicts of interest is available in our Form ADV, Part 2A brochure, which is available at <https://cetera.com/cetera-advisor-networks/disclosures>.

3.1.3 Brokerage Services

Our Financial Professionals can recommend and we can effect securities transactions for you, including the buying and selling of securities in brokerage accounts, directly held accounts, education accounts, IRA accounts, or margin and option accounts. Our brokerage services include recommendations concerning whether to buy, sell, or hold securities. Our services also include recommendations of investment strategies involving securities, which includes recommendations of account types, investment strategies, and rollovers or transfers of assets, such as rolling over workplace retirement plan assets into an IRA account. In addition, our brokerage services include certain margin account services, where you are extended credit (a loan) for the purpose of buying securities.

3.2 Our Investment Philosophy

The majority of our customers are middle-income to high-income individuals who are primarily seeking to invest to increase their financial resources, meet retirement, education, and other similar funding goals, and to invest for legacy purposes. We offer a wide range of investment products and investment strategies that we believe best match the profile of our customer base. We offer securities brokerage and investment advisory service to institutional investors, but they represent a small portion of our overall client base.

We have an obligation to act in your best interest when making recommendations with respect to investments and investment strategies involving securities. We require our Financial Professionals to have a reasonable basis, taking into account the potential risks, rewards, and costs associated with an investment recommendation, to believe that the recommendation made to a customer is in their best interest and does not place the interest of the broker-dealer or the Financial Professional ahead of the interest of the customer at the time the recommendation is made. In determining whether a recommendation is in the customer's best interest, we consider the customer's individual investment profile, which includes but is not limited to their age, other investments, financial situation and needs, tax status, investment objectives, investment experience, investment time horizon, liquidity needs, risk tolerance, and other information that they disclose to us.

3.3 Material Limitations

Given the wide range of our brokerage services, we do not have many material limitations on the type and scope of our services. For instance, we do not limit our investment offerings to specific asset classes or to a select group of issuers, nor do we offer any investments issued, sponsored, or managed by us or our affiliates. Notwithstanding the wide range of our brokerage services, there are certain material limitations on our services and the services of our Financial Professionals, including the following:

Financial Professional Limitations: Not all of our Financial Professionals can offer the full range of investments and services that we offer. For instance, some of our Financial Professionals are licensed to offer brokerage services only, whereas others are licensed to offer only investment advisory services. In addition, some of our Financial Professionals are licensed to offer only certain types of investments, such as mutual funds, and are unable to offer the full range of investments that we make available. If your Financial Professional is subject to any such limitations, they will inform you prior to the time when they make an initial investment recommendation to you. This is a material limitation on the securities or investment strategies that your Financial Professional may recommend to you, and you should discuss the impact that it may have on your relationship with your Financial Professional. In addition, you may research both us and your Financial Professional's experience and licenses on FINRA's BrokerCheck website at <https://brokercheck.finra.org/>.

- Investment Limitations: While we offer a wide range of investments, there are certain types of investments we do not offer. For example, we do not offer all mutual funds from every mutual fund company issuer or every type of ETF. We also do not offer every type of insurance product or education savings plan. This means that our Financial Professionals are limited to recommending only those investments that we have chosen to offer. This is a material limitation on the securities or investment strategies that our Financial Professionals may recommend to you.
- Account Monitoring: Our Financial Professionals do not monitor your brokerage or direct account after effecting a securities transaction for you, including those investments that our Financial Professionals recommend, unless you specifically request that we do so and we agree in writing to provide such monitoring. We only offer ongoing monitoring of your investments in an investment advisory arrangement.
- Discretionary Investment Authority: Our Financial Professionals do not make investment decisions for you or manage your brokerage account on a discretionary basis. Because our Financial Professionals do not have discretionary investment authority, this means that we cannot buy or sell investments in your account without first obtaining your consent. Our Financial Professionals may recommend investments to you, but you are responsible for making the decision whether to purchase or sell investments, and we will only do so when specifically directed by you.
- Commissions and Fees: We are a full-service brokerage firm, and not a "discount" firm. Many discount brokerage firms offer lower fees than we do for providing similar services. Fees and charges for our services are described below, and we have a standard schedule for commissions payable in connection with transactions in securities traded on exchanges and fixed income securities traded over-the counter. Most of our fees and charges are not negotiable, although in some instances Financial Professionals may offer discounts off of published rates for transactions in securities traded on exchanges and fixed income securities traded over-the counter.

3.4 Fees and Costs

This section provides information about the material fees and costs associated with your account, transactions, and holdings. Because our fees vary depending on the specific transaction or service provided, the information below first describes the fees and costs associated with your account, and then the fees and costs associated with transactions and investment holdings that our Financial Professionals may recommend.

Fees and Costs Associated with An Account

You must first open an account with us to use our brokerage services. We offer an array of account types with different features and benefits that are intended to address different needs and objectives of our retail customers. When opening an account with us, you may choose between many different options or account types for your brokerage account, including accounts held with Pershing or NFS, directly held accounts, education savings accounts, retirement accounts, and certain specialty accounts such as margin and option accounts.

Depending on the type of account you open, you will pay certain fees and costs associated with both your account and your investment holdings. Unlike the transaction-based fees described below, fees associated with your account and holdings are typically paid annually whether or not any transactions have occurred, although some account-based fees are associated with specific transactions or activity. In some cases, the fees and costs associated with your account and holdings are billed for services by third parties such as Pershing, NFS, or other custodial firms, and in some cases we “mark up”, or increase those fees before they are charged to you. These markups are additional revenue to us whether we provide the service or it is provided by a third party.

Highlighted below are the material fees and costs associated with your account:

- Account Maintenance Fees: We and/or Pershing or NFS generally charge you an annual account maintenance fee for maintaining your brokerage account with us. This fee compensates us for certain services that we provide to your brokerage account and reimburses us for certain operational expenses that we incur in maintaining your account.
- Account Transfer Fees: If you transfer your brokerage account to another broker-dealer, we generally charge you a one-time account transfer fee to reimburse us for the costs associated with the transfer. The account transfer fee includes fees associated with the Automated Customer Account Transfer System, commonly referred to as the “ACAT” fee. This fee is paid when you initiate the transfer of your account to another broker-dealer.
- Account Termination Fees: We generally charge you a one-time account termination fee to reimburse us for the costs associated with terminating your account with us. This fee is paid when you terminate your account relationship with us.
- Margin Fees: We charge fees for our margin services, where Pershing or NFS extends credit (a loan) to you for the purpose of buying securities. Margin fees, which are typically the interest associated with the margin loan, compensate Pershing or NFS and us for the cost and risk of lending money to you. Margin fees are shared between us and Pershing or NFS. Current rates applicable to margin accounts can be reviewed at <https://cetera.com/cetera-advisor-networks/disclosures>.
- Wire Transfer Fees: We generally charge you a one-time fee to wire cash from your account to another account held outside of our firm. The wire transfer fee is typically $25.00, but may be more for certain international wire transfers.

More Information

The following is a summary of selected fees that you will pay in connection with maintaining a brokerage account. It does not include all applicable fees. More information about the fees and costs associated with your account is available in our schedule of fees and costs for brokerage accounts, which can be viewed at <https://cetera.com/cetera-advisor-networks/disclosures>

3.4.2 Fees and Costs Associated with Transactions and Holdings

We are generally paid a fee each time you execute a transaction or make a new investment. This payment is typically called a “commission,” but it may also be called a “sales charge” or a “markup” or “markdown”. In a very limited set of circumstances you may be eligible to purchase or sell mutual fund shares without paying a sales charge or commission. (Please see the discussion of Exchange Privileges in section 4.1, below.) More information about commission payments, including the commission schedules we use, is available at <https://cetera.com/cetera-advisor-networks/disclosures>.

In addition, investment funds such as mutual funds and UITs, or products such as education savings plans and variable insurance products, bear ongoing fees and expenses that are embedded into the cost of the investment holding. You pay these ongoing fees and expenses indirectly because they are factored into the cost of the investment. More information about ongoing fees and expenses associated with investment funds and variable insurance products is available in the fund or product prospectus. Fees and costs vary among investments, and the following is intended to be a summary of fee and cost information regarding the types of transactions and investment holdings generally purchased or traded by our retail customers. Where applicable, we have included certain hypothetical transactions as examples and sample fee tables for illustrative purposes. Please note that fees and costs associated with your specific transaction may differ from these hypothetical examples or samples. You can obtain more information about the specific costs and fees associated with any investment that you are considering by reviewing the prospectus or other offering materials or by asking your Financial Professional.

3.5 Choice of an Account Type

As discussed above, we offer both securities brokerage and investment advisory services. They have a number of substantive differences, including the nature of the services provided, how we are compensated, and the legal standards that are applicable to our relationship with you. Most of our Financial professionals offer both types of services. The choice of a brokerage or investment advisory account depends on several factors, including the amount and complexity of the investments that you own, the frequency with which you intend to purchase and sell investments, whether or not you wish to have your financial professional monitor your investment holdings on a regular basis, and whether you wish to give discretionary authority of your Financial Professionals. Many of our customers maintain both brokerage and investment advisory accounts with us, which can offer advantages depending on your individual circumstances.

There are a number of factors that you should consider before deciding on which type of account(s) are best for you. For a summary of these factors, please review “The Big Picture: Commission Base vs. Fee Based Accounts” at <https://cetera.com/cetera-advisor-networks/disclosures>.

4. INVESTMENT PRODUCTS THAT WE OFFER

We offer a wide range of investment products from many sponsors. The following is intended to be a brief summary of the characteristics of certain investments that we offer and should not be used as a substitute for the prospectus or other offering document for any investment that you are considering. We encourage you to discuss all of the factors of any investment you are considering with your Financial Professional, and to carefully review the terms and characteristics before making an investment.

4.1 Mutual Funds

Characteristics of Mutual Funds

We offer a large number of mutual funds sponsored by many different mutual fund companies. Mutual funds are registered investment companies that issue redeemable securities. Shares are offered by the sponsor on a continuous basis, and there is no secondary trading market for mutual fund shares. Mutual funds are required to sell and redeem their shares to and from the public at the fund's net asset value (NAV) per share plus any applicable sales charge or load. The fund's NAV is calculated by dividing the total value of all the fund's assets, minus any liabilities such as ongoing fees and expenses (described below), by the number of shares outstanding.

All investors should read the mutual fund prospectus carefully before investing. Each mutual fund prospectus contains important information that will help you make an informed decision about an investment in the fund. In deciding whether to invest, you should consider several different factors, including the mutual fund's past performance, relative risk, investment objective(s), investment strategies and risks, the investment adviser responsible for the management of the mutual fund's assets, and the fees and expenses associated with an investment in a particular mutual fund. While past performance of a mutual fund is not indicative of future results, a mutual fund's long-term performance record and portfolio manager's experience and qualifications may be important factors in deciding whether to invest in a mutual fund.

Fees and Costs of Mutual Funds

You will usually pay a sales charge or load when you buy shares in a mutual fund, although most mutual funds offer programs under which you may be able to pay a reduced sales charge or no sales charge in connection with purchase of specific funds. (Please see the discussion of Breakpoints and other sales charge reduction programs below.) We receive a portion of the sales charge for our efforts and the efforts of our Financial Professionals in selling shares of the mutual fund. Most mutual funds utilize multiple share classes, with differing fees and expenses attributable to each. Though there are many different types of share classes, the most common share classes available to individual investors are Classes A, C, and R. Because each share class has different fees and costs, fund investment performance results will differ as those fees and expenses reduce investment return or performance across different share classes. You should also note that the amount of time you expect to hold your investment in a mutual fund may play an important role in determining which share class is most appropriate for you, and you should discuss this consideration with your Financial Professional.

In addition to sales charges, we receive other payments from mutual fund sponsors. These are referred to as "revenue-sharing" payments, and are described in section 9, below.

Fees and Costs – Share Class Distinctions

While there are no standard definitions for share classes and each mutual fund defines the share classes it offers in its prospectus, these are some basic descriptions of the most common share classes available to you:

- Class A – This share class usually carries a front-end sales charge, which is typically assessed as a percentage of your investment. This means that a sales charge is deducted from your investment each time you purchase shares in the mutual fund. Class A shares also typically have ongoing fees and expenses such as 12b-1 fees, which are intended to finance distribution activities and result in the sale of additional shares of the mutual fund. Despite these ongoing fees and expenses, Class A shares typically have lower annual operating expenses compared to the other share classes of the same mutual fund that may be available to you. This means that ongoing costs will typically be lower than ongoing costs associated with other share classes of the same mutual fund. Other share classes often have lower upfront or deferred sales charges, and you should consider how sales charges and ongoing expenses applicable to different share classes will impact your investment over time. Many mutual funds offer breakpoint discounts for large investments in Class A shares, which means that the front-end sales charge decreases as the dollar amount of the investment increases. (Please see the discussion of breakpoints and other sales charge discounts below.) The breakpoints applicable to each fund are described in the fund's prospectus.

For example, if you purchase $10,000 of Class A shares of a mutual fund that assesses a 4.0% front-end sales charge on your investment, you will pay a $400 front-end sales charge and the remaining $9,600 of your investment will be used to purchase shares of the mutual fund.

- Class C – This share class is characterized by a level asset-based sales charge that you pay annually as a percentage of your holdings in the mutual fund. It does not have a front-end sales charge like Class A shares, but does have a contingent deferred sales charge (also known as a "CDSC") that will be assessed under certain circumstances. This means that you pay a sales charge when you sell your mutual fund shares. The amount of the CDSC is typically assessed as a percentage of your investment at the time of the liquidation. It declines over time and often eventually is eliminated if you hold your shares for a specified time. Class C shares usually eliminate the CDSC after one year, but you should consult the prospectus for any fund that you are considering to determine the CDSC and other charges. In comparison to Class A shares, Class C shares typically have higher annual operating expenses, so you should consider the period of time that you intend to hold fund shares before choosing a share class. In general, if you intend to hold the fund shares for less than 4 years, the total expenses that you will pay (combining sales charges and operating expenses) in connection with Class C shares will be lower than Class A shares.

For example, if you purchase $10,000 of Class C shares of a mutual fund with a 1% asset-based sales charge, you will not pay a front-end sales charge or a CDSC, so the entire $10,000 investment will be used to purchase shares of the mutual fund. However, each year, your investment will be charged the 1% asset-based charge, so your initial $10,000 investment will be reduced to $9,900 after the first year as a result of the asset-based sales charge, assuming no price appreciation or depreciation of the shares in that one-year period. If you choose to sell Class C shares in less than 13 months from the date of the purchase, you will generally pay 1% of the value of your fund shareholdings as a CDSC at the time of liquidation. On a $10,000 investment, you would pay a CDSC of $100 if you sell your shares within 13 months and five years from the date of purchase assuming no price appreciation or depreciation of the shares in that period.

- Class R – This share class is available to retirement investors purchasing shares in a mutual fund through employer-sponsored retirement plans such as Section 401(k), 403(b), and similar plans. Class R shares do not have a front-end sales charge or CDSC like Class A or Class C shares, but Class R shares do have ongoing fees and expenses such as 12b-1 fees intended to finance the distribution activities related to sales of the fund shares. These fees and expenses are deducted from your assets on an ongoing basis.

For example, if you purchase $10,000 of Class R shares of a mutual fund through your employer-sponsored retirement plan, you will not pay a front-end sales charge or a CDSC, so the entire $10,000 investment will be used to purchase shares of the fund at the time of purchase. However, certain ongoing fees and expenses, such as 12b-1 fees, will be deducted from your investment. If the ongoing fees and expenses are 0.25% per year, your $10,000 investment will be reduced to $9,975 after the first year as a result of the ongoing fees and expenses assuming no price appreciation or depreciation of the shares in that one-year period.

Fees and Costs – Sales Charge Reductions and Breakpoints

It may make sense for you to own mutual funds from different mutual fund companies, but it also may increase the total sales charges that you pay to purchase those mutual funds. Mutual fund companies often offer discounts or reduced sales charges based on the total amount you invest with the mutual fund company. For example, if you purchase $50,000 of Class A shares in a fund or group of funds sponsored by a mutual fund company, you may pay an upfront sales charge of 4.5% of your investment. If you purchase $250,000 of the same fund or group of funds, you may pay a sales charge of 3.0% of the amount invested. The investment levels needed to receive the benefit of these discounts are known as “breakpoints.” Each fund has its own schedule of breakpoints, and mutual fund sponsors typically allow you to combine all your holdings of mutual funds that they sponsor and with those of immediate family members to reach breakpoints.

There are other ways that you can get the advantage of breakpoints, including:

- Rights of Accumulation: This feature allows you to combine your mutual fund purchase with your existing investment in the mutual fund company to reach a breakpoint.
- Letters of Intent: You can take advantage of breakpoints by agreeing to purchase a certain dollar amount in a mutual fund over a specified period of time. In most instances, this requires signing a Letter of Intent (LOI).
- Exchange Privileges: In addition to breakpoints, most mutual fund sponsors offer programs that allow investors to sell or liquidate their fund holdings and use the proceeds to purchase shares of another fund managed by the same sponsor without paying an additional sales charge. These programs are often referred to as “exchange privileges”, and may give you the ability to make multiple purchases and sales of fund shares from the same fund sponsor without paying additional sales charges. Please consult the prospectus to see the terms of any exchange program offered by the fund sponsor, including whether they apply to your unique circumstances, and discuss your options with your Financial Professional.

The prospectus of every mutual fund describes its breakpoint policies, including how you can reach breakpoints. You can request a copy of a mutual fund’s prospectus from your Financial Professional.

Fees and Costs – Ongoing Fees and Expenses

In addition to the 12b-1 fees mentioned above, mutual funds typically also deduct other ongoing fees and expenses from fund assets, including management and servicing fees. These ongoing fees and expenses are typically used to pay for the mutual fund's operating expenses (ongoing fees are sometimes referred to as the mutual fund's "expense ratio"), such as paying the mutual fund's investment manager, accounting and auditing, legal, and recordkeeping expenses. In addition, as noted above, the ongoing fees and expenses include 12b-1 fees, which are intended to finance distribution activities and result in the sale of additional shares of the mutual fund, and include marketing and advertising expenses.

These ongoing fees and expenses are typically charged daily by the fund as a percentage of your assets. You pay these fees and expenses indirectly because they are deducted from your assets on an ongoing basis. The following chart summarizes certain categories of expenses that you will usually pay in connection with purchases and ownership of mutual fund shares, and compares several mutual funds we currently offer. It is intended to illustrate the fact that different funds have different fees and expenses, and is not intended to be a complete summary of all expenses that you will pay in connection with mutual fund ownership. For more information, please review the prospectus for any funds you are considering purchasing.

More Information

Marketing representatives of mutual fund sponsors, often referred to as "wholesalers," work with our Financial Professionals to promote sales of their products. Sponsor companies and their wholesalers may pay for or provide training and education programs for our Financial Professionals, and may also provide small gifts or business entertainment, cover expenses for attending business meetings that they sponsor, and may provide financial assistance to Financial Professionals for their marketing events and activities. You do not pay these marketing expenses directly. However, the marketing expenses are built into the cost of the mutual fund, so you indirectly pay for the cost of the marketing expenses sponsored by the sponsor and their wholesalers.

More information on a mutual fund's sales charges, ongoing fees and expenses, and overall expense ratio is available in the mutual fund's prospectus. You can request a copy of a mutual fund's prospectus from your Financial Professional.

4.2 Variable Annuities and Variable Life Insurance

4.2.1 Variable Annuities

We offer variable annuities and variable life insurance policies, which are referred to as "variable products". Variable Products are issued by insurance companies and represent a contract or policy between you and the insurance company. In most cases they require Financial Professionals who recommend them to customers to be licensed or registered with state insurance licensing agencies. Some of our Financial Professionals are not licensed or registered to offer variable products, and if so, they are not able to recommend or sell them to you. The features, benefits, fees and costs of variable products are different and vary by product. The summary below offers general information about most variable products. Information about the particular features, benefits, fees and costs for a specific variable product can be found in the prospectus. You will receive a copy of the prospectus for any variable product that your Financial Professional recommends to you.

Variable annuities can help with saving for retirement. Funds invested in these annuities can grow tax-deferred. This means that you generally will not pay state or federal income taxes on the income and investment gains on the funds in your annuity until you make a withdrawal, receive income payments, or a death benefit is paid. When you withdraw your funds, however, you will usually pay state and federal income taxes on the gains at ordinary income tax rates rather than lower capital gains rates on any investment gains in the funds within the annuity contract. When you start taking income payments, you can usually select payment options that will guarantee you payments for a specified period, which may extend as long as you live if you select that option. Some annuities offer additional features and guarantees, available as options or "riders." The riders and other features applicable to each Variable Product are different, and are established by insurance company. Not all variable products have the same riders or other features, and their cost will vary among different products and issuers.

4.2.2 Variable Life Insurance

Variable life insurance provides life insurance protection (a death benefit) and also allows you to build up a cash value that can grow on a tax-deferred basis. Most variable life insurance policies allow you to take out loans against the cash value and to make withdrawals as long as the remaining cash value is sufficient to keep the policy in force. You can also terminate your policy by surrendering it and receiving the remaining cash value. Terminating your policy will terminate your death benefit protection. Many insurance companies offer riders and other options with their variable life insurance policies, such as disability insurance, income benefits or accelerated death benefits.

When you purchase a variable life insurance product, your insurance premium contributions (net of any fees and charges deducted from premiums) are invested in the investment options – typically underlying mutual funds – that you select. The value of your investment, usually referred to as your cash value, will fluctuate as the values of the underlying mutual funds increase or decrease.

Most insurance companies impose a minimum investment requirement on the initial premium. In the case of variable life insurance, you will also likely be required to make premium payments periodically to keep the policy in force. While you may have some flexibility in the amount or timing of these periodic premium payments, you should consider whether you can afford to continue making premium payments when deciding to purchase a variable life insurance policy. If you fail to make sufficient payments to keep the policy in force, the policy will lapse (terminate without value), and you will no longer have any death benefit protection. A lapse may also create unfavorable tax treatment for the owner of the policy.

Variable products are not short-term savings vehicles. Withdrawing funds or surrendering a variable product in a short time after purchase will likely trigger surrender fees and charges (See discussion of surrender charges above and below), and may also trigger tax penalties. You can lose the money you invest in variable products, including potential loss of your initial investment, due to poor performance of the investment options you select and/or the cumulative impact of fees and charges on your cash value.

Fees and Costs – Premium Payment Deductions

In the case of some variable products, the insurance company deducts a fee from your premium payment, and only the net premium amount is invested or allocated. In the case of variable annuities, the fee deduction is usually to cover state insurance premium taxes. In the case of variable life products, the fee deduction can also cover the insurer's sales expenses.

Fees and Costs – Surrender and Withdrawal Charges

Most variable products impose a surrender charge if you surrender your variable product or make a withdrawal of your cash value during the surrender charge period. This surrender charge and the surrender period are described in the product prospectus. Surrender charge periods vary by variable product and are generally from six to eight years from the date of purchase for variable annuities, but may range up to 15 years on some variable life insurance policies.

Surrender charges also vary by variable product, and generally begin at approximately 8% of the purchase payment in the first year after purchase and end at approximately 1% of the cash value in the final year of the surrender charge period. Typically, the surrender charge decreases at annual or other intervals over the duration of the surrender charge period, with higher charges applying to surrenders and withdrawals made at the beginning of the surrender charge period and lower charges applying to surrenders and withdrawals made toward the end of the surrender charge period. Tax penalties can also apply to surrenders or withdrawals made from annuities before the owner of the policy has reached age 59½.

Fees and Costs – Ongoing Fees and Expenses

Insurance companies deduct fees and expenses from the cash value of the variable product to cover fees and expenses associated with them. These ongoing fees and expenses commonly include mortality and expense (M&E) risk fees, cost of insurance fees (assessed under variable life insurance policies), administration fees, transaction fees, and fees associated with certain optional riders. The M&E risk fees are calculated as a percentage of your insurance coverage or account value and are an annualized percentage rate charged against the value of your annuity contract. However, some fees, such as administration or transaction fees, are fixed amounts charged annually or when specific transactions occur. The cost of insurance fee charged on variable life insurance contracts is typically calculated by applying a rate based on your underwriting classification to the "net amount at risk" (the difference between your product's death benefit and cash value). These fees are usually deducted from your cash value on an ongoing basis. If you add riders to your variable annuity or variable life insurance policy, the fees for those riders will be deducted from your cash value. Fees for riders are usually charged on an annual basis.

In addition to fees related to the annuity contract itself, you will indirectly pay the ongoing fees and expenses for the mutual funds that are the underlying investment options for the variable product in which you invest. These fees and expenses are separate from the fees charged by the insurance company and will be reflected in the performance of the underlying investment options. These ongoing fees and expenses include the mutual fund's management fees, servicing fees, and 12b-1 fees, and are typically charged as an annualized rate against fund assets.

The commissions, surrender charges, fees for riders, and ongoing fees and expenses associated with variable products vary by insurance company and the type of variable product. More information regarding the commissions, surrender charges, and ongoing fees and expenses for variable products is available in the variable product's prospectus.

The following table summarizes the types of fees usually applicable to variable products and the approximate range applicable to the variable products we offer. This table is intended to act only as a summary, and the fees and other features applicable to any variable product that you purchase will be unique to it. Please review the prospectus for any variable product that you consider purchasing and ask your Financial Professional if you have questions.

Fees and Costs – Our Compensation

When you purchase a variable product, the issuing insurance company will pay us a sales charge or commission and we will pay a portion of it to your Financial Professional. While this sales charge is generally not immediately deducted from the amount of your investment, the insurer factors the commission into the fees and costs of the product that you will pay on an ongoing basis. In this way, you indirectly pay the commission despite the fact that it is not immediately deducted from your initial purchase. We receive this commission for our sales efforts and for assisting you with the insurance application and the underwriting and delivery processes related to the purchase of a variable product.

Commissions and sales charges we receive vary based on the variable product and insurance company, and we receive higher commissions for some types of variable products than for others. This creates a conflict of interest for us because our compensation can be greater based on the product that you purchase. In addition, in the case of variable life insurance, the commissions may vary between initial premium payments and subsequent premium payments.

For example, if you purchase a variable annuity in the amount of $10,000 from an insurer that pays us a 6% commission, we will receive, and you will indirectly pay, an initial commission of $600. If you contribute another $1000 to your variable annuity contract as an additional payment, we will receive, and you will indirectly pay, a subsequent commission of $60.

Fees and Costs – Marketing Expenses and Allowances

Some insurance companies also pay us marketing allowances or other fees for our marketing activities on their behalf. These marketing allowances, also referred to as “revenue-sharing” payments are usually calculated as a percentage of new sales (premiums paid by our retail customers), a percentage of the cash value in variable products held by our retail customers, or both. (Please see the discussion regarding revenue-sharing payments in section 9, below.) The amount of revenue-sharing payments varies from insurer to insurer. Some insurers may also make contributions to cover the costs of business meetings and events that we hold for our Financial Professionals.

Marketing representatives of insurance companies and their affiliated distributors, often referred to as “wholesalers,” work with our Financial Professionals to promote sales of their variable products. These insurance companies and their wholesalers may pay for or provide training and education programs for our Financial Professionals. Insurance companies and their wholesalers may also provide small gifts or business entertainment to our Financial Professionals, may cover expenses with our Financial Professionals attending business meetings that they sponsor, and may provide financial assistance to Financial Professionals for their marketing events and activities. You do not pay these marketing expenses directly. However, the marketing expenses are built into the cost of the variable product, so you indirectly pay for the cost of the marketing expenses sponsored by the insurance company and their wholesalers.

More Information

More information about variable products, including the insurance commissions and other fees and expenses built into the cost of the insurance, is available in the variable product’s prospectus. In addition, more information on the mutual funds underlying the variable product’s investment options, including the mutual fund’s ongoing fees and expenses and overall expense ratio, is available in the mutual fund prospectus. You can request a copy of a variable product’s prospectus from your Financial Professional.

4.3 Equities

Characteristics of Equities

We offer a wide range of equity securities, often referred to as stocks, which give stockholders a share of ownership in a company. Before deciding to buy or sell an equity security such as stock of a publicly-traded company, it is important for you to evaluate the risks associated with the company. As part of this evaluation, you will want to carefully review the company's relevant disclosure documents, such as its initial registration statement and prospectus in the case of an initial public offering, or its most recent audited financial statements in the case of a secondary market transaction. Stocks in public companies are registered with the SEC and in most cases, these companies are required to file reports with the SEC quarterly and annually. You may access these disclosure documents on the SEC's website at <https://www.sec.gov/edgar>.

Fees and Costs

Buying and selling equities entails costs. You will typically pay us a sales charge or commission every time you buy or sell an equity security. You will pay this commission in addition to the price you pay for the security you choose to buy or sell. This commission is a one-time fee, which varies according to the size and dollar value of the transaction. Your commission payment as a percentage of the amount of the transaction will generally be higher in connection with smaller transaction amounts. We are not a "discount" broker-dealer. Many discount broker-dealers offer commission rates lower than ours, and some firms will execute transactions in equity securities for customers without charging commission payments.

We have a standard schedule of charges for brokerage transactions, which may be viewed at <https://cetera.com/cetera-advisor-networks/disclosures>. Commissions on transactions in equity securities may be negotiable between you and your Financial Professional.

In addition to commissions charged for executing transactions, you will pay certain charges in connection with maintaining a brokerage account. These include fees for delivery of transaction confirmations and account statements, wire transfers of funds, and other items, all of which are revenue to us. The amount of the fees and charges you will pay is usually more than the cost that we incur in providing the service to you. If the amount that we charge you for a given service is greater than the amount we pay for it, the differential is additional revenue for us. If you maintain a brokerage account with Pershing and/or NFS, we will often charge you more for providing a service than Pershing and/or NFS charge us. A complete list of charges applicable to your brokerage account may be viewed at <https://cetera.com/cetera-advisor-networks/disclosures>.

4.4 Bonds

Characteristics

We offer a wide range of bonds, including corporate, government, and municipal bonds. Bonds are debt securities issued by corporations, governments, or other entities that pay fixed or variable interest rates to investors for a specific period of time. When the bond reaches maturity, the bond issuer generally returns the principal amount of the bond to investors. There are many types of bonds and the features, characteristics, and risks associated with bonds can vary significantly.

Most bonds make interest periodic payments to owners. The "coupon" rate for a bond is the rate of interest it pays annually and is expressed as a percentage of its face value. Usually, the coupon rate is calculated by dividing the annual interest payment by the face value of a bond.

Bonds generally are priced at an initial face value (sometimes called "par" value) of $1,000 per bond. However, once the bond is traded on a secondary market, the bond's price may be lower than the face value, which is referred to as a "discount," or higher than the face value, which is referred to as a "premium." If the bond is priced at a discount, the investor will receive a higher interest yield (percentage annual return) as a result of paying less than the face value. On the other hand, if the bond is priced at a premium, the investor will receive a lower interest yield as a result of paying more than the face value. Bond prices typically have an inverse relationship with bond interest yields. As bond prices decrease, interest yields increase. As bond prices increase, interest yields decrease.

Unlike equities, where prices are usually quoted based on their daily closing prices, many bonds do not have a uniform closing price because they are traded in over-the-counter (OTC) markets or another negotiated market. Bond prices are affected by many different factors, including but not limited to supply and demand for the bond, the issuer's credit rating, size of the offering, interest rates, and age-to-maturity. With regard to the age-to-maturity pricing factor, bonds are paid in full (at face value) when they mature, though there are options to call, or redeem, some bonds before they mature, and some bonds permit the issuer to call the bond prior to maturity. Since a bondholder is closer to receiving the full face value as the maturity date approaches, the bond's price will tend to move toward the par value as the bond ages. Many bonds are priced by discounting the expected cash flow to the present using a discount rate.

Fees and Costs

Instead of charging you a commission on transactions in bonds, we usually execute the transaction as a "principal". This means that instead of acting exclusively as your agent in executing a transaction on an exchange or through a dealer and receiving a sales charge or commission, we purchase or sell the bond directly to you or from you. If we purchase an investment for you as a principal, we purchase it from a third party and then sell it to you at a higher price, and the difference is called a "markup". If you sell a fixed income investment, we will sell it to a third party and take a fee called a "markdown", which is subtracted from the proceeds of the sale. Markups and markdowns are compensation to us for executing principal transactions. There may be other charges and fees associated with a transaction in addition to the markup or markdown. In most cases, we act as a "riskless" principal. As a riskless principal, we buy or sell investments directly to or from you, but we do not generally maintain an inventory of securities for sale or in anticipation of selling them to customers. If you give us an order to purchase or sell a security, we purchase or sell it from a third party and apply a markup or markdown. The amount of a markup/markdown charged on a bond transaction will depend on a number of factors and particular circumstances for each transaction, including the type of bond (corporate, government, or municipal), transaction size, credit quality, unit price, maturity, liquidity, and market scarcity.

With new issues of bonds, our markup is generally included in the par value, so you do not usually pay separate transaction costs. All purchasers of a new issue pay the same price, known as the offering price. If you are interested in a new issue of a bond, you should review the offering document, which describes the bond's features and risks.

If you sell a bond before it matures, you may receive more or less than the par value of the bond. Either way, we will mark down the price of your bond, paying you slightly less than its current market value and will then mark up the price slightly upon resale to another investor or dealer. This is how broker-dealers are compensated in connection with customer purchase and sales of bonds. Pershing or NFS act as dealers in buying and selling bonds, and share with us a portion of the profit they earn in markups and markdowns in transactions with our customers.

For example, if you purchase 10 corporate bonds priced at $1,000 per bond and the markup is $10 per bond, you would pay $10,000 for the market price of the bond and then an additional $100 markup, which means you would pay $10,100 in total to purchase the bonds.

We have a standard schedule of charges for brokerage transactions, which may be viewed at <https://cetera.com/cetera-advisor-networks/disclosures>. Commissions on bond transactions, including markups and markdowns, are usually negotiable between you and your Financial Professional. The compensation that your Financial Professional receives in connection with your purchases and sales of bonds is affected by the amount of the markup or markdown. As such, both we and your Financial Professional have an incentive to increase the amount of the markup or markdown on a given transaction in order to increase the amount of money we earn.

More Information

More information describing a specific bond's features and risks is available in the bond's offering document. More information about bonds, including pricing and issuer credit ratings, is also available on FINRA's website at <https://www.finra.org/investors/investing/investment-products/bonds>. In addition, more information about government bonds is available on the Municipal Securities Rulemaking Board's (MSRB) website at <https://www.msrb.org/>.

4.5 Option Contracts

Characteristics

We offer you the ability to purchase or sell listed options. Options are contracts that give you the right, but not the obligation, to buy or sell an underlying asset at a fixed price within a specified period of time. Various exchanges operating in the United States and regulated by the SEC and/or the Commodity Futures Trading Commission (CFTC) offer public trading markets where different types of options are bought and sold, such as options on individual stocks, indexes, and interest rates. Option contracts may also be traded on certain European markets.

An option contract that gives you the right to buy the underlying asset is referred to as a “call” option, and an option contract that gives you the right to sell the underlying asset is referred to as a “put” option. Most options have certain standardized terms that indicate the nature and amount of the underlying asset, the expiration date, the exercise price, and whether the option is a call or put. Equity options, for example, are designated by reference to the issuer of the underlying security, the expiration month or expiration date of the option, and the option’s exercise price and type (put or call). Many securities that are publicly traded in the United States have put or call option contracts, which are available for trading on an exchange in the United States.

Option contracts have a fixed expiration date. The price of the option contract varies according to a number of factors, including the price of the underlying assets in relation to the exercise, or “strike” price of the option, the period of time left until expiration, volatility of the underlying asset, and general market conditions. You should note that after the expiration date, an option contract has no value, regardless of the value of the underlying asset. If the option expires without being sold or exercised to purchase the underlying asset, you will lose your entire investment in that option contract.

Prior to buying or selling options, you will receive a copy of a document entitled “Characteristics and Risks of Standardized Options,” also known as the options disclosure document (ODD). Investors should read a copy of the ODD prior to buying or selling any option. The ODD contains required disclosure of the characteristics and risks of standardized option contracts. No certificates are issued to show your ownership of an option, but you will receive written confirmations for all transactions and your ownership positions will appear on your monthly account statements. It is also very important to understand the process for exercising your rights as the holder of an option contract. You must give us instructions in accordance with our firm’s procedures in order to exercise your rights, and if you fail to do so, you may lose some or all of the value of the option.

Fees and Costs

You will typically pay us a commission every time you buy or sell an option contract. You will pay this commission in addition to the amount you pay to purchase the option contract, which you will pay regardless of whether you choose to exercise the option to buy or sell the underlying asset. The commission is a one-time fixed fee. . The premium is not a standardized term of the option contract, and does not constitute a “down payment” or other interest in the underlying asset. The premium is a non-refundable payment and is in addition to the commission.

More Information

More information about option contracts is available at <https://www.cboe.com/us/options/>.

4.6 Closed-End and Interval Funds

Characteristics

We offer a wide range of closed-end investment funds, including interval funds, from many different fund sponsors. Each closed-end fund prospectus contains important information that will help you make an informed investment decision, and we encourage you to read the prospectus carefully before investing. In deciding whether to invest in a closed-end fund, you should consider several different factors, including the fund’s investment objective, investment strategies and risks, the investment adviser responsible for the management of the fund’s assets, and the fees and expenses associated with an investment in a particular closed-end fund.

Similar to mutual funds, closed-end funds are pooled investment vehicles. However, there are some important differences between these types of funds. Unlike mutual funds, most traditional closed-end funds do not continuously offer their shares for sale. Instead, such funds usually sell a fixed number of shares through an initial public offering, after which their shares typically trade on a secondary trading market such as an exchange. The price of shares in a closed-end fund that trades on a secondary market after their initial public offering is determined by the market and may be higher or lower than the net asset value. In addition, there are certain non-traded closed-end funds that sell their shares on an ongoing basis and do not trade on a secondary trading market.

Certain closed-end funds have a specified or targeted termination date, at which time the shareholders receive an amount equivalent to the NAV of the shares at the termination date. Non-traded closed-end funds typically contemplate having a “liquidity” event at some point once the fund’s offering has ceased. Liquidity events include liquidation or listing the fund’s shares on a secondary trading market. However, many closed-end funds have no “maturity” or termination date, and shareholders can generally only liquidate their investments by selling shares on a secondary trading market, at prices which may be higher or lower than the net asset value of the fund. Closed-end funds that do not have stated termination dates may still be terminated and liquidated based on the investment manager’s decision.

Unlike mutual funds, closed-end fund shares are not redeemable, which means that the fund is not required to buy shares back from investors upon request. Non-traded closed-end funds sometimes offer to repurchase their shares from investors in periodic tender offers.

In addition, some closed-end funds, commonly referred to as “interval funds,” offer to repurchase their shares from investors at specified intervals, subject to conditions including limitations on the amount that will be repurchased in any given time period.

The shares of an interval fund usually do not trade on a secondary market and interval funds generally offer their shares on a continuous basis at a price based on the fund’s NAV. In order to operate as an interval fund, the fund must offer to repurchase its shares at regular intervals every three, six, or twelve months, as disclosed in the fund’s prospectus. The price that interval fund shareholders receive on a repurchase will be based on the per share NAV determined as of a specified date, minus any redemption fees or charges that may apply to the transaction.

Fees and Costs

You will pay us a sales charge when you buy shares in a closed-end fund’s public offering, or a commission if you buy and sell shares in a closed-end fund in the secondary market. You will pay this sales charge or commission in addition to the amount of the fund you choose to buy or sell. For a public offering purchase, the fund’s sales charge is a one-time fixed fee, which is typically a percentage of the investment amount. For a closed-end fund transaction in the secondary trading market, the commission is also a one-time fixed fee, which varies according to the number of shares purchased or sold and the dollar amount of the transaction.

For example, if you purchase $10,000 of shares in the initial offering of a closed-end fund that assesses a 3% sales charge on your investment, a $300 sales charge will be deducted and the remaining $9,700 of your investment will be used to purchase shares in the closed-end fund’s initial offering. If you purchase $10,000 of shares in a closed-end fund on a trading market, you will pay a commission based on the size of the transaction.

Some interval funds also charge you a redemption charge when you accept the fund’s offer to repurchase your shares. This redemption charge is a one-time fixed fee. . Unlike the sales charges and commissions, the redemption charge is not paid to us, but is paid to the fund to compensate it for expenses associated with the repurchase.

For example, if you own $10,000 of shares in an interval fund that assesses a 2% redemption charge, and you accept an interval fund’s offer to repurchase all of your shares, a $200 redemption charge will be deducted and you will receive the remaining $9,800 as your redemption proceeds.

Closed-end funds, including interval funds, also deduct other ongoing fees and expenses, such as management fees, from fund assets. In addition, the ongoing fees and expenses of many interval funds include 12b-1 fees, which are intended to finance distribution activities and result in the sale of additional shares of the interval fund, and include marketing and advertising expenses. These ongoing fees and expenses, which are reflected in the fund’s overall expense ratio, are typically used to pay for the fund’s continued operations, such as paying the fund’s investment manager, accounting and auditing expenses, legal expenses, and recordkeeping expenses. These ongoing fees and expenses are typically charged daily as a percentage of your assets. You pay these fees and expenses indirectly because they are deducted from your assets on an ongoing basis.

More Information

More information on the sales charges, ongoing fees and expenses, and overall expense ratio for closed-end funds, including interval funds, is available in the fund’s prospectus. You can request a copy of a fund’s prospectus from your Financial Professional.

4.7 Exchange-Traded Funds and Exchange-Traded Products

Characteristics

We offer a wide range of exchange-traded funds (ETFs) and Exchange-Traded Products (ETPs). ETFs are investment funds that are listed for trading on a national securities exchange and can be bought and sold in the equity trading markets. Shares in the ETF represent an interest in a portfolio of securities. ETPs may consist of different assets, but ownership of an ETP gives the holder an interest in the underlying pool of assets, whatever they are.

ETFs possess characteristics of both mutual funds and closed-end funds. Similar to mutual funds, an ETF pools assets of multiple investors and invests those pooled assets according to its investment objective and investment strategy. ETFs also continuously offer their shares for sale like mutual funds. In addition, ETFs share certain characteristics with closed-end funds, namely that the fund’s shares trade on a secondary market and may trade at prices higher or lower than the fund’s NAV.

ETFs do not sell or redeem individual shares. Instead, certain “authorized participants” have contractual arrangements with the ETP to purchase and redeem shares directly from the ETF in blocks called “creation units” and “redemption units,” respectively, where each creation or redemption unit typically represents 50,000 shares of the ETF. After purchasing a “creation unit,” the authorized participants generally sell the ETF shares in the secondary trading market.

The creation and redemption process for ETF shares provides arbitrage opportunities designed to help keep the market price of ETF shares at or close to the NAV per share of the ETF. For example, if ETF shares are trading at a price below the NAV (generally referred to as a “discount”), an authorized participant can purchase ETF shares in secondary market transactions, and after accumulating enough shares to compose a “redemption unit”, can redeem those shares from the ETF for a pro rata share of the fund’s underlying securities, which would be more valuable than the shares redeemed. The authorized participant’s purchase of ETF shares in the secondary market will tend to create upward pressure on ETF share prices, which would tend to bring them closer to the NAV per share of the ETF.

Fees and Costs

You will pay us a commission every time you buy or sell shares in an ETF. You will pay this commission in addition to the amount of the ETF you choose to buy or sell. This commission is a one-time fixed fee and is determined by our schedule of fees and commissions in effect at the time of the transaction.

ETFs also deduct ongoing fees and expenses, such as management fees, from their assets. These ongoing fees and expenses are typically used to pay for the ETF’s continuing operations, such as paying fees to the investment manager, accounting and auditing expenses, legal expenses, and recordkeeping expenses. However, ETFs generally have lower expense ratios than mutual funds because most ETFs are not actively managed and, therefore, do not incur the internal costs of buying and selling the underlying portfolio securities.

These ongoing fees and expenses are typically charged annually as a percentage of your assets. You pay these fees and expenses indirectly because they are deducted from your assets on an ongoing basis. We receive payments from the sponsor or investment adviser of the ETF, where such payments are generally referred to as revenue-sharing payments. (Please see the discussion regarding revenue-sharing in section 9, below.)

Actively-Managed ETFs and Mutual Funds with Similar Investment Holdings

Some fund sponsors offer both mutual funds and ETFs. While most ETFs consist of a “static” pool of assets that does not change over time, some ETFs are actively-managed, which means that the manager of the ETF purchases and sells investments for the fund and the composition of the fund will change over time. A mutual fund sponsor may offer both a mutual fund and an actively-managed ETF that have significant overlap between their portfolios, and in some cases the portfolios may be substantially identical.

The sales charges that you will incur in purchasing shares of a mutual fund will usually be higher than those that you will pay in connection with purchase of an ETF, and the ongoing management expenses for mutual funds will generally be higher than those for an ETF with a similar portfolio. The actual sales charge that you pay in connection with purchase of a mutual fund will vary according to a number of factors (Please see the discussion of mutual fund sales charges and operating expenses in section 3, above.) In addition, mutual funds usually charge 12b-1 fees in connection with mutual funds, whereas ETFs do not. All of these factors will usually combine to make the cost for investors who purchase shares of mutual funds higher than for those who purchase ETFs with similar portfolios. This creates a conflict of interest for both the firm and your Financial Professional, because we will usually receive greater compensation in connection with purchases of mutual funds than we would in connection with purchases of ETFs that have similar investment portfolios. We also receive more revenue-sharing compensation from mutual fund sponsors than we do from sponsors of ETFs (Please see the discussion of our revenue-sharing arrangements in section 9, below.) This creates an incentive for us to recommend that you purchase mutual funds instead of ETFs that have similar investment portfolios.

We do not allow Financial Professionals to recommend new purchases of actively-managed ETFs to customers in brokerage accounts, although we allow customers who have existing holdings of actively-traded ETFs to maintain them. We do allow Financial Professionals to recommend new purchases of actively-managed ETFs in investment advisory accounts.

More information about ETFs, including their ongoing fees and expenses and overall expense ratio, is available in the prospectus. You can request a copy of a mutual fund’s prospectus from your Financial Professional.

4.8 Unit Investment Trusts

Characteristics

We offer a wide range of unit investment trusts (UITs). UITs are pooled investment vehicles in which a portfolio of securities is selected by the trust's sponsor and deposited into the trust for a specified period of time. The portfolio of securities is not actively traded, and the trust generally follows a "buy and hold" investment strategy. The portfolio will generally remain fixed until the termination of the trust. UIT term lengths vary, but usually have a maturity date that is between 15 to 24 months from the initial offering date.

At the UIT's maturity date, an investor will usually receive the cash value of their investment as of the date of the liquidation, but some UITs offer unitholders the ability to receive their pro rata share of the securities held in the underlying portfolio in lieu of cash.

The portfolio of the UIT is generally designed to follow a defined investment objective over a specified period of time. A UIT is formed by the trust sponsor, who enters into an agreement with the trustee. When the trust is formed, the investment terms and conditions are set forth in the trust agreement, such as the trust objective, the securities that will be placed in the trust, when the trust will terminate, and what fees and expenses will be charged to the trust's assets. These terms and conditions of the trust will be listed in the prospectus.

Fees and Costs

You will pay us a sales charge when you buy units in a UIT in an initial offering, or a commission when you buy or sell units in a secondary trading market. You will pay this sales charge or commission in addition to the amount of the UIT you choose to buy or sell.

For example, if you invest $10,000 in a UIT's initial offering that assesses a 2% sales charge, then a $200 sales charge will be deducted and the remaining $9,800 of your investment will be used to purchase units in the UIT's initial offering. If you purchase $10,000 of units in a UIT on a trading market, after the initial offering, you will pay a commission or sales charge based on the value of the investment.

In some instances, collection of all or part of a sales charge in connection with a UIT is deferred over a period following the purchase of units. Typically, the deferred sales charge is deducted from the unitholder's distributions on the units owned during the collection period until the total amount of the sales charge is paid. If you liquidate your investment in a UIT prior to the maturity date, you may pay a fee to the sponsor at the time of the liquidation, which will reduce the proceeds of the liquidation.

UITs also deduct other fees and expenses from trust assets, such as organizational and operating expenses. These fees and expenses include portfolio supervision, recordkeeping, administrative fees, and trustee fees. UITs also charge creation and development fees, which compensate the sponsors for creating and developing the trusts. However, UITs generally do not deduct a separate management fee because the portfolio is not actively managed. We may receive a portion of these fees and expenses, generally referred to as revenue sharing. Please see section 9, below, for a discussion regarding revenue-sharing payments that we receive from investment sponsors.

More Information

More information about UITs, including their sales charge and ongoing fees and expenses, is available in the prospectus for each UIT.

4.9 Real Estate Investment Trusts

Characteristics

We offer a number of real estate investment trusts (REITs). They own and usually operate real estate assets, such as office buildings, shopping malls, apartments, hotels, resorts, self-storage facilities, warehouses, portfolios of single-family homes, and real estate mortgages or loans. Unlike some other real estate companies, REITs generally do not develop real estate properties to resell them, but rather buy and develop properties primarily to operate them as part of their own investment portfolio.

REITS provide investors with exposure to the investment performance of real estate and real estate-backed loans. Distributions to shareholders from REITs often enjoy tax-advantaged status, but REITs are required to pay out most of the taxable income to their shareholders in order to qualify for that favorable tax treatment.

We offer both publicly-traded REITs (traded REITs), which are typically listed for trading on a national securities exchange, and non-traded REITs, which are not listed for trading on an exchange. While traded REITs can be bought and sold on a secondary trading market, non-traded REITs cannot be bought or sold readily in a secondary trading market and are typically only available for purchase when the REIT is conducting a public offering of its shares. The market price for shares of traded REITs is readily available, but since non-traded REITs are not traded on an exchange or other public market, their price is not readily available. Shares of non-traded REITs are illiquid investments because you may not be able to sell your shares readily. Also, in the case of non-traded REITs, which generally are purchasing real estate assets as they are conducting their offerings, dividend yields may come in whole or in part from offering proceeds or borrowings rather than from rental or other income, reducing the amount available to invest in real estate assets. Non-traded REITs also often have an external manager whereas traded REITs typically have internal employees who manage the assets of the REIT. The interests of external managers, who receive fees from the REIT for managing the REIT and assisting with acquisitions, can conflict with the interests of the shareholders of the non-traded REITs.

Fees and Costs

You will pay us a commission when you buy shares in a traded REIT's public offering, or buy or sell shares in a traded REIT in a secondary trading market. For an initial offering purchase, the commission on a traded REIT is a one-time fixed fee, typically a percentage of the investment amount, and usually ranges between 1% and 2% of the investment amount.

Non-traded REITs have initial offering commissions which typically include both a commission payable to us and a "dealer manager" fee which is payable to a distributor that is usually an affiliate of the issuer. The commissions and sales charges are usually significantly higher than those applicable to traded REITs, and the commission is deducted from the amount you invest. For a purchase or sale transaction in the secondary trading market, the commission is generally similar to a commission on an equity trade, and is also a one-time fixed fee. The commission is a separate charge from the purchase or sale amount.

For example, if you purchase $10,000 of shares in a public offering of a publicly-traded REIT that assesses a 2% commission on your investment, you will pay a $200 commission and the remaining $9,800 of your investment will be used to purchase shares in the REIT's offering. If you purchase $10,000 of shares in a REIT in the secondary trading markets, you will pay a commission based on the value of the transaction.

Both traded- and non-traded REITs bear the fees and expenses associated with acquiring, operating, and disposing of their assets. You pay these fees and expenses indirectly, because they impact the profitability of the REIT and the value of your shares.

We receive payments from sponsors of non-traded REITs, generally referred to as revenue-sharing. These payments, as well as the conflicts of interest associated with them, are described more fully below in section 9, below. Since we receive revenue-sharing payments in connection with purchases and holdings of non-traded REITs, we have an incentive to recommend that you purchase shares of non-traded REITs instead of traded REITs.

The cost to purchase a share of a traded REIT is determined by the market in which it trades, and may be higher or lower than the value of the assets owned by the REIT. Non-traded REITs generally offer owners the ability to liquidate or "redeem" their shares at specified intervals, usually every month. Since there is not typically a public market for the shares of a non-traded REIT, the only option you have if you choose to liquidate your ownership interest is to tender your shares to the REIT. If you choose to liquidate your REIT shares by tendering them to the REIT, the price you receive will be the NAV as determined by the fund sponsor. In addition, most non-traded REITs that offer to repurchase REIT shares limit the dollar amount of the shares that they will purchase in any given time period. If the REIT receives requests to redeem in amounts greater than the limit established by the sponsor, the sponsor has the right to decline to purchase a portion of the shares that you and other shareholders have tendered. In most cases, you may continue to tender any shares that have not been redeemed in succeeding periods, but if the volume of redemption requests from all shareholders exceeds the limit established by the sponsor, it may take some time for you to liquidate your entire investment. The price you receive for liquidating your shares will depend on the NAV of the REIT at the time when your redemption is processed.

When you purchase or sell a traded REIT, you will pay us a commission, which is determined by published commission schedule for transactions executed in public markets. If you purchase shares of a non-traded REIT, you will pay a sales charge that include the dealer-manager fee, as described above. The commission payable in connection with the purchase of a traded REIT is usually lower than the commission that you will pay in connection with purchase of a non-traded REIT as a percentage of the investment amount. Non-traded REITs are different from traded REITs in several material ways, including those mentioned above, and are not directly comparable as investments. If you are interested in investing in real estate though purchase of a REIT, please ask you Financial Professional for additional information regarding the differences between traded and non-traded REITs, including the fees and expenses you will incur in connection with purchasing and selling them.

More Information

More information about REITs, including their initial commissions and ongoing fees and expenses, is available in the REIT's prospectus.

4.10 Business Development Companies

Characteristics

We offer interests in a number of Business Development Companies (BDCs). BDCs are a type of closed-end investment fund that offers investors the ability to invest money in small and medium-sized private companies and other investments, including public companies.

BDCs pool money from investors and usually invest in debt and equity of small and medium-sized private or small public companies. The companies BDCs invest in are often in early stages of development, or may not be large enough to obtain bank loans or raise money from other investors. BDCs are sometimes compared to venture capital funds or private equity funds, which provide exposure to private, often illiquid, investments and may provide management or other assistance to the companies they invest in. However, BDCs are registered with the SEC and may be purchased by most investors. Publicly-traded BDCs are similar to other closed-end funds and ETFs in that their shares are typically bought and sold on national securities exchanges at market prices.

We also offer non-traded BDCs. The assets they own are similar to publicly-traded BDCs, but while traded BDCs can be bought and sold on a secondary trading market, non-traded BDCs cannot be bought or sold readily in a secondary trading market and are typically only available for purchase when the BDC is conducting a public offering of its shares. The market price for shares of traded BDCs is readily available, but since non-traded BDCs are not traded on an exchange or other public market, the price is not readily available. Shares of non-traded BDCs are considered to be illiquid investments because you may not be able to sell your shares readily. Also, in the case of non-traded BDCs, which generally are making loans or purchasing securities of other companies as they are conducting their offerings, dividend yields may come from offering proceeds or borrowings rather than from interest or other income, reducing the amount available to invest in other assets.

Fees and Costs

You will pay us a commission when you buy shares in a traded BDC's public offering or buy or sell shares in a secondary trading market. For an initial offering purchase, the commission on a traded BDC is a one-time fixed fee, typically a percentage of the investment amount, and usually ranges between 1% and 2% of the investment amount.

Non-traded BDCs have initial offering commissions which typically include both a commission payable to us and a "dealer manager" fee which is payable to a distributor that is usually an affiliate of the issuer. The commissions and sales charges are significantly higher than those applicable to traded BDCs, and generally ranges from 2% to 5% of the initial investment amount. The commission is deducted from the amount you invest. For a purchase or sale transaction in a secondary trading market, the commission is similar to a commission on an equity trade, and is also a one-time fixed fee, depending primarily on the value of the transaction. The commission is a separate charge from the purchase or sale amount.

For example, if you purchase $10,000 of shares in a public offering of a traded BDC that assesses a 2% commission on your investment, then you will pay a $200 commission and the remaining $9,800 of your investment will be used to purchase shares in the BDC's offering. If you purchase $10,000 of shares in a BDC in the secondary trading markets, you will pay a commission based on the value of the transaction.

Both traded and non-traded BDCs bear the fees and expenses associated with acquiring, operating, and disposing of their assets. You pay these fees and expenses indirectly because they impact the profitability of the BDC and the value of your shares. We may receive payments from the sponsor of the BDC, generally referred to as revenue sharing.

We receive payments from sponsors of non-traded REITs, generally referred to as revenue-sharing. We do not generally receive revenue-sharing payments from sponsors of traded BDCs, which creates an incentive for us to recommend that you purchase shares of non-traded BDCs rather than traded BDCs. These payments, as well as the conflicts of interest associated with them, are described more fully below in section 9, below.

For example, if you purchase $10,000 of shares in a public offering of a non-traded BDC that assesses a 4% commission on your investment, then you will pay a $400 commission and the remaining $9,600 of your investment will be used to purchase shares in the BDC's offering.

Both traded- and non-traded BDCs bear the fees and expenses associated with acquiring, operating, and disposing of their assets. You pay these fees and expenses indirectly, because they impact the profitability of the BDC and the value of your shares.

The cost to purchase a share of a traded BDC is determined by the market in which it trades, and may be higher or lower than the value of the assets owned by the BDC. Non-traded BDCs usually offer owners the ability to liquidate or “redeem” their shares at specified intervals, usually every month. Since there is not typically a public market for the shares of the non-traded BDC, the only option you have if you choose to liquidate your ownership interest is to tender your shares to the BDC. If you chose to liquidate your BDC shares by tendering them to the BDC, the price you receive will be the NAV as determined by the fund sponsor as of the time of the liquidation. In addition, most non-traded BDCs that offer to repurchase shares limit the dollar amount of the shares that they will purchase in any given time period. If the BDC receives requests to redeem shares in amounts greater than the limit established by the sponsor, the sponsor has the right to decline to purchase the shares you have tendered. In most cases, you may continue to tender your shares in succeeding periods, but if the volume of redemption requests by all shareholders exceeds the limit established by the sponsor, it may take some time for you to liquidate your entire investment. The price you receive will depend upon the NAV of the BDC at the time when your redemption is processed.

When you purchase or sell a traded BDC, you will pay us a commission, which is determined by our published commission schedule for transactions executed in public markets. If you purchase shares of a non-traded BDC, you will pay a sales charge that includes the dealer-manager fee, as described above. The commission that you will pay in connection with the purchase of a traded BDC is usually lower as a percentage of the investment amount than the commission that you will pay in connection with purchase of a non-traded BDC. Non-traded BDCs are different from traded BDCs in several material ways, and are not directly comparable as investments. If you are interested in investing in a BDC, please ask your Financial Professional for additional information regarding the differences between traded and non-traded BDCs, including the fees and expenses you will incur in connection with purchasing and selling them.

More Information

More information about BDCs, including their initial commissions and ongoing fees and expenses, is available in the prospectus.

4.11 Education Savings Plans

Characteristics

We offer a number of college and education savings plans, often referred to as “529 plans.” 529 plans are tax-advantaged and state-sponsored investment programs designed specifically for education savings and named after the section of the Internal Revenue Code that created them.

There are two general types of 529 plans: Education savings plans and prepaid tuition plans. Education savings plans are securities that allow investment earnings to grow tax-deferred, and withdrawals are exempt from federal taxation when used for qualified educational expenses. Education savings plans generally operate through state-sponsored trusts and permit investors to allocate contributions to one or more investment options offered in the plan. Prepaid tuition plans allow investors to “lock in” tuition rates at specified educational institutions for students who will attend the institution at a later time. Every state offers at least one type of 529 plan, and some states offer both types. The remainder of this discussion is limited to education savings plans and does not include prepaid tuition plans. 529 plans were originally limited to funding qualified college expenses, but have been expanded to allow for use in connection with qualified education expenses at other institutions for students in primary and secondary schools.

Education savings plan contributions are generally invested in certain underlying investment options, such as mutual funds. The value of the contributions will fluctuate as the underlying investment options increase or decrease in value, and there is no guarantee that the amount contributed to the plan will equal the amount necessary for future education expenses. Although similar to mutual funds in certain ways, education savings plans are issued by state governments, and are not directly regulated or registered under the federal securities laws.

If you are considering investing in an education savings plan, you should read the offering document (often called a program description or “official statement”) carefully before investing. Each program description contains important information that will help you make an informed decision about an investment in the plan. In deciding whether to invest in an education savings plan, you should consider several different factors, including each investment option’s past performance, investment objective, investment strategy and risks, the investment adviser responsible for advising the state issuer, and the fees and expenses associated with an investment in a particular investment option. While past performance of an investment option is not indicative of future results, an investment option’s long-term performance record may be an important factor in deciding to invest.

Fees and Costs

You will usually pay us a sales charge when you purchase an education savings plan. We receive a portion of this sales charge for the sales and related services we provide to the primary distributor of the plan.

Most education savings plans offer multiple classes of units (often called share classes), similar to the share class structure offered by many mutual funds. Though there are several types of share classes, but the most common share classes available to you are Classes A, B, and C. Each class typically has different fees and expenses, and therefore investment option performance results will differ as those fees and expenses reduce performance across share classes. You should also note that the amount of time you expect to hold your investment in a college savings plan may play an important role in determining which share class is most appropriate for you, and you should discuss this consideration with your Financial Professional. For example, Class C units may not be appropriate for situations in which the intended beneficiary of the account (the student(s) who intend to use the proceeds of the account for qualified education expenses) is less than 10 years old at the time that the initial deposit into the account is made. Similarly, class A shares may not be appropriate for situations in which the intended beneficiary is more than 12 years old at the time of the original deposit.

While there are no standard definitions for these share classes and each education savings plan defines its share classes in its offering document, these are basic descriptions of the most common share classes available to you:

- Class A – This share class usually carries a front-end sales charge, which is typically assessed as a percentage of each contribution. The net amount of your contribution after the deduction of the sales charge is invested in shares of the plan investment option(s) that you select. Class A shares typically have lower operating expenses compared to the other share classes of the same investment option. This means that ongoing costs will typically be lower than ongoing costs associated with other share classes of the same investment option. Many plans also offer “breakpoint” discounts for large investments in Class A shares, which means that the front-end sales charge decreases as the investment increases. These breakpoints are described in the plan’s offering document. Breakpoints applicable to education savings plans are similar to but not always identical to breakpoints available in connection with purchase of mutual fund shares. Please review the terms of the various share classes with your Financial Professional prior to making an investment in an education savings plan.

For example, if you purchase $10,000 of Class A shares of an investment option for an education savings plan that assesses a 3% front-end sales charge on your investment, you will pay a $300 front-end sales charge and the remaining $9,700 of your contribution will be used to purchase Class A shares of the investment option.

- Class B – This share class has no front-end sales charge like Class A shares, but has “back-end” or “contingent deferred sales charges” (CDSC) that apply. The CDSC means that you pay a sales charge when you redeem shares from your investment option. The amount of the CDSC is typically assessed as a percentage of the investment option. It generally declines as a percentage of the value of your account over the time that you hold your shares and eventually is eliminated. The period of decline typically lasts anywhere from five to eight years from the date of the contribution, depending on the plan and investment option. Once the CDSC is eliminated (typically at the end of the five-to-eight-year period), Class B shares usually convert to Class A shares. Until this conversion takes place, Class B shares will typically have higher ongoing operating expenses than Class A shares.

For example, if you purchase $10,000 of Class B shares of an investment option of an education savings plan that assesses a CDSC, you will not pay a front-end sales charge and the entire $10,000 contribution will be used to purchase Class B shares of the investment option at the time of purchase. However, if you decide to redeem those same Class B shares two years later, you will pay a CDSC based on the time that has elapsed since the purchase.

- Class C – This share class is characterized by a level asset-based sales charge that you pay annually as a percentage of your assets in an investment option. It does not have a front-end sales charge like Class A shares, but does have a CDSC like Class B shares.

However, unlike Class B shares, the CDSC for Class C shares is generally eliminated after a short period of time (usually one year). Operating expenses for Class C shares are usually higher than for Class A or B shares.

For example, if you purchase $10,000 of Class C shares of an investment option of an education savings plan with a 1% asset-based sales charge, you will not pay a front-end sales charge or a CDSC, so the entire $10,000 contribution will be used to purchase Class C shares of the investment option at the time of purchase. However, each year, your contribution will be charged a 1% asset-based charge, so your $10,000 contribution will be reduced to $9,900 after the first year, assuming no appreciation or depreciation of the shares in that one-year period.

In addition to these sales charges, education savings plans typically deduct certain ongoing fees and expenses from each investment option, such as program management fees, from assets in the investment options. Although these ongoing fees and expenses will vary based on the plan, some of the more common ones include:

- Program Management Fees – Education savings plans generally deduct a program management fee to pay the program manager for providing investment advisory, accounting, and other services to the plan. This fee is typically charged annually as a percentage of your assets, and is reflected in the NAV of the plan's investment options.
- Maintenance Fee – Most plans charge an annual maintenance fee. This fee, which compensates the plan sponsor for costs of maintaining the plan, may be waived in certain circumstances, such as when your plan assets exceed certain thresholds.
- Underlying Mutual Fund Expenses – Most plans invest contributions in one or more mutual funds and bear a portion of the fees and expenses of these underlying funds. The underlying mutual fund expenses are deducted from fund assets and reflected in the NAV of the underlying mutual funds, which means they are also reflected in the NAV of the plan's investment options. More information on the mutual funds that underlie the plan's investment options is available in the plan's offering document. In addition, more information on the underlying mutual funds, including their ongoing fees and expenses and overall expense ratio, is available in the fund prospectuses.

You pay these fees and expenses indirectly as they are deducted from your investment option assets, or the assets of underlying mutual funds, on an ongoing basis.

More Information

More information on the sales charges and ongoing fees and expenses is available in the college savings plan's offering document, which you can request from your Financial Professional.

4.12 Structured Products

Characteristics of Structured Products

Structured products are securities whose value is based upon or derived from the price of another asset, such as a security or a basket of securities, an index, a commodity, a debt instrument, or a foreign currency. They are often referred to as structured notes, or structured certificates of deposit (if issued by a bank or other depository institution). They bear similarities to other fixed income instruments such as bonds, but often do not make interest payments or require repayment of the principal by the issuer. They are usually issued for a fixed term of months or years and redeemed by the issuer at the end of the term.

Structured products are generally unsecured debt of the issuer and subject to the credit rating and ability of the issuer to repay its obligations. This risk exists whether or not the investment held in the account offers principal protection from an insurer or other third party.

Structured products are offered by issuers in initial offerings that may be ongoing or continuous. If you purchase a structured product in an initial offering, you will pay us a sales charge or fee that is a percentage of your investment of your investment. Structured products are not usually traded on secondary markets such as exchanges, and it may be difficult to liquidate a structured product prior to its maturity. Many issuers offer to buy structured products that they have issued, but may only do so at prices that are below the initial offering price or the current net asset value of the instrument. The market price of the security in the secondary market, if there is one, may be adversely impacted if the issuer's credit rating is downgraded.

Some structured products offer full protection of the principal invested, others offer only partial or no protection. Where protection exists, the return of principal may not be for many years and there is significant liquidity risk with these investments. Investors may give up a higher yield to obtain the principal guarantee. In addition, the principal guarantee relates to the nominal principal amount and does not offer inflation protection. An investor in a structured product usually does not have a claim on the underlying investment or reference asset.

Tax treatment of structured products may be different from other investments (for example, income may be taxed as ordinary income even though payment is not received until maturity). Structured CDs that are insured by the FDIC are subject to applicable FDIC limits.

Fees and Costs

You will pay us a commission when you buy shares in a public offering of a structured product or liquidate it by selling it back to the issuer or a third party. For an initial offering purchase, the commission on a structured product is a one-time fixed fee, typically a percentage of the investment amount. The commission is a separate charge from the purchase or sale amount.

For example, if you purchase $10,000 of interests in a public offering of a structured product that assesses a 2% sales charge on your investment, then you will pay a $200 commission and the remaining $9,800 of your investment will be used to purchase the structured product.

More Information

More information about structured products, including their initial commissions and ongoing fees and expenses, is available in the prospectus.

5. CONFLICTS OF INTEREST

All broker-dealers and Financial Professionals have conflicts of interest in dealing with customers because they have an incentive to recommend that customers purchase or hold securities or contract for services that will yield them the largest amount of compensation, both per transaction and in the aggregate. SEC Regulation Best Interest (Reg. BI) requires that we act in your best interest when we make recommendations to you, and that we do not place our financial or other interest above yours.

We have identified certain conflicts of interest that relate to the recommendations that we and our Financial Professionals make to you. A conflict arises when an economic benefit, usually in the form of compensation or payments that we receive from you or a third party, creates an incentive for either us or a Financial Professional to put our interests ahead of yours. Some of these conflicts exist between customers and both the firm and Financial Professionals. Others exist between customers and the firm alone, and some between customers and Financial Professionals alone. The discussion below summarizes material aspects of these conflicts to assist you in making an informed decision regarding any recommendation a Financial Professional provides you. If you have questions regarding these conflicts or others, please consult with your Financial Professional.

We receive different types and amounts of compensation for performing different services for you. These are discussed in more detail below, but the way we are compensated and who pays us creates incentives for us to recommend that you establish or maintain a given type of relationship with us (brokerage or advisory), that you purchase specific types or amounts of investments, or both. We will make recommendations that we believe are in your best interest, but you should be aware of the incentives that we have when we make recommendations to you and the conflicts of interest that they create. You have the sole authority to control all decisions regarding transactions executed on your behalf, although you may choose to give your Financial Professional discretionary authority to execute transactions in your investment advisory account. The compensation we receive and the incentives we have for recommending services to you include the following:

- Your relationship with us – Brokerage vs. Investment Advisory – If you choose to establish a brokerage account or purchase assets that will be held directly by product sponsors, you will pay us for transactions that we execute for you. We also receive ongoing compensation in connection with certain investments that you own. In general, if you choose a brokerage or direct account, you will pay us sales charges when you purchase or sell investments. We have an incentive to recommend that you execute both more transactions and transactions for larger dollar amounts in your brokerage account because that increases our compensation.

If you choose an investment advisory relationship, you will pay us ongoing fees to give you advice, execute transactions, and monitor the performance of your investments. Our fees are based on the value of the assets in your account, a fixed or hourly fee, or a combination of both, but you will pay us fees for providing ongoing advice and monitoring of your investments whether we execute transactions in your account or not. Some of our advisory programs are referred to as “wrap” programs, in which you pay a single fee for advice and execution of transactions. In some of our advisory programs, you will pay fees for execution of transactions in addition to advisory fees. We do not have a financial incentive to recommend or execute more transactions in wrap accounts, but we have an incentive to do so in advisory programs where you pay a fee for execution of transactions. We also have an incentive to recommend that you establish an advisory account instead of a brokerage account because we will receive fees regardless of whether transactions are executed in your account.

- Different compensation applies to different types of investments – If you choose a brokerage relationship, you may purchase many different types of investments, including stocks, bonds or other fixed-income investments, mutual funds, ETFs, variable products, and alternative investments such as non-traded REITs, non-traded BDCs, and private investment funds. Each of these investments has different characteristics, risks, and potential benefits. Some investments have higher initial and/or ongoing sales charges than others. We have an incentive to recommend investments and investment types that pay us a larger amount of compensation, both initially and on an ongoing basis, and to recommend one product of a given type over another if it pays us more compensation.

5.1 Conflicts for Both Us and Our Financial Professionals

Conflicts between the interests of customers and both our firm and Financial Professionals may be caused by a variety of arrangements, including the role we play in a transaction and our compensation arrangements, charges applicable to specific transactions, and other forms of compensation that we receive from investment product sponsors and other third parties.

Our relationship with you creates a number of conflicts between our interests and yours, including the following:

- We and our Financial Professionals are paid when you trade or invest based on our recommendations. We are paid each time you trade or make a new investment. Conversely, if you do not trade or make investments through us, we will receive less compensation in connection with your account than we would if you trade actively. We pay our Financial Professionals a portion of the transaction-based payments that we receive. These transaction-based payments (commissions and sales charges) create incentives for us and your Financial Professional to encourage you to trade more and purchase additional investments that result in additional revenue for our firm and your Financial Professional.
- For some investments that you purchase, we receive payments from third-parties that are in addition to the transaction-based payments described above. This is particularly true when you purchase mutual funds, education savings plans, and variable products. For example, certain mutual fund sponsors make ongoing payments to us based on invested assets and not just new investments. These include 12b-1 fees, shareholder servicing fees, and trail compensation. These third-party payments are described in further detail in the prospectus or offering materials for the investment, and also below in section 9. All of these third-party payments create incentives for us and your Financial Professional to recommend that you purchase and hold investments that entail these payments rather than investments that do not, or that entail comparatively lower payments.
- For investments with multi-share class structures, we generally receive comparatively more compensation when we recommend that you purchase or hold a share class that is likely to be more costly for you. Some investments, such as mutual funds, education savings plans, and variable products, offer multiple share classes, and depending on the share class that you purchase, we may earn higher commissions, ongoing payments and/or other compensation. These comparatively higher commissions, ongoing payments and other compensation create incentives for us and your Financial Professional to recommend that you purchase and/ or hold the share class that results in the most compensation for us and is likely to be more costly for you. Where issuers offer multi-share class structures, the lowest-cost share classes may not be available to retail investors, due to high minimum investment amounts or account type requirements (for example, only retirement or advisory accounts). You can find more information about the compensation paid on different share classes in the prospectus for the investment or by asking your Financial Professional.

In general, we have “levelized” compensation payable to our Financial Professionals in connection with purchases of variable products and alternative investments such as non-traded REITs and BDCs, with the intention of mitigating the incentive for a Financial Professional to recommend either a given investment or share class over another. This levelization process is intended to make the amount of compensation that the Financial Professional receives in connection with all share classes approximately equal if you hold the investment for a period of seven years. We have not levelized compensation payable to Financial Professionals with respect to purchases of mutual funds. As discussed in more detail in section 3, above, mutual funds are often subject to discounts on sales charges based on breakpoints or other sales charge reduction programs, but we have not levelized compensation to Financial Professionals across mutual funds and share classes.

- We are paid when you engage in rollover transactions. We may recommend that you roll over assets from your workplace retirement plan into an IRA account. When you engage in a rollover to an IRA, we and your Financial Professional will receive compensation in connection with the investments that you purchase and hold in your IRA account. We offer investment advice and services to participants in workplace retirement plans, but the compensation we receive in connection with those services is usually lower than what we would receive if you rollover those assets to an IRA. This creates incentives for us and your Financial Professional to encourage you to transfer or roll over assets from a workplace retirement plan to an IRA and to purchase investments that will result in additional compensation for us and your Financial Professional.
- We have an incentive to recommend the account type that pays us the most compensation. We can recommend that you invest through different account type arrangements, such as through a brokerage account, an account directly held with the issuer of the investment (or its transfer agent), or an investment advisory account. Depending on factors such as the type and level of services you select and the frequency of trading in your account, one of these account types may be more cost-effective for you than the others. The availability of different account types creates incentives for us to recommend the account type that results in the most compensation for us and your Financial Professional.

We have agreements with multiple clearing firms and you may pay higher fees for similar services than you would pay if you utilized the other clearing broker. We currently utilize the services of two clearing firms, Pershing and NFS. They execute transactions for customers, maintain custody of customer investment assets, and perform other services related to purchases, sales, and holdings of investment assets for customers.

Pershing and NFS perform similar services for us and our customers, but our agreements with them contain different terms. The differences include, but are not limited to, the following:

- You may pay higher fees for substantially similar services. For example, charges for execution of transactions, interest on margin loans, or fees for specific services such as delivery of transaction confirmations and account statements or execution of wire transfer payments may be higher at Pershing than at NFS.
- We have different arrangements with Pershing and NFS with respect to payments that they make to us. For example, NFS may pay us more in connection with customer margin debit balances, investment of customer cash balances, and fees paid by investment product sponsors.

If you choose to establish or maintain a brokerage account with us, your account will be held by either Pershing or NFS as the clearing broker. Since you will often pay different fees for similar services provided by the two clearing firms, it could be more cost-effective for you to establish a brokerage account at one firm rather than the other. The clearing firm that would be the most cost-effective for you depends on several factors, including the type of account that you maintain (brokerage vs. investment advisory) the type and frequency of transactions in your account, the types of assets held in your account, and the degree to which you utilize other services such as margin, checking facilities or wire transfers.

Given the fact that we have different arrangements with Pershing and NFS and that the fees you pay for utilizing each will be different, we and your Financial Professional have a financial incentive to recommend that you establish an account with one clearing broker rather than the other, based upon the type of account and types of activity that we expect to take place in your account. That creates a potential conflict between your interests and ours. In order to mitigate the potential for this conflict of interest, your Financial Professional is usually only allowed to establish or maintain brokerage accounts for customers at a single clearing broker, either Pershing or NFS. Without receiving specific approval, your Financial Professional may not recommend that their customers establish accounts at the other clearing broker or maintain accounts with both Pershing and NFS. Your Financial Professional must elect to utilize the services of only one clearing broker for all of their customer brokerage accounts and may not choose between NFS and Pershing with respect to individual customer accounts. There may be instances in which it would be more cost-effective for you to maintain an account at Pershing versus NFS, but since individual Financial Professionals are limited to utilizing only either NFS or Pershing, you may not be able to establish a brokerage account at the clearing broker that would offer you more or lower-cost services. The decision that your Financial Professional has made to utilize either NFS or Pershing could result in an economic disadvantage to you.

Schedules of account-related charges for Pershing and NFS are included in Section 3.4.1 of this document. We encourage you to review them and ask your Financial Professional if you have questions about any charges or how they are calculated. Since we generally only allow Financial Professionals to utilize a single clearing broker for brokerage accounts maintained by customers of the Financial Professional, you will not usually have the ability to choose to establish an account at a different clearing broker even if it would be advantageous to you.

5.2 Conflicts for The Firm Alone

Some conflicts exist solely or largely between the firm and the customer, primarily due to the type of payments we receive from third parties or the role that the firm plays in a transaction or service provided to customers. These are examples of material conflicts for the firm that do not directly involve the Financial Professional.

- Many issuers of the investments that our Financial Professionals recommend pay us based on the total amount of sales of their investments or the total amount of customer assets we direct to them. These payments are sometimes called revenue-sharing payments, and are described in more detail in section 9, below. Revenue-sharing payments create an incentive for us to recommend that you purchase and/or hold investments that include such payments rather than investments that do not, or entail comparatively lower payments.

- Many investment product sponsors or their affiliates also make payments to us to cover the costs associated with certain educational conferences or training seminars that we host for our Financial Professionals. These payments are generally not tied directly to total sales or customer assets, but by reimbursing us for costs involved in educating our Financial Professionals about their products, these payments reduce our expenses, increase our profit, and create an incentive for us to recommend that you purchase and/or hold investments issued by sponsors that make these payments rather than investments of those that do not, or who make comparatively lower payments. Please see section 9, below, regarding the specific issuers with whom we have arrangements for revenue sharing and other similar payments.

Pershing and NFS, our clearing brokers, make payments to us based on the amount of our total customer assets invested in certain investments as of certain dates. These payments create incentives for us to recommend that you purchase and/or hold investments that entail such payments rather than investments that do not, or entail less of such payments. In addition, certain executing broker-dealers including Pershing and NFS offer us payments for order flow, which refers to the compensation we receive for routing securities transactions to executing broker-dealers for execution. These order flow payments create incentives for us to route orders to executing broker-dealers that offer order flow payments instead of pursuing the best execution price for your transaction without regard to any order flow payments. Please see section 9, below, regarding the specific issuers with whom we have arrangements for revenue sharing and other similar payments.

5.3 Conflicts for Financial Professionals Alone

Conflicts between customers and our Financial Professionals may be caused by a variety of arrangements, including compensation arrangements, factors specific to individual customers, and outside business activities in which the Financial Professional engages. Material facts relating to these conflicts are as follows:

- Your Financial Professional receives a larger share of the compensation we receive for performing services for you as their total annual revenue increases. We pay our Financial Professionals a portion of the revenue that they generate in connection with providing services to customers. The revenue generated by transactions affected for customers is often referred to as the “gross dealer concession” or “GDC.” GDC for Financial Professionals includes both commission revenue attributable to brokerage transactions investment advisory fees attributable to customer accounts, and revenue from all accounts and products is generally accorded the same weight in determining the tier or compensation band into which the Financial Professional falls.

Our Financial Professionals receive a greater percentage of the GDC as the total annual revenue they produce for the firm increases. For example, if a Financial Professional generates $100,000 of GDC in a given year, he or she may receive approximately 75% as their portion of the compensation. If the Financial Professional generates $1 million of GDC in a given year, they could receive approximately 95% as their portion. The higher percentages are not retroactive, and are only payable on incremental revenue above a specific band or threshold. These arrangements create incentives for your Financial Professional to encourage more trading and the purchase of additional investments that result in them receiving a greater percentage of the total revenue that they generate in a given calendar year.

- Some of our managers and supervisors are paid, in whole or in part, based on the financial performance of the branches that they supervise. Our managers and supervisors oversee the sales and marketing activities of our firm, including supervision and oversight of sales practices of Financial Professionals. The compensation of some branch managers and supervisors is tied to the level of revenue or profit of the branches or region over which they have managerial or supervisory responsibility. The tying of managers’ and supervisors’ compensation to the revenue or profit of the branches or regions they supervise creates an incentive for them to spend more time on increasing production levels in a given branch or region than on their supervisory responsibilities.

- We offer loans and other financial assistance to both Financial Professionals who join us from other firms and to our current Financial Professionals. Some of the Financial Professionals that join us from other firms are provided with forgivable loans or other financial incentives to induce them to join us. If your Financial Professional has received one of these loans or is eligible for another type of payment, it creates an incentive for your Financial Professional to encourage more trading and the purchase of additional investments that result in your Financial Professional meeting production targets so that his or her loan will be forgiven by the firm or other incentive payments will be made by the firm. This conflict becomes more acute as your Financial Professional approaches his or her milestone date. (Please see section 6, below, for more information regarding transition assistance to Financial Professionals.)

- We offer to purchase the business of Financial Professionals under some circumstances, and the compensation payable to the Financial Professional depends upon factors including the type of accounts that their customers maintain with us.

In addition to transition assistance to Financial Professionals who join Cetera from other firms, we also offer arrangements under which Cetera agrees to compensate Financial Professionals for the value of their customer relationships in the event that they die, become disabled, or retire after a specified age. One such arrangement is the Legacy Builder program, which is primarily designed to allow the Financial Professional or their heirs to realize the value of their business when the Financial Professional ceases to perform investment-related services on behalf of their customers.

If a Financial Professional wishes to participate in the Legacy Builder program, they enter onto an agreement with Cetera that sets forth the circumstances under which we will purchase their business and the amount of compensation that will be paid to them, their heirs, or their estate. The amount payable is determined by the type and volume of revenue attributable to the customer accounts serviced by the Financial Professional. Revenues fall into four categories:

- Investment advisory fees attributable to management of customer assets by the Financial Professional;
- Investment advisory fees attributable to management of customer assets by investment managers other than the Financial Professional;
- Recurring sales charges or other payments such as 12b-1 fees and trail payments attributable to the sale of mutual funds, annuity contracts, and other securities; and
- Revenue attributable to sales charges or commissions that are not recurring.

The payment to the Financial Professional is greater with respect to investment advisory fees and is lower for the other categories of revenues. As a result, if a Financial Professional chooses to participate in the Legacy Builder program and their business is ultimately purchased by Cetera, the amount of compensation payable to the Financial Professional, his or her estate, or their heirs, will be greater as the revenue attributable to investment advisory fees increases. This creates an incentive for the Financial Professional to recommend that customers enter into investment advisory relationships instead of securities brokerage or other arrangements that do not include recurring revenues such as investment advisory fees. This creates a potential conflict between the interests of customers and both Cetera and the Financial Professional.

Our Financial Professionals are not required to participate in the Legacy Builder program and may generally elect to withdraw from it at any time prior to a triggering event. Financial Professionals may also enter into similar arrangements with other Financial Professionals or third parties in which another individual or entity assumes obligations similar to those of Cetera under the Legacy Builder program. All such agreements are negotiated between the Financial Professional and the other party, and Cetera is not involved with them. If you have questions about your Financial Professional's participation in the Legacy Builder or other similar arrangements, please ask your Financial Professional for additional information.

- Financial Professionals receive reimbursement for some or all of their travel and related expenses to attend events based on the revenue that they generate. We sponsor conferences, meetings, and other educational events in various locations that are attended by our Financial Professionals. Some of these meetings include social events such as dinners and recreational activities in addition to educational or business functions. Financial Professionals receive reimbursement for some or all of their travel and related expenses to attend these events, the amount of which is generally based on the amount of revenue that they produce in a given year. Financial Professionals who produce larger amounts of revenue are generally reimbursed for a larger percentage of the cost of attending events than Financial Professionals who produce smaller amounts of revenue.
- Some of our Financial Professionals receive additional training and support from product sponsors. Certain product sponsors and their affiliates provide our Financial Professionals with more training and administrative support services than others. If your Financial Professional receives this additional training and support, creates an incentive for them to recommend investments sponsored by firms that provide such training and services over those that do not, even if such investments are not necessarily in your best interest. (Please see section 6, below for additional discussion regarding marketing assistance and other payments from investment product sponsors.)
- Some of our Financial Professionals' marketing efforts are subsidized by wholesalers. Some of our Financial Professionals receive reimbursements or direct payments from employees of investment product sponsors as reimbursement for marketing expenses they incur in connection with the distribution of investment products sponsored by those sponsors. If your Financial Professional receives such reimbursements or direct payments, they create an incentive for her or him to recommend investments that entail these reimbursements or payments over investments that do not, even if such investments are not necessarily in your best interest. (Please see section 6, below for additional information regarding marketing assistance and other similar payments).
- Some Financial Professionals have outside business activities that compete for their time. The large majority of our Financial Professionals are independent contractors and not employees of Cetera Advisor Networks, and they may engage in business activities outside of their work with us. (These are commonly referred to as "Outside Business Activities, or "OBAs.") If your Financial Professional engages in any outside business activities, these activities can create an incentive for your Financial Professional to spend more time on the outside business activity rather than on his or her relationship with you. You may research any outside business activities your Financial Professional has by viewing FINRA's BrokerCheck website at <https://brokercheck.finra.org>.

- In addition, some of our Financial Professionals offer non-securities investment products and services on their own or through entities that are not affiliated with us. Examples include sales of life, health, and property and casualty insurance and sales of investment products that are not deemed securities, such as fixed and fixed-indexed annuities. These investment products may be similar to investments that the Financial Profession offers through us, but may offer greater compensation to the Financial Professional than a similar product that we offer. This creates an incentive for Financial Professionals to recommend investment products and services that offer greater compensation to them than they could earn through provision of similar services though us.
- Some Financial Professionals provide investment advisory services through companies that are not affiliated with us. In addition to the non-securities-related outside business activities noted above, some of our Financial Professionals offer investment advisory services through ORIAs. Aspects of the investment recommendations that Financial Professionals make to customers through ORIAs are subject to our supervision and oversight, but the services the ORIA provides and the fees they charge may be different from those available through us. If your Financial Professional offers investment advisory services through an ORIA, he or she will provide you with a written disclosure of that fact, and will provide you with a copy of the Form ADV for the ORIA. If the revenue that your Financial Professional receives from the ORIA for providing investment advisory services is greater than that which he or she would receive from us for providing similar services, they have an incentive to recommend that you contract for investment advisory services through the ORIA instead of through CIS.

6. COMPENSATION AND OTHER BENEFITS THAT WE PAY OUR FINANCIAL PROFESSIONALS

We provide investment-related services to customers through our Financial Professionals. They receive a portion of the compensation that you pay us in connection with providing brokerage, investment advisory, and other services to you. The portion of the compensation that they receive is negotiated between your Financial Professional and us and is primarily based on the amount of revenue that they produce each year. In general, the more revenue a Financial Professional produces in a given year, the greater the percentage of the gross compensation we pay them. The types and amounts of compensation payable to Financial Professionals are described below. In addition to receiving a portion of the compensation that you pay us for providing brokerage and advisory services to you, your Financial Professional may receive some or all of the following from us or third parties as additional compensation.

- Transition Loans and Assistance: Some of our Financial Professionals receive payments from us at the time that they join us. These payments are designed primarily to cover costs that these Financial Professionals incur in connection with transferring customer assets to us, but the amount of the payment that we make to them is often more than the amount of the actual costs incurred in the transition process. Transition assistance of this type is common in the financial services industry, and usually takes the form of a loan to the Financial Professional that may be paid off partially or in full by achieving certain milestones such as remaining affiliated with us for a specified period of time or maintaining a specified dollar amount of customer assets with us. Loans are offered to Financial Professionals at our discretion and vary in amount and terms. The principal amounts are advanced to the Financial Professional either upon joining us, or a portion upon joining with the remaining amount advanced upon a certain threshold of assets being moved to accounts with us.
- In addition to transition loans and assistance, we also offer loans or other financial incentives to Financial Professionals who are already associated with us. These loans or other financial assistance may be used to finance growth of the Financial Professional's business, to acquire assets including customer relationships and accounts from other Financial Professionals, or for other activities intended to increase the revenue of the Financial Professional.
- Loans are forgiven or paid off in parts at regular intervals based on a Financial Professional's continued affiliation in good standing with us and/or upon generating a certain amount of revenue or maintaining a specified amount of assets in customer accounts. If your Financial Professional has received a loan in connection with joining us and repayment of all or part of it is conditioned upon the Financial Professional remaining affiliated with us for a specified period of time or maintaining a specified level of assets in accounts with us, or he or she has an incentive to recommend that you deposit assets and/or establish accounts with us. Repayment or forgiveness of loans that we make to Financial Professionals is not conditioned upon the sale of any specific product or service, including specific investment advisory programs. A Financial Professional is responsible for paying back any amounts owed if he or she fails to abide by the terms of the loan or related agreements, including but not limited to failure to maintain affiliation with us. Loans of this type create an incentive for the Financial Professional to select us to service your account(s) and remain with us for the duration of the loan forgiveness term instead of joining another firm that may not offer loans or other consideration.

- Marketing support and assistance: We and the companies whose investment products we offer reimburse Financial Professionals for the cost of attending meetings or events in which Financial Professionals receive training and education regarding investment products that are created or managed by sponsor firms. In addition, some product sponsors reimburse Financial Professionals for costs incurred in producing educational or marketing material and events for customers or prospective customers of the Financial Professional. The amount that any given product sponsor reimburses to a Financial Professional is negotiated between the sponsor and the Financial Professional, subject to specific limits imposed by FINRA rules. You may be invited to attend seminars or training and educational meetings regarding investment products. If you attend a training or educational meeting with your financial advisor and a product sponsor is present, you should assume that the product sponsor has paid for all or a portion of the cost of the meeting or event, including the cost of travel to the event and any meals or accommodations offered. Additionally, product sponsors provide business entertainment or gifts of nominal value to our Financial Professionals and employees and reimburse them for the purchase of computer software or other similar items that they use in conducting their securities business. If a product sponsor reimburses a Financial Professional for the cost of attending educational meetings, producing educational or marketing events for customers or prospective customers, software, or other costs of marketing and promotion, the Financial Professional has an incentive to recommend that customers purchase investment products or services offered by that sponsor instead of other sponsors.
 - Other Cash and Non-Cash Compensation. In addition to reimbursement of training and educational meeting costs, we and our Financial Professionals receive promotional items, meals, entertainment or other non-cash compensation from investment product sponsors, as permitted by applicable regulation and rules. Additionally, sales of any mutual funds, variable products, and alternative investment products, including those offered by Strategic Partners, often qualify our Financial Professionals for additional business support and for attendance at seminars, conferences and entertainment events. Some of our home-office management and certain other employees receive a portion of their compensation based on sales of products offered by Strategic Partners and sponsors of other investment products.

7. LIMITATIONS ON THE SERVICES THAT WE PROVIDE TO YOU

We offer securities brokerage and investment advisory services and sales of insurance products. Most of our Financial Professionals offer all of these services to customers. After consultation with you, your Financial Professional will recommend the type(s) of account, products, and services that they reasonably believe best fit your circumstances and objectives, based upon the information you provide them.

Some of our Financial Professionals offer only specific types of services or products. This may be due to their desire to concentrate their business on a group of customers or services, or in some cases the Financial Professional may not have all of the qualifications (such as licenses) necessary to offer a given product or service. If your Financial Professional does not offer all of the services that are described herein or available through us, he or she will inform you the services they provide and the limitations that may result. If you have questions about limitations on the ability of your Financial Professional to provide any type of investment-related service, please consult with your Financial Professional.

We do not require a minimum investment amount in order to establish or maintain a brokerage account with us. However, many sponsors of investment products have minimum investment amounts for investment products that you purchase, and may limit investment in their products to customers who have minimum levels of investment experience, income, total assets, or liquid assets.

Please consult with your Financial Professional and review the prospectus, if applicable, for any investment that you are considering to help you better understand the investment options, risks, investment conditions, and costs. If you maintain a brokerage account with us, you will pay certain charges in connection with it. (Please see section 3, above.) Certain additional charges may apply if the dollar value of the assets in your account declines below a certain level.

All of our investment advisory programs require minimum initial deposits. In our sole discretion we may waive the minimum account size. If you establish a new account and deposit funds less than the minimum opening balance requirement, your funds will not be managed until the minimum dollar amount is met. Any cash that you deposit will be placed into the Cash Sweep Program (Please see the description of our Cash Sweep Program in section 10., below) until the minimum opening balance requirements are met. Information regarding minimum investment amounts for all of our investment advisory programs can be obtained by reviewing our Form ADV Part 2A at <https://cetera.com/cetera-advisor-networks/disclosures>.

8. HOW WE SELECT THE INVESTMENT PRODUCTS AND SERVICES THAT WE OFFER

There are many types of securities and other investment products available to investors. We offer investments that are created and managed by many investment product sponsors. They include the investment products described in this document in addition to others. The product sponsors and specific investments that we offer will change from time to time.

We offer many different investments and investment products, but we do not offer all of the investments or investment product types that are available through other broker-dealers, financial advisers, or investment sponsors. We have a professional staff that reviews all of the investment products we offer. They consider the underlying characteristics of the product, who manages it, the risks that it involves, under what circumstances it is expected to produce investment returns, and other relevant factors. When we approve a given product, it is added to our firm's "approved products" list and may be offered to customers by our Financial Professionals. Some broker-dealers sponsor investment products themselves or offer investment products that are sponsored by affiliated companies. These are often referred to as "proprietary" products, meaning that they are created, sold, and/or managed by related entities. We offer investment advisory programs in which we manage investments and receive advisory fees, but neither we nor any of our affiliated companies create, sponsor, or manage securities or investment products.

In order to help our Financial Professionals better understand the investment products that we offer to our customers, we limit the investments they offer to those on our approved products list, and Financial Professionals are not permitted to offer or recommend any security that is not on the approved products list. The approved products list is based upon our evaluation of which investments offer a combination of characteristics, risks, and benefits that are designed with the goal of producing the expected investment outcome. All investments involve risk, and there is no guarantee that the investments we offer will produce any investment returns or returns that exceed those from comparable investments that we do not offer. All investments have a risk of loss, up to and including total loss, and in some cases exceeding the amount of the investment. We revise our approved products list from time to time based on market conditions, when new products become available, demand from our customers, and our view of economic and other conditions relating to investments.

In providing investment advice and other services to you we rely upon information that you provide to us, including your risk tolerance, investment experience, investment timeframe, liquidity needs, income, assets in accounts with us and those that you have with other institutions, and liquid assets. In many cases, we impose limitations on the offer or sale of specific investments to our customers depending upon their circumstances and the information that they provide to us. Some investments involve higher levels of risk, may be "illiquid" (not traded on an established public market or otherwise more difficult to sell or liquidate), or may not otherwise be appropriate for all of our customers for other reasons. In some cases, we require that a customer have a specified level of income, assets, total or liquid net worth, or not exceed a certain age in order to purchase a given investment. For all of these reasons, it is important that you disclose accurately and completely all material aspects of your financial situation to your Financial Professional and to us because we rely on that information in making recommendations to you. If you would like additional information regarding investments that may be restricted to certain purchasers, please consult with your Financial Professional.

9. PAYMENTS WE RECEIVE FROM THIRD PARTIES

As an investor, it is important for you to understand the fees and charges associated with your investments, the compensation we receive, and the conflicts of interest that they create for us and your Financial Professional when we recommend investments to you. The information below is intended to help you understand various forms of compensation that we receive in addition to sales charges and ongoing compensation that we and your Financial Professional earn when you purchase a mutual fund, variable product, education savings plan, direct participation program, or alternative investment product such as a non-traded REIT or non-traded BDC.

Compensation arrangements for the investments we offer are described in more detail in the prospectus and/or Statement of Additional Information (SAI) for each mutual fund, variable product, or other investment, in the plan document for a 529 college savings plan, or in other documents prepared by the product sponsor. We have also summarized compensation that we receive in connection with certain investments in section 3, above.

In addition to the commissions and sales charges that we receive in connection with purchases and sales of mutual funds, variable products, alternative investments, and other securities, we also receive additional payments from sponsors of investment products. These include ongoing payments based on sales of products, the value of customer assets managed or held by product sponsors, and other factors described below. Your Financial Professional does not generally share in the additional payments that we receive from product sponsors. He or she receives a portion of the initial sales charge and other ongoing compensation such as 12b-1 fees that we receive from the product sponsor, but the payments described below are usually retained exclusively by the firm. Since we receive these additional payments, we have an incentive to recommend that you purchase or hold certain investment products and to encourage your Financial Professional to recommend that you purchase investments sponsored by companies that pay us additional compensation.

9.1 The Strategic Partners Program - Mutual Funds and Variable Products

We offer more than 1,000 mutual funds sponsored by more than 50 mutual fund companies, and more than 100 variable annuity and variable life insurance contracts sponsored by more than 20 insurance companies. We concentrate our marketing and training efforts on investments offered by a limited number of select and well-known investment sponsors, known as our Strategic Partners. Strategic Partners are selected, in part, based on their size, attributes of their products, technology, customer service and training capabilities. Strategic Partners receive benefits from us including more opportunities than other product sponsors to meet with and educate our Financial Professionals on investments and the products they offer. For a current list of our Strategic Partners, please see our website at <https://cetera.com/cetera-advisor-networks/disclosures>.

Our Strategic Partners pay us compensation in addition to the customary sales charges and ongoing compensation described above. In addition to the sales charges or commissions and 12b-1 fees that you pay in connection with purchases of mutual funds and the sales charges and trail commissions on purchases of variable products, Strategic Partners make additional payments to us. The amounts paid vary by Strategic Partner and from year-to-year. The payments from Strategic Partners do not come directly from your investment or reduce its value, and do not affect the potential return on your investment over time. Revenue-sharing is paid by the mutual fund and insurance companies and/or their affiliates out of their assets or earnings.

Strategic Partners pay us up to 0.50% of the total purchase amount of your mutual fund or variable product purchase. (For example, if you invest $10,000 in a mutual fund, we would be paid up to $50.00 in addition to the usual sales charges and ongoing fees that we receive in connection with mutual fund sales). In addition, Strategic Partners pay us up to 0.15% per year based on the value of the assets you hold in the variable product or mutual fund which is broken down by fund family as follows:

Fund Strategic Partner Payment Table
One-time Payment Based on Sales Amount (bps* range)	Name of Fund Family
5 – 25 bps	Fidelity Advisors Invesco Pacific Life PIMCO	Putnam Transamerica Mutual Funds

Ongoing Annual Payment Based on Assets (bps*)	Name of Fund Family
2 – 9 bps	American Funds Blackrock Fidelity Advisors First Trust Franklin Templeton John Hancock	Lord Abbett Pacific Life PIMCO Putnam Wisdom Tree Global X
10 – 15 bps	Amundi Pioneer Cantor Fitzgerald Columbia Management DWS Asset Management Eaton Vance Federated Goldman Sachs	Invesco JP Morgan New York Life Mainstay PGIM Virtus Investment Partners Voya Investment Management

*Strategic Partner payments are calculated using basis points. One basis point equals .01%. For example, 10 bps on $100,000 of assets equals $100.

 Wisdom Tree and Global X have a blended rate which combines a flat asset-based fee and a percentage of the funds' net expense ratio (i.e., 15% for Global X and 25% for Wisdom Tree).

9.2 Conflicts of Interest in Our Revenue-Sharing Programs with Strategic Partners

We are paid more revenue-sharing fees if you purchase one type of investment product instead of another and/or if you purchase a product from one sponsor instead of another. This creates an incentive for us to recommend that you purchase or maintain investments sponsored by Strategic Partners or other product sponsors that make revenue-sharing payments to us. Our Financial Professionals generally do not directly receive any portion the revenue-sharing payments from Strategic Partners or other product sponsors described above, but they do indirectly benefit from Strategic Partner payments when the money is used to increase compensation to Financial Professionals, support costs relating to product review, marketing or training, waiver of ticket charges, or for other activities that may indirectly benefit Financial Professionals. As a result, both we and your Financial Professional have an incentive to recommend that you purchase or hold investments sponsored by companies that make revenue-sharing payments to us instead of those that do not. In general, all investment product sponsors whose products are on our approved products list pay us some form of revenue-sharing, and we do not normally include investment sponsors on our approved products list if they do not make revenue-sharing payments.

When you purchase a mutual fund or an Exchange-Traded Partner product in a brokerage account, we or your Financial Professional pay a transaction fee or “ticket charge” to Pershing or NFS in connection with that transaction. The amount of the ticket charge is currently up to $30 per transaction and is subject to change. The mutual fund and Exchange-Traded Product sponsors that participate in the Strategic Partner Program subsidize some or all of these ticket charges, either as part of the compensation described above or by paying us a fee in connection with each transaction. Transactions that qualify for ticket charge waivers vary depending on the Strategic Partner. In general, the ticket charge will be waived or reimbursed by the Strategic Partner in connection with purchases of mutual funds in the amount of $2,500 or more. The mutual funds that we offer can also be purchased without a ticket charge by executing purchases directly with the mutual fund sponsor instead of in a brokerage account. (Please see the discussion of direct mutual fund holdings in section 2, above.) The fact that Strategic Partner firms reimburse us for all or a portion of the ticket charges applicable to transactions creates an incentive for us to recommend that you purchase mutual funds offered by Strategic Partners over those of other mutual fund sponsors.

9.3 The Exchange-Traded Products Partner Program

In addition to mutual funds and other investment products, we offer several ETPs. ETPs generally consist of a pool of assets such as stocks or fixed-income investments, but customers do not purchase them directly from the fund sponsor. Instead, ETPs are traded on organized exchanges similar to stocks or other equities. We have an exchange-traded products Partner program (the “ETP Partner Program”), which is similar to our Strategic Partner Program. A current list of our ETP Partners is set forth below and can also be reviewed on our website, at <https://cetera.com/cetera-advisor-networks/disclosures>.

An ETP Partner pays extra compensation to us in addition to commissions and sales charges that we receive in connection with purchases and sales of products that they sponsor. The additional amounts vary from one ETP Partner to another and from year-to-year. In general, an ETP Partner pays us the greater of:

- An annual flat fee of up to 0.25% (0.0025) of the ETP’s net expense ratio (as set forth in the prospectus or supplement) of the Fund’s average daily balance during the quarter. If 0.25% of the ETP’s next expense ratio does not exceed the flat fee we would still be paid the flat fee; or
- (Up to 0.07% (.0007) annually on all of our customer assets under management by the product sponsor. (For each $10,000 average daily balance of an ETP Partner’s total assets under management held by our clients, we would be paid up to $7.00 on an annual basis).

These payments are paid by the ETP Partner and/or their affiliates out of the assets or earnings of the ETP Partner and constitute additional revenue for us. They do not affect the returns on your investment.

9.3.1 Conflicts of Interest in Revenue-Sharing and Ticket Charge Waiver Programs with ETP Partners

We receive more revenue if you purchase an ETP Partner product than if you purchase a similar product from a sponsor that is not an ETP Partner. Our Financial Professionals do not directly receive any portion of these payments, but they benefit indirectly from ETP Partner payments when the money is used to support compensation to Financial Professionals, costs relating to product review, marketing or training as described above, waiver of ticket charges, or other expenditures that directly or indirectly benefit the Financial Professional. When you purchase an ETP Partner product, we absorb the ticket charge for each transaction, which would normally be paid by you or your Financial Professional. In general, the ticket charge will be waived in connection with purchases of ETP Partner products in an amount of $2,500.00 or more. If we absorb the ticket charge associated with an ETP Partner product that the Financial Professional would have otherwise had to pay, it creates a conflict of interest between your Financial Professional and you because he or she has a financial incentive to recommend an ETP Partner Product over a product from a sponsor that is not an ETP Partner.

9.4 Direct Participation Programs and Alternative Investment Products

We offer a wide variety of alternative investment products including non-traded REITs and BDCs, limited partnerships and direct participation programs, Section 1031 exchange programs, and oil and gas programs (collectively “Alternative Investment Products”). As noted above, these are often higher risk investments and are not suitable for all investors. In addition to commissions and sales charges that we receive in connection with customer purchases of these products, we receive marketing allowance payments from product sponsors. The additional compensation we receive varies with each sponsor of an Alternative Investment Product. Some sponsors pay a marketing allowance fee of either:

- Up to 0.25% (0.0025) annually on assets held in the Alternative Investment Product. (0.25% of a $10,000 investment is $25.00 per year.); or

- Up to 1.50% on the gross amount of each customer purchase, depending on the product. (1.50% of a $10,000 investment is $150.00.) These payments constitute additional revenue to us. They do not directly reduce the value of your investment or affect your investment return and are paid by the product sponsor out of the assets or earnings of the product sponsor. Your Financial Professional does not receive additional compensation for selling products from sponsors that pay us such additional compensation, but Financial Professionals benefit indirectly from alternative investment product partner payments when the money is used to support compensation to Financial Professionals or costs relating to product review, marketing or training, waivers of ticket charges or other similar expenditures.

We are paid more revenue-sharing fees if you purchase one type of Alternative Investment Product instead of another and/or if you purchase a product from one sponsor instead of another. Your Financial Professional also indirectly benefits from these sponsor payments when the money is used to support costs relating to product review, marketing or training. This creates an incentive for us to recommend that you purchase or maintain an Alternative Investment Product instead of one that does not pay us similar compensation.

For a current list of the Alternative Product sponsors that pay us additional compensation, please see our website at <https://cetera.com/cetera-advisor-networks/disclosures>.

9.5 Retirement Strategic Partners Program

We also receive certain revenue-sharing payments from third parties such as retirement plan recordkeeping platforms, investment managers, and issuers of annuities that offer products to certain tax-qualified retirement plans such as Section 401(k), 403(b), 457, and other employer-sponsored retirement plans. These firms are referred to as our “Retirement Partners” and participate in activities that are designed to help facilitate the distribution of their products and services such as marketing activities and educational programs, including attendance at conferences and presentations to our Financial Professionals. These revenue-sharing payments are fixed annual dollar amounts that do not depend on the amount you invest in any product or if you utilize the services of the Retirement Partner. Retirement Partners also pay or reimburse some of our expenses or provide non-cash items and services to facilitate training and educational meetings for our Financial Professionals. These payments do not depend on the amount of the Plan’s investment in any product or utilization of any Retirement Partners’ service. Your Financial Professional does not receive additional compensation for selling or recommending a Retirement Partner product or service, but he or she does indirectly benefit from these sponsor payments when they are used to support costs relating to product review, marketing or training. The fact that we receive compensation from Retirement Partners creates an incentive for us to recommend that you purchase products or services from them instead of other providers who do not make similar payments to us.

9.6 Section 529 Education Saving Plans

A Section 529 education savings plan is a plan that allows individuals to save for college or other qualified education expenses on a tax-advantaged basis. Every state offers at least one Section 529 plan.

If you purchase an education savings plan through us, we receive compensation from the program sponsor in much the same manner as when you purchase mutual funds. In addition to sales charges and ongoing payments that we and your Financial Professional receive as compensation for sales of 529 plans, 529 plan assets are included in the amount of total mutual fund or variable annuity assets for which we receive payments from Strategic Partners described above. This creates an incentive for us to recommend that you purchase products or services from them instead of other providers who do not make similar payments to us.

9.7 Insurance Agency Compensation

In addition to securities and investment advisory services, we also offer and sell insurance products that are not securities. Sales of these products may be made through us or our affiliated insurance agencies. We receive selling commissions when we sell fixed annuities and life insurance (Insurance Products) to our customers. A portion of those commissions are paid to your Financial Professional and a portion is retained by us or our affiliated insurance agencies. Although we make a wide variety of Insurance Products available, we concentrate our marketing and training efforts on those that are issued by a limited number of insurance companies (Designated Insurance Companies). Designated Insurance Companies have greater access to and more opportunities to provide training and education to our Financial Professionals. Some Designated Insurance Companies make payments to us in addition to sales commissions. These payments are generally either a flat fee or a percentage of the total premiums received by a Designated Insurance Company each year. For fixed and fixed-indexed annuities, Designated Insurance Companies pay us the greater of an annual flat fee or up to 0.50% of the total purchase amount of their products. Although these payments are not shared with your Financial Professional, your Financial Professional benefits indirectly by receiving greater training and education from Designated Insurance Product sponsors. The fact that we receive compensation from Designated Insurance Companies creates an incentive for us to recommend that you purchase products or services from them instead of other providers that do not make similar payments to us.

Lists of our Strategic Partners and the other product and platform sponsors that make revenue-sharing or other similar payments to us can be viewed on our website at <https://cetera.com/cetera-advisor-networks/disclosures>.

10. EMPLOYER-SPONSORED RETIREMENT SAVINGS PROGRAMS AND IRA ROLLOVERS

Many employers offer retirement savings plans in which their employees participate. These include Section 401(k), 403(b), and 457 plans, among others. If you are changing jobs or retiring, one of the most important financial decisions you may face is how to handle the money you have accumulated in your workplace retirement plan, and you may choose to transfer your retirement assets from the employer-sponsored plan to an Individual Retirement Account (IRA). You may also be considering a transfer of funds from your existing IRA to another IRA.

You generally have several options to consider in making an IRA rollover. Each of these has advantages and disadvantages and the one that is best depends upon your individual circumstances. You should consider features such as investment choices, fees and expenses, services offered, and potential tax consequences, both at the time you leave your job and afterward. (Please see “Things to Consider When Making an IRA Rollover” at <https://cetera.com/cetera-advisor-networks/disclosures>.)

We provide investment advice and services to retirement plan sponsors and individual participants, but the compensation that we receive is usually much less than what we would receive in connection with similar advice and recommendations to you in connection with an IRA account. As such, we have an incentive to recommend that you transfer or roll over the assets in your employer-sponsored plan to an IRA so that we will receive compensation in the form of sales charges, commissions, and/or investment advisory fees and other types of compensation. The fees, expenses, and other costs associated with investments in an IRA will usually be higher than if you held similar assets in the employer-sponsored plan. For example, you may pay annual investment-related expenses of less than 1% in connection with purchase or ownership of mutual funds in an employer-sponsored plan, whereas if you purchase similar mutual funds in an IRA, you would pay higher fees for commissions, 12b-1 fees, and other expenses. (Please see the discussion of mutual fund share Classes in section 3, above.) For these reasons, there are conflicts between your interests and ours when we recommend that you undertake an IRA rollover.

Things you should consider in connection with a rollover include the following:

- Fees and expenses. Investment expenses in an IRA depend largely on the investment choices that you make, but will almost always be higher than those in your workplace retirement plan. Expenses in connection with an IRA include sales charges or commissions, management or other expenses charged by sponsors of investment products such as mutual funds or annuities, account maintenance fees, investment advisory fees, 12b-1 fees or trail payments, and others. Fees applicable to investments in an employer-sponsored retirement plan are often subsidized by the employer and therefore lower than would be applicable to purchases of similar investments in an IRA due to economies of scale and the costs applicable to different mutual fund share classes. (Please see the discussion of mutual fund share classes, particularly Class R shares, in section 3, above. You should consult with your tax professional and the administrator of your retirement plan to get an understanding of the fees and expenses charged by your current plan and compare those with the expenses that you would incur if your retirement savings were held in an IRA. It is important that you share information about your current retirement savings plans with your Financial Professional since he or she will need complete and accurate information to help with their recommendation to you.)
- Breadth of investment offerings. In general, IRAs offer a broader range of investment products than employer-sponsored plans. You should consult with your Financial Professional or the sponsor of your employer-sponsored plan to compare the types of investment options available in each case and their associated cost.
- Access to personalized management. IRAs offer you the ability to receive investment advice and recommendations that relate specifically to you and your financial circumstances. Most employer-sponsored plans either do not offer personalized investment advice or have limitations on the type of advice that they offer.
- Availability of guaranteed payments. Annuity contracts and similar investment products often give owners the ability to receive death benefits and specified payments of income, for either a set term or for the life of the owner or other beneficiary. Most employer-sponsored plans do not offer annuity contracts or similar investment products that include guaranteed payments.

There are many sources of information about IRA rollovers and the considerations that may come into play when you make a decision. The SEC and FINRA have both published information about this process, which you can review at the following websites:

11. CASH IN YOUR BROKERAGE OR ADVISORY ACCOUNT – OUR CASH SWEEP PROGRAMS

At any time, you may have a cash balance in your brokerage or investment advisory account from deposits into the account, the proceeds of securities transactions, dividend and interest payments, or other activities. We offer a facility referred to as “Cash Sweep Programs” that automatically moves uninvested cash balances from your account into a cash sweep product chosen specifically for your account type. Based on your account type, cash balances in that account will be swept into either an FDIC-insured bank deposit program or a money-market mutual fund pending subsequent investment of the cash. If you have a cash balance in your account and do not instruct us otherwise, the cash balance will be swept from your account daily and deposited as described below.

We offer two FDIC-insured bank deposit programs (Bank Deposit Programs) that automatically move the uninvested cash balances in your eligible accounts into interest-bearing deposit accounts at one or more Bank Deposit Program banks (Program Banks). As shown in the table below, the two Bank Deposit Programs – the FlexInsured Account® and the Insured Deposit Sweep Account – are available to different types of investment accounts. Program Banks that participate in the Bank Deposit Programs pay us substantial fees based on the amount of cash deposited with them from customer accounts and other market factors. Our receipt of payments from Program Banks that participate in the Bank Deposit Programs creates a significant incentive for us to utilize Bank Deposit Programs for sweeping cash balances from your eligible account instead of into a money-market mutual fund, fixed income instrument, or other product.

The interest rate payable to you on balances deposited in Program Banks through the Bank Deposit Programs will almost always be lower than what you could obtain by holding a money-market mutual fund or other alternative product. Additionally, we will almost always receive more fees from Program Banks in connection with your cash in the Bank Deposit Programs than the amount of interest you receive.

As an alternative to the automatic cash sweep feature, a variety of money market mutual funds or other products can be purchased in your brokerage account. You can elect to discontinue the automatic sweep program at any time by contacting your Financial Professional. We reserve the right to change the eligibility criteria for the Cash Sweep Programs and may change the products available in the Cash Sweep Programs. We encourage you to review the detailed terms and conditions of the Cash Sweep Programs contained in the applicable disclosure statement or prospectus.

Default Sweep Program by Account Type

• Advisory Individual Retirement Account	Insured Deposit Sweep Account – Bank Deposit Program
• Brokerage and Advisory 403(b) Accounts and Advisory ERISA Accounts, including Advisory 401(k), and Advisory Qualified Plan	Federated Hermes Treasury Obligations Fund – Money Market Fund Sweep

FDIC Insurance on Deposits in Program Banks

Balances on deposit through the Bank Deposit Programs are eligible for FDIC insurance up to $250,000 at each Program Bank per depositor by category of legal ownership. For example, funds held by an individual and deposited at a Program Bank are insured up to $250,000 at that Program Bank and funds held jointly by two or more people and deposited at a Program Bank are insured up to $250,000 per joint owner. Once the insurable limit at a Program Bank is reached, additional amounts are deposited in other Program Banks until the applicable program limit is reached. Any money you hold at a Program Bank outside of the Bank Deposit Programs may impact the insurance coverage available. Additionally, deposits at Program Banks are not guaranteed by the Securities Investor Protection Corporation (SIPC), which provides investors with some protection from losses if their brokerage firm becomes insolvent. Balances in our Bank Deposit Programs in excess of applicable program limits will be deposited at Program Banks and may not be FDIC insured.

More Information

For detailed information on FDIC insurance limits and the calculation of interest rates and fees, please see the applicable product disclosure, which you can obtain from your Financial Professional. A list of participating financial institutions, current rates and product disclosures are also available at the following product websites:

FlexInsured Account®: <https://cetera.com/cetera-advisor-networks/disclosures>

Insured Deposit Sweep Account: <https://cetera.com/cetera-advisor-networks/disclosures>

Money market funds are securities and are therefore eligible for SIPC protection. SIPC provides account protection when a SIPC member firm fails and is unable to meet obligations to securities customers, but it does not protect against losses from the rise and fall in the value of investments. Money market funds are securities that may increase or decrease in value. In general, money market funds are designed and managed with the objective of preservation of capital and maintenance of liquidity. Unlike bank deposits, an investment in a money market fund is not FDIC-insured or guaranteed by any other government agency. Although money market funds seek to preserve a net asset value of $1.00 per share, there is no guarantee that this will occur. It is possible to lose money by investing in a money market fund, including loss of principal.

More Information

For more complete information about any of the money market funds available under the Cash Sweep Program, carefully read the applicable prospectus. Please consider the investment objectives, risks, charges and expenses carefully before investing. The prospectus, which contains this and other information, can be obtained by contacting your Financial Professional. You may also obtain information with respect to the current yields available on the money market funds by contacting your Financial Professional.

12. ADDITIONAL INFORMATION ABOUT US

SEC and FINRA rules provide that certain types of legal and disciplinary matters involving broker-dealers and individuals associated with them must be reported through the Central Registration Depository (CRD) system. Both we and some of our Financial Professionals have legal and disciplinary disclosures. For additional information about us and our Financial Professionals, visit Investor.gov or BrokerCheck (BrokerCheck.Finra.org), review the Form ADV Part 2B for your Financial Professional, our website <https://cetera.com/cetera-advisor-networks/disclosures> and your account agreement. For additional information on advisory services, see our Form ADV brochure on IARD, or on Investor.gov.

Depending on various factors, your registered representative may be able to offer two primary types of services – commission-based and fee-based. These services may be offered by themselves or in combination, and you should consult with your registered representative to determine which are available to you. Either way, it is important to understand the differences.

COMMISSION-BASED BROKERAGE SERVICES

Brokerage services are commission based, meaning registered representatives and brokerage firms are paid a commission – and in some cases a trailing commission – for each transaction. The amount of that commission varies depending on the security or investment product. The sales charges for each product are described in the prospectus or other offering documents. The registered representative needs your permission to make each transaction and will present you with products that are suitable for your needs and financial situation.

ADVANTAGES

- Cost-effective solution for investment products that do not need active, ongoing management.
- Typically no minimum balance requirement for commission-based accounts.
- Commissions are paid as transactions occur.
- Straightforward transaction costs.
- Ideal if you plan to only make a one-time purchase of an investment.

TRADEOFFS

- Commissions are paid every time you buy or sell a security product along with trailing commissions (e.g. 12B-1s) from a fund company.
- You may not know about payment incentives a registered representative receives from a recommendation.
- Front-load sales charges reduce your net investable amount.
- Brokerage accounts use retail share classes that can translate into higher internal fund expenses.
- Your registered representative will not have discretion to actively manage your brokerage account – you must consent to each transaction, which may present challenges if you travel or when an investment reaches a pricing threshold.
- Commissions are not tax deductible (for more details, speak to your tax professional).

EXAMPLES

- Individual sales of securities, such as stocks
- Mutual funds and exchange-traded funds
- Fixed income instruments, such as bonds
- Insurance, such as annuities
- 529 plans

FEE-BASED ADVISORY SERVICES

In a fee-based or advisory relationship, you generally pay a fee that is a percentage of the account's value, or a fixed fee per service for personalized advice and guidance, instead of a commission for each trade. In this capacity, you typically receive the following services:

- Portfolio construction,
- Investment recommendations,
- Ongoing investment advice, and
- Financial planning tailored to your unique goals and timelines.

ADVANTAGES

- Fee-based services align the performance of your advisory accounts with the compensation received by your investment adviser representative since it is not tied to transaction charges or sales commissions.
- You can grant discretion, which allows proactive management of your account in real time according to your risk profile: if an investment reaches a pricing threshold, it can be traded without asking for your permission.

- You and your investment adviser representative will meet as often as needed to ensure your investment policy is tracking toward its goals, and you will receive regular performance reports that document your progress.
 - Advisory fees are either a fixed amount per service or a fixed percentage of your accounts' values, so the fees that you pay are directly proportional to the services provided and performance of your accounts and are listed in your performance reports.

TRADEOFFS

- Fee-based accounts generally require a higher investment minimum relative to a brokerage account.
- May not be cost effective if you want to buy and hold a small number of securities.
- Not ideal if you want to make a one-time purchase of a security (such as a stock or mutual fund) or only want occasional recommendations on investments.
- May not be favorable if you prefer to pay fees based on transactions.

EXAMPLES

- Advice on specific investment products
- Portfolio design and periodic rebalancing
- Active portfolio management
- Hands-on investment strategies for specific conditions, such as market volatility or changing legislative environments
- Sophisticated solutions for wealth transfer planning

THINGS TO CONSIDER: COMMISSION-BASED VS. FEE-BASED ACCOUNTS

	Commission-Based (Brokerage)	Fee-Based (Advisory)
Level of Contact	Less frequent contact, usually initiated by the client	High level of contact, usually initiated by the investment adviser representative
Compensation Structure	Commission paid on every transaction	Regularly paid fees, either as a flat fee or, more commonly, as a percentage of assets under management
Product and Services	Exchange-traded securities, such as stocks, mutual funds, bonds, etc.; some private placement products	A wide range of securities, products and services based on the advisory program selected; the client receives regular and ongoing investment advice
Client Involvement	Mid- to high-level client involvement, depending on amount of trading the client wants to pursue: a buy-and-hold client might have mid-level involvement, usually initiating occasional account reallocations; an actively-trading client might have a high level of involvement in stock selection and portfolio reallocations	Relatively high level of client involvement in order to develop a comprehensive financial strategy that provides ongoing advice as the financial markets and client's circumstances change over time

IMPORTANT INFORMATION ABOUT YOUR CETERA ADVISOR NETWORKS' RELATIONSHIP, INCLUDING CETERA ADVISORS NETWORKS' PRIVACY POLICY ACCOUNT AGREEMENT DISCLOSURE SUPPLEMENT

Cetera Advisor Networks LLC, through your registered representative, makes a wide variety of mutual funds and variable insurance products, including annuities, available to you. You pay either a sales charge when you purchase your investments (such as for Class A shares of a mutual fund), or the sales charge may be built into the expenses of the product and/or charged to you when you sell (such as for Class B or C shares of a mutual fund). Cetera Advisor Networks is paid by the product issuer or its affiliates, and part of that payment goes to your registered representative.

Your sales charges and expenses, and the sales commissions paid to us and our representatives, differ from investment to investment, and may depend on the amount of money you invest. Some product issuers or their affiliates occasionally also offer "commission specials," which increase the sales commissions paid to us and our representatives. Sales charges, and information about expenses, are explained in the product's prospectus. Generally speaking, investors buying the same product for the same kind of investment account with the same investment amount pay the same sales charge. This is true regardless of the broker-dealer and registered representative through which the investment is purchased.

Our Strategic Partners. Although we make a large number of products available to you, we concentrate our marketing and training efforts on investments offered by a number of select companies (Strategic Partners). Strategic Partners are selected, in part, based on whether they offer competitive products, their technology, their customer service and their training capabilities.

Our Strategic Partners have more opportunities than other companies to provide our customers and our representatives with education on investments, the products they offer, industry trends, new investment ideas and other issues. They may attend or sponsor education and training meetings for our representatives. Our Strategic Partners also have the opportunity to receive input from our representatives on features of their products. As discussed below, our Strategic Partners pay additional amounts to Cetera Advisor Networks to compensate us for these enhanced marketing and training opportunities.

What Strategic Partners Pay to Cetera Advisor Networks. It is important to know that although Strategic Partners pay extra compensation to Cetera Advisor Networks or its affiliates, you do not pay more to purchase Strategic Partner products through Cetera Advisor Networks than you would pay to purchase those products through another broker-dealer. Nevertheless, the payment of this additional compensation to Cetera Advisor Networks by our Strategic Partners may pose a financial incentive for us to promote those products over other products.

The additional amounts Strategic Partners pay Cetera Advisor Networks vary from one Partner to another and from one product to another. For example, a significant portion of these payments can be calculated as a fixed amount, as a percentage of product sales (up to a maximum of 1/4 of 1%—which would be $25 on a $10,000 investment), as a percentage of our customers' assets invested in the products (up to a maximum of 1/10 of 1%—which would be $10 on a $10,000 investment), or as some combination of these. The prospectus and statement of additional information for each mutual fund or variable insurance product should have additional information about these payments.

Benefits to Cetera Advisor Networks' Representatives. Your representative does not receive additional commissions for selling a Strategic Partner product, except when from time to time Cetera Advisor Networks allows its representatives to participate in "commission specials" offered by Strategic Partners. To find out whether a product you are considering is part of a commission special, ask your representative or visit the product issuer's website.

Cetera Advisor Networks' representatives do receive some additional benefits from our Strategic Partner program. In some cases the transaction clearing costs that would normally be paid by you or your representative may be reduced or eliminated on Strategic Partner products. Also, your representative indirectly benefits from Strategic Partner payments to Cetera Advisor Networks when this money is used to support costs relating to product review, marketing or training.

Other Compensation and Reimbursements. Companies that are not Strategic Partners may at times send Cetera Advisor Networks payments in recognition of our sales and marketing efforts, and may have additional opportunities to provide marketing services to our representatives. Also, both Strategic Partners and other companies may pay marketing allowances to Cetera Advisor Networks in connection with the sale of insurance products. Both Strategic Partners and other companies may also reimburse up to 100% of the cost of training and education meetings for our representatives, as permitted by industry rules. Sales of any products by Cetera Advisor Networks representatives may qualify representatives for additional cash and non-cash compensation that may include support for their business activities, attendance at seminars, conferences and entertainment. Additionally, some investments, whether they are issued by a Strategic Partner or not, may pay higher rates of compensation than others. Further, some of Cetera Advisor Networks' home office management and certain other employees may receive a portion of their employment compensation based on sales of products of Strategic Partners.

Cetera Advisor Networks does from time to time add or delete specific firms from its Strategic Partners Program. You can view the most up-to-date list of its Strategic Partners on Cetera Advisor Networks' public website at www.ceteraadvisornetworks.com.

If you have any questions, please ask your registered representative or call 800.879.8100.

Cetera Advisor Networks LLC (Cetera) is pleased to welcome you to the FlexInsured Account, a bank deposit sweep option in our Cash Sweep Program. The FlexInsured Account is a sweep option that permits cash balances awaiting investment or reinvestment in eligible accounts to be automatically deposited (or swept) into interest-bearing accounts (Deposit Accounts) at designated program banks, (which may include The Bank of New York Mellon (BNYM) and BNY Mellon, National Association (BNY Mellon, N.A.), (collectively, Program Banks)). Funds in each Deposit Account held for the benefit of a single customer will generally be eligible for federal deposit insurance from the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (FDIC) up to $250,000 (the current Deposit Insurance Limit) per category of legal ownership as recognized by the FDIC (e.g., individual, corporate, trust, etc.) at each Program Bank. This insurance amount increases to $500,000 in principal and accrued interest for joint accounts. Please note that funds deposited through the FlexInsured Account are not protected by the Securities Investor Protection Corporation (SIPC). See "FDIC Insurance at Program Banks" below for additional information about the FDIC and how FDIC insurance works.

SUMMARY OF TERMS AND CONDITIONS

This summary of the FlexInsured Account is prepared for your convenience and must be read in conjunction with the detailed disclosure below.

Cetera has asked Pershing LLC (Pershing), our fully disclosed clearing agent, to assist us in operating the FlexInsured Account which, if you choose to participate, sweeps the uninvested cash balances in your Cetera brokerage account carried at Pershing (Cetera Account) into Deposit Accounts at Program Banks. Funds in Deposit Accounts will begin earning interest from the day they are received by the Program Bank. You may discontinue your participation in the FlexInsured Account at any time. BNYM is a NY state-chartered bank and BNY Mellon, N.A. is a national bank association. Both may participate in the FlexInsured Account by holding program funds in Deposit Accounts. Pershing, BNYM and BNY Mellon, N.A. are all affiliates and subsidiaries of The Bank of New York Mellon Corporation. By selecting the FlexInsured Account as the automatic sweep option in your Cetera Account, you agree to appoint Pershing, our fully disclosed clearing agent, as your authorized agent to establish and maintain Deposit Accounts at Program Banks, which may include BNYM and BNY Mellon, N.A., and to effect deposits to and withdrawals from such Program Banks pursuant to these terms and conditions.

Federal Deposit Insurance. Your funds are deposited into Deposit Accounts in a manner designed to provide up to $2,500,000 of FDIC insurance protection on your FlexInsured Account balance, subject to bank availability. This coverage protects your balance held in Deposit Accounts, up to allowable limits, in the event of the failure of a Program Bank. As your agent, Pershing has established a separate account for the benefit of FlexInsured Account participants at each Program Bank and intends to limit each customer's deposits at each Program Bank to $246,500 (98.6% of the Deposit Insurance Limit) to help ensure that principal amounts and accrued interest receive FDIC insurance coverage. Once this amount is reached, additional amounts are deposited in subsequent Program Banks in amounts not to exceed $246,500 at each Program Bank. Once the $2,500,000 program total has been deposited at Program Banks, or if Program Banks no longer have the capacity to accept additional deposits, any available cash in your account will be placed in Deposit Accounts at Program Banks chosen to serve as the "Overage Banks." Your deposits at an Overage Bank in excess of the Deposit Insurance Limit will not be covered by FDIC Insurance. Any money you hold at a Program Bank outside of the FlexInsured Account may impact the insurance coverage available. FDIC insurance coverage applies to the total amount of a depositor's balance in all eligible accounts held at an FDIC-insured financial institution in the same category of ownership, as recognized by the FDIC. Therefore, if you maintain funds at a Program Bank outside of the FlexInsured Account, this will negatively impact the amount of FDIC insurance for the total amount of your funds held within and outside your FlexInsured Account at that Program Bank. Balances in the FlexInsured Account are not protected by SIPC, which provides protection against risks to customers of member brokerage firms, like Cetera and Pershing, in the event of the failure of that member firm. Under certain economic conditions or for other reasons, it is possible for Program Banks to limit or reduce the amount of deposits they will accept through bank deposit sweep products, such as the FlexInsured Account, which will reduce the amount of FDIC insurance available for the cash balance in your Cetera Account. If Programs Banks, including the Overage Banks, cannot accept any additional deposits due to capacity constraints, then all available cash in your Cetera Account will be automatically invested in shares of the Federated Hermes Trust for U.S. Treasury Obligations Fund Cash Series Shares money market fund, ticker symbol TCSXX (Default MMF) or held as a free credit balance. See "FDIC Insurance for Deposits at Program Banks" and "Deposit Capacity at Program Banks" below for additional information.

Access to Funds. You may access your balance in the FlexInsured Account (i.e., the funds held in Deposit Accounts at Program Banks), by contacting your financial professional or using features of your Cetera Account that have the effect of transferring FlexInsured Account balances back into your Cetera Account. Your ownership in funds deposited at Program Bank accounts will be evidenced by book entry on the account records of Pershing. Your Cetera Account statements issued by our fully disclosed clearing agent, Pershing, will list the names of the Program Banks holding your swept funds and your balance in each Program Bank. Program Banks are permitted by federal regulation to impose a seven-day delay on any withdrawal request. In the event of a failure of a Program Bank, there may be a time period during which you may not be able to access all or part of your deposits in the FlexInsured Account.

FlexInsured Account Interest Rates. The interest rates payable in the FlexInsured Account are determined by the amount the Program Banks are willing to pay minus the fees paid to Cetera and other service providers, as discussed below. The interest rates on your FlexInsured Account balances are established periodically and fluctuate as frequently as daily without prior notice, based on market, economic and other business conditions. Current interest rates for the FlexInsured Account are available from your financial professional. You will generally receive a lower rate of return on cash deposited in the FlexInsured Account than if it were invested in money market mutual funds. See "Interest Rates" below for additional information.

Program Banks. In order to facilitate the availability of the FlexInsured Account, certain FDIC-insured financial institutions have agreed to act as Program Banks. A separate FDIC-insured financial institution will act as an intermediary bank (Intermediary Bank) that routes deposits to, and withdrawals from, Program Banks. Certain large deposits or withdrawals in excess of FDIC limits may not be fully insured while being routed through the Intermediary Bank. In the event of a Program Bank failure, Pershing will not be obligated to credit your Cetera Account with funds in advance of any payment by the FDIC. When your FlexInsured Account balances are allocated to a Program Bank, including BNYM and BNY Mellon, N.A., it realizes an economic benefit from them. The Program Banks, including BNYM and BNY Mellon, N.A., do not have a duty to offer the highest rates available or rates that are comparable to money market mutual funds or those offered by other depository institutions. Balances held in the Deposit Accounts at Program Banks constitute a direct obligation of the respective Program Bank and are not directly or indirectly an obligation of Cetera, Pershing or your financial professional at Cetera. See “Information About Your Intermediary Bank” and “Program Banks” below for additional information.

Fees. Although no direct fees will be earned by your financial professional for your participation in the FlexInsured Account, Cetera and other service providers earn fees from Program Banks based on the amount of money on deposit from all FlexInsured Account participants. For each of their services to support the FlexInsured Account, Cetera and other service providers, such as Pershing and a third-party administrator, will receive compensation, as discussed further below. The fee retained by Cetera will be an annual rate of up to a maximum of 600 basis points as applied across all FlexInsured Account deposits. See “Administrative Fees” below for additional information. For information on fees related to negative interest rates, please see the “Negative Interest Rate Disclosure” below.

Risks of the Program. You will generally receive a lower rate of return on cash deposited into the FlexInsured Account than if it were invested in money market mutual funds. Program Banks are permitted by federal regulation to impose a seven-day delay on any withdrawal request. In the event of a failure of a Program Bank, there may be a time period during which you may not be able to access your balance in the FlexInsured Account. FDIC insurance coverage applies to the total amount of a depositor’s balance in all eligible accounts held at a FDIC-insured financial institution. Therefore, if you have money at a Program Bank outside the FlexInsured Account, this will negatively impact the amount of FDIC insurance for the total amount of your funds held within and outside your FlexInsured Account at that Program Bank. Deposits made through the FlexInsured Account are not protected by SIPC, which provides protection against certain risks to customers of member brokerage firms, like Cetera and Pershing, in the event of the failure of that member firm. In the event that the U.S. adopts a policy resulting in negative interest rates, it is possible that Program Banks will begin to charge fees to maintain deposits held through bank deposit programs. This can result in you experiencing a negative overall return with respect to your deposits in the FlexInsured Account program. See “Negative Interest Rate Disclosure” below for additional information.

Conflicts of Interest. Cetera earns substantial fees from Program Banks based on your participation in the FlexInsured Account program, and this fee will be significantly higher to Cetera than if your funds were swept into a money market mutual fund or deposited in another product or depository institution. The fees that Cetera receives from your participation in the FlexInsured Account program defrays its costs of providing and administering the FlexInsured Account and is also a source of additional revenue which is further described below and detailed here: <https://cetera.com/cetera-advisor-networks/disclosures/flexInsured-account>.

This compensation that Cetera receives presents a conflict of interest, because Cetera receives a greater financial benefit when cash is swept into the FlexInsured Account than it otherwise would if your cash balance is held in a money market mutual fund or other products, and the fees that Cetera receives reduces the amount of interest you receive in the FlexInsured Account. The interest that you receive and Cetera’s fees are both paid from the total funds paid by the Program Banks on FlexInsured Accounts. Consequently, the greater the fees received by Cetera, the less funds are available to pay client interest on FlexInsured Account deposits. In addition, we continue to charge an investment advisory fee while your cash is held in the FlexInsured Account so the fees that we receive from the Program Banks are in addition to the advisory fees that you pay us and your financial professional. This means that we earn two layers of fees on the same cash balances in your FlexInsured account. If we were to reduce or eliminate our advisory fee for cash balances held in FlexInsured Accounts where such fee reduction is greater than the amount of compensation we receive on FlexInsured Account deposits, this would create a conflict of interest for us to avoid or minimize such cash holdings or to utilize alternative cash equivalent products, where available. Cetera therefore has an incentive for your funds to be swept into the FlexInsured Account program rather than a money market mutual fund or other alternative to the FlexInsured Account. The income we earn from Program Banks based on the balances in the FlexInsured Account program will in almost all circumstances be substantially greater than the amount of interest earned from those same balances. Cetera is ultimately responsible for setting its fees under the FlexInsured Account program. We receive a substantially higher percentage of the interest generated by deposit balances in the FlexInsured Account program than you receive. As a result, you will almost always receive a lower rate of return on cash deposited into the FlexInsured Account than could be obtained in money market mutual funds or certain bank products outside of the FlexInsured Account. The fees paid by Program Banks for your participation in the FlexInsured Account are retained by Cetera and are not shared with your financial professional. See “Administrative Fees” below for additional information on the fees received by Cetera for your participation in the FlexInsured Account program. If you wish to opt out of the FlexInsured Account, you may do so at any time by contacting your financial professional. See “Alternatives to the FlexInsured Account As a Sweep Option” below for additional information regarding your options.

Given the conflicts discussed above, each client should consider the importance of the FlexInsured Account program to us when evaluating our services, our total fees and compensation, and then decided whether to opt out of the FlexInsured Account. We mitigate these conflicts by disclosing them to you here and in Cetera’s Form ADV, and by not sharing the revenue generated from client cash sweeps with our financial professionals.

DETAILED TERMS AND CONDITIONS

ACCOUNT ELIGIBILITY

The FlexInsured Account is generally available for individual, business, corporate, joint, and uniform gifts-to-minors accounts, as well as certain non-advisory retirement accounts. Trust accounts are eligible so long as all beneficiaries of the trust account are natural persons. 403(b) accounts, advisory IRA accounts, advisory ERISA accounts and other qualified retirement plan accounts are not eligible to participate. Cetera and Pershing reserve the right, in their sole discretion, to limit other types of accounts from participating in the FlexInsured Account.

ALTERNATIVES TO THE FLEXINSURED ACCOUNT

The FlexInsured Account is one option for you to consider in choosing how you want to maintain your cash balances. If you are maintaining an eligible account, the FlexInsured Account is the only automatic “sweep option” available. Conversely, you may elect to turn off the automatic sweep option by contacting your financial professional. If you elect not to utilize an automatic sweep option on your Cetera Account, your financial professional can tell you about certain money market funds or other products available through Cetera that you may wish to consider as alternatives to maintaining cash deposits in your account. If you elect to turn off the automatic sweep option, the uninvested cash balance in your Cetera Account will be treated as a free credit balance. A free credit balance will not earn you interest or investment returns; however, SIPC protects the securities and cash in your investment account up to $500,000, which includes up to $250,000 protection for cash held as a free credit balance. For more information about SIPC coverage, please go to www.sipc.org.

Should you wish to move your free credit balance into a money market mutual fund or other product that Cetera makes available for purchase, such as a U.S. Treasuries or a brokered Certificate of Deposit, your financial professional can assist you. If you are invested in a wrap fee program, all transaction charges are included in the fees you pay for that program. We also offer a limited number of non-wrap fee programs which would require you to pay the transaction charge for purchasing such a product. If you are unsure of what type of program you are in, please discuss with your financial professional. You should consider your investment objectives, liquidity needs and risk tolerance in reviewing whether participation in the FlexInsured Account or another cash alternative is appropriate for you. If you desire to maintain a large cash position in your Cetera Account for other than an extended period of time, you should contact your financial professional to discuss your options.

DEPOSITS

By electing to utilize the FlexInsured Account as the sweep option in your Cetera Account, you consent to have excess cash balances pending investment in your Cetera Account automatically deposited into Deposit Accounts at Program Banks. Each business day, our fully disclosed clearing agent, Pershing, or its agent bank, utilizing the services of the third-party administrator or the Intermediary Bank, will deposit the excess cash balances in your Cetera Account into one or more omnibus Deposit Accounts maintained at the Program Banks held for the benefit of FlexInsured Account participants. Your insured deposit ownership will be evidenced by an entry on records maintained by Pershing and the third-party administrator, as Pershing’s agent and record keeper, for each of the Program Banks at which your funds are on deposit. You will not be issued any evidence of ownership of an insured deposit account, such as a passbook or certificate. Your Cetera Account statement issued by Pershing will reflect all information regarding your balance in the FlexInsured Account, including all deposits, withdrawals, Program Bank deposit balance(s) and interest rate.

Funds intended for deposit into your FlexInsured Account must be placed through your Cetera Account and cannot be placed directly by you with the Intermediary Bank or any of the Program Banks. Only balances transferred by Pershing, acting as your agent, or the Intermediary Bank on behalf of Pershing, will be eligible for inclusion in the FlexInsured Account. Once you have selected the FlexInsured Account as the sweep option, excess cash balances in your Cetera Account on each business day will be transferred to your FlexInsured Account on the next business day.

If you decide to terminate your participation in the FlexInsured Account, you may establish a direct relationship with each Program Bank by making a request to the Program Bank to establish a deposit account in your name, subject to each Program Bank’s rules with respect to establishing and maintaining deposit accounts. You would then contact your financial professional and request a transfer of the funds in the FlexInsured Account into your individual deposit account. Establishment of a deposit account directly in your name at a Program Bank will separate your balance in the FlexInsured Account from the Deposit Accounts used in the FlexInsured Account, which are reflected in your Cetera Account. As such, if you establish a direct depository relationship with a Program Bank, your FlexInsured Account balance and your balances held in the associated Deposit Accounts at that Program Bank will no longer be reflected in your FlexInsured Account balance or on your Cetera Account statement issued by Pershing and Cetera and Pershing will have no further responsibility concerning such Deposit Accounts.

WITHDRAWALS

By electing to utilize the FlexInsured Account as the sweep option in your Cetera Account, you consent (and direct) to have your money on deposit at the Program Bank automatically withdrawn from the Program Bank accounts in the event of a debit in your Cetera Account or, on settlement date, to pay for securities purchased in your Cetera Account. Each business day, as needed, Pershing, acting as your agent, or its agent, the third-party administrator, utilizing the services of the Intermediary Bank, will withdraw your cash from the omnibus Deposit Accounts maintained at the Program Banks held for the benefit of FlexInsured Account participants.

In the event of a debit in your Cetera Account, any funds necessary to satisfy such debits will be obtained first from free credit balances in your Cetera Account (if any) and then from withdrawals from your FlexInsured Account balance. A debit will be created, for example, when you purchase securities or request a withdrawal of funds from your Cetera Account, when you write a check on your Cetera Account, or use other withdrawal methods (such as through an ACH transaction or debit card transaction on the debit card provided with your Cetera Account, if applicable). Checks written on your Cetera Account are not drawn directly against the amounts deposited for you at any of the Program Banks, but the money is transferred back from the Program Banks to the Intermediary Bank and then to your Cetera Account to satisfy your debit.

Please note, that under federal regulations, Program Banks may reserve the right to require seven (7) days’ notice before permitting a transfer of funds out of a deposit account, such as the Deposit Accounts at the Program Banks. While the Program Banks have not indicated their intention to implement such a policy, a Program Bank may, at any time, choose to do so.

RELATIONSHIP WITH PERSHING

Cetera, a registered broker-dealer in securities and member organization of FINRA, introduces your account to our clearing firm Pershing, which carries your account in a fully disclosed manner. Pershing is acting as your agent in establishing and maintaining Deposit Accounts for your swept balances and in depositing your money to and withdrawing your money from the Deposit Accounts at the Program Banks. Having instructed your financial professional to enroll you in the FlexInsured Account, your first bank deposit will constitute your appointment of Pershing as your agent to effect deposits to and withdrawals from Program Bank Deposit Accounts in connection with the FlexInsured Account. Pershing, a wholly owned indirect subsidiary of The Bank of New York Mellon Corporation, is a registered broker-dealer and is a member organization of the New York Stock Exchange (NYSE), the Financial Industry Regulatory Authority (FINRA) and Securities Investor Protection Corporation (SIPC).

INFORMATION ABOUT THE INTERMEDIARY BANK

A designated settlement bank will act as the Intermediary Bank for the FlexInsured Account to route your deposit funds to various Program Banks in order to maximize the amount of FDIC insurance available on your FlexInsured Account balance. The Intermediary Bank is identified on the list of Program Banks available at www.cetera.com/cetera-advisor-networks/clients/flexinsured-account. See "Program Banks" below for additional information.

PROGRAM BANKS

A current list of the Program Banks, as updated from time to time, is available at www.cetera.com/cetera-advisor-networks/clients (refer to the "Investor Information and Disclosures" section, then click on the link for the FlexInsured Account or visit www.cetera.com/cetera-advisor-networks/clients/flexinsured-account) or by contacting your financial professional. The Intermediary Bank and each Program Bank is a separate FDIC-insured depository institution duly chartered under the laws of the United States or a state thereof. As described below, Cetera reserves the right to modify the list of eligible Program Banks (meaning adding and removing) and priority from time to time. Such modified and updated lists will be reflected on the website prospectively. Cetera may also change the Intermediary Bank. It shall be your responsibility to monitor changes to the list of the Program Banks.

You may not designate the order in which Program Banks receive funds through the FlexInsured Account. You may, however, exclude one or more Program Banks from receiving your cash balances. You may exclude Program Banks at any time and for any reason by notifying your financial professional. If a Program Bank where you already have deposits outside of the FlexInsured Account is listed, we recommend you direct us to exclude that Program Bank from receiving any of your FlexInsured Account deposits. It is your responsibility to monitor the insurable deposits that you may have with any Program Bank (including deposits outside of the FlexInsured Account).

It may take several days following your Cetera Account's enrollment in the FlexInsured Account before we can process any requested Program Bank exclusions. In the event that your funds are allocated to a Program Bank that is designated by you or by us as an excluded Program Bank, but which is also a financial institution in which you maintain cash balances outside of your FlexInsured Account balance, deposits exceeding the maximum FDIC-insured amount at any such bank may not be protected by FDIC coverage until those exclusions are processed and the funds are reallocated to alternative Program Banks.

You may obtain available financial information concerning any of the Program Banks at <https://www.ffiec.gov/NPW> or by contacting the FDIC Public Information Center by mail at 801 17th Street, N.W., Room 100, Washington, DC 20434 or by phone at 1.878.ASK.FDIC (877.275.3342).

ALLOCATION OF DEPOSITS AMONG PROGRAM BANKS

Program Banks into which your funds may be deposited will appear on a "Priority List" available on our website at www.cetera.com/cetera-advisor-networks/clients/flexinsured-account. Other clients may be assigned different Priority Lists. You can identify the Priority List applicable to you by state or, in the case of most corporate accounts, by account type. If your Account is not a corporate account, please refer to the state which you legally identify as your primary state of residence and which you provided to us as your primary address in your account application, which was subsequently used for the registration of your Cetera Account. Program Banks appear on the Priority List in the order in which the Deposit Accounts will be opened for you and your funds will be deposited. You should review the Priority List carefully. The Priority List will also include one or more Overage Banks that will accept your funds without limit and without regard to the $250,000 federal deposit insurance limit if all Programs Banks on the Priority List have received funds up to the applicable deposit limit. If all your funds are withdrawn from an Overage Bank, the next time your funds are deposited in an Overage Bank your funds may be deposited in a different Overage Bank.

You may not change the order of Program Banks on the Priority List. However, at any time, you may designate a Program Bank as ineligible to receive your funds. This will result in your funds being deposited into Deposit Accounts at the next Program Bank on the Priority List. In addition, you may at any time instruct us to remove your funds from a Program Bank and designate the Program Bank as ineligible to receive future deposits. Your funds from an ineligible Program Bank will be deposited at the first available Program Bank set forth on the Priority List. You may not designate all of the Overage Banks as ineligible to receive your funds. If you wish to designate a Program Bank as ineligible to receive your funds, please contact your financial professional. One or more of the Program Banks included on the Priority List may be replaced with a Program Bank not previously included on the Priority List. A Program Bank may be deleted from the Priority List or the order of Program Banks on the Priority List may change. The most current Priority List, as updated from time to time, will be maintained on our website at www.cetera.com/cetera-advisor-networks/clients.

By enrolling in and utilizing the FlexInsured Account, you expressly agree to the terms and conditions of this disclosure statement and authorize Cetera and its third-party administrator to designate and approve Program Banks, subject to review by Pershing, and to appoint Pershing as your agent to deposit and withdraw your cash balances in accordance with this disclosure statement. You understand that it is your responsibility to review the list of Program Banks and to notify us if you wish to exclude any of them from receiving your FlexInsured Account deposits.

RELATIONSHIP BETWEEN CETERA AND CERTAIN PROGRAM BANKS

To participate as a Program Bank in the FlexInsured Account, a depository institution enters into an agreement with Pershing and the third-party administrator. While such depository institutions are not affiliated with Cetera, Cetera may maintain business relationships with certain depository institutions under which the depository institution may offer securities brokerage, investment advisory and/or insurance services through Cetera or its affiliates at one or more of their locations. Such depository institutions may be or may become Program Banks through agreements that the depository institutions enter into with Pershing and the third-party administrator. Client deposits from the FlexInsured Account program represent a significant amount of cash for Program Banks, and it is a relatively stable source of deposits for them. The Program Banks in turn use the deposited cash for their bank activities such as investments or lending, thus driving their revenue. As a result, the Program Banks have an incentive to pay a rate that is higher than the rate paid to you as described further in the Interest section below.

INTEREST RATE

Funds deposited through the FlexInsured Account to a Program Bank will begin earning interest from the day they are received by the Program Bank. Interest on funds in the FlexInsured Account will accrue up to, but not including, the day of withdrawal. The interest rates and tiers available through the FlexInsured Account are established periodically based on market, economic and other business conditions.

The interest rate applied to your FlexInsured Account deposits will be based on your assignment to an "Interest Rate Tier" as determined by your total deposit balance through the FlexInsured Account. The Interest Rate Tiers, and interest rates associated therewith, may be changed from time to time. In general, in a tiered rate system, accounts with higher deposit balances through the FlexInsured Account will receive a higher interest rate than accounts with lower deposit balances. Cetera and Pershing will calculate your program balances and determine your eligibility for Interest Rate Tiers on a monthly basis. Current interest rate information is available at www.cetera.com/cetera-advisor-networks/clients/flexinsured-account or by contacting your financial professional.

Cetera is responsible for setting the fees which ultimately reduces the interest rates available on FlexInsured Account deposits. Our Cash Sweep Governance Committee meets periodically to review the rates paid to customers who participate in the FlexInsured Account program based on a number of factors including the rates paid by Program Banks, interest rates paid by our competitors who offer similar insured deposit programs, any expected changes in rates, and FlexInsured Account program expenses.

Your FlexInsured Account deposits will receive the same interest rate regardless of the Program Bank in which cash from your Cetera Account is deposited. The interest rate available through the FlexInsured Account will generally be lower than the interest rates available to depositors making deposits directly with the Program Bank or other depository institutions in comparable accounts and for money market mutual funds and other cash equivalent products available through Cetera. You should compare the terms, interest rates, required minimum amounts, and other features of the FlexInsured Account with other accounts and alternative products. Current interest rate information is available at www.cetera.com/cetera-advisor-networks/clients/flexinsured-account or by contacting your financial professional.

The Program Banks will use the daily-balance method to calculate the interest that applies to your FlexInsured Account balances in the Deposit Accounts. This method applies a daily periodic rate to the principal balance in the FlexInsured Account each day. Interest on the FlexInsured Account principal balance will accrue daily and will be reinvested monthly. Each month, upon the reinvestment date, the total accrued interest will be automatically credited to your FlexInsured Account principal each month. Each year you will receive a 1099-INT form from Pershing indicating the total amount of FlexInsured Account interest paid to you during the calendar year.

The Program Banks, including BNYM and BNY Mellon, N.A., do not have a duty to offer the highest rates available or rates that are comparable to money market mutual funds. Money market mutual funds generally seek to achieve the highest rate of return consistent with their investment objectives, which can be found in their prospectuses. For this reason, and because the interest that you receive and Cetera's fees, which Cetera is ultimately responsible for setting, are both paid from the total funds paid by the Program Banks, the rates of interest paid on FlexInsured Account balances will generally be lower than the rate of return available from a money market mutual fund or the rate of interest available to depositors making deposits directly with a Program Bank or other depository institutions in comparable accounts. You should compare the terms, interest rates, required minimum amounts, charges and other features of the FlexInsured Account with other deposit and investment options when evaluating whether to select or maintain the FlexInsured Account as your sweep option. If you desire to maintain a large cash position in your Cetera Account for other than a short period of time, you should contact your financial professional to discuss your options. Additionally, if you are seeking to maximize the potential returns on your cash, the FlexInsured Account is not and should not be viewed as a long-term option as it will result in long-term underperformance. Please contact your financial professional to discuss other potential options for maximizing returns or yields greater than those available in the FlexInsured Account program.

ADMINISTRATIVE FEES

Each Program Bank will pay a fee calculated by applying a percentage to the average daily balance of total FlexInsured Account deposits held at their bank. Generally, the third-party administrator will collect the fees payable by the Program Banks and retain an administrative fee based primarily on a percentage applied to each bank's average daily balance of total FlexInsured Account deposits. The third-party administrator will then remit an administrative fee to Cetera and Pershing. The fee remitted to Cetera will be an annual rate of up to a maximum of 600 basis points as applied across all program deposits. Cetera may elect to waive some or all of its fees, which would have the effect of increasing the interest rate payable to customers, but has no obligation to do so. Cetera may elect to waive its fees differentially in order to create tiered rates of interest. Your financial professional does not receive any of the fees received by Cetera from Program Banks. The fees that Cetera receives from Program Banks will be greater than the fees Cetera receives from other money market fund sweep options.

Other than the applicable advisory fees or other fees assessed by Pershing for maintaining your Cetera Account, and subject to the Negative Interest Rate Disclosure below, there will be no additional charges, fees or commissions imposed on your account with respect to the FlexInsured Account.

NEGATIVE INTEREST RATE DISCLOSURE

In response to certain extraordinary economic conditions, some foreign countries have occasionally implemented a negative interest rate policy to stabilize their economies. Under such a policy, a central bank charges banks a fee to hold reserves, and, as a result, the banks then charge depositors a fee to maintain their deposits. Historically, the U.S. has not adopted policies resulting in negative interest rates, and there is no indication that the Federal Reserve Board plans to adopt such a policy in the future. If, however, such a policy is adopted in the U.S., Program Banks may begin to charge fees to maintain deposits held through bank deposit sweep products, such as the FlexInsured Account. In such an event, Cetera will charge a fee to defray its costs for maintaining your deposits at Program Banks through its bank deposit products. This fee will be in addition to fees Cetera receives directly from Program Banks for their participation in the FlexInsured Account. Cetera will assess any fees related to negative interest rates to your FlexInsured Account on a monthly basis for the duration of the negative interest rate period. If applicable, this fee will appear on your periodic Cetera Account statement. In its discretion, Cetera will increase or decrease this fee periodically to reflect the costs incurred by Cetera to maintain your deposits at Program Banks. Cetera can eliminate the fee at any time. In the event that Cetera assesses fees as a result of negative interest rates, additional information regarding the fees will be available at <https://www.cetera.com/cetera-advisor-networks/disclosures/flexInsured-account> or by contacting your financial professional.

DEPOSIT CAPACITY AT PROGRAM BANKS

Under certain economic conditions or for other reasons, it is possible for Program Banks to limit or reduce the amount of deposits they will accept through bank deposit sweep products, such as the FlexInsured Account. If Programs Banks, including the Overage Banks, cannot accept any additional deposits due to capacity constraints, then the FlexInsured Account product will be updated to automatically invest any additional available cash balances into shares of the Default MMF, a money market fund that Cetera makes available. If the Default MMF is not accepting excess funds, then those excess funds will be maintained in your Cetera Account as a free credit balance. The overall amount of available FDIC insurance protection will vary depending upon the number of Program Banks accepting deposits through the FlexInsured Account at any time and your total deposits held at Program Banks. If most or all the Program Banks have insufficient capacity to accept any additional balances, then the aggregate amount of FDIC insurance coverage available to you could be significantly reduced.

If Program Banks have insufficient capacity to accept new deposits but can maintain existing deposit levels, then Cetera may choose to maintain your existing cash balances at Program Banks and sweep all additional cash balances in your Cetera Account to Default MMF. If the Default MMF is unavailable to accept your cash balances, then such balances will be maintained in your Cetera Account as a free credit balance. Once deposit capacity at Program Banks is restored to levels that Cetera believes can support the then-current cash balances that were swept to the Default MMF and/or held as free credit balances as well as anticipated cash balances, the FlexInsured Account will resume normal operations and new cash balances will be allocated to Program Banks with available capacity. With advance notice to you, any amounts swept to the Default MMF will be converted to cash, at the then current market price, and then allocated to Program Banks on the Priority List. If your funds are being maintained as a free credit balance, then your cash balances will be reallocated to Program Banks. During times that you maintain sweep balances in a money market fund or a free credit balance, and you use cash in your account, such cash obligations will first be met by any free credit balances, then by redemptions from your money market funds, and finally by withdrawals from your FlexInsured Account balances, as applicable.

Money Market Mutual Fund Features and Disclosures

The Default MMF is currently the Federated Hermes Trust for U.S. Treasury Obligations Fund Cash Series Shares, ticker symbol TCSXX. The prospectus for the Default MMF is available at <https://www.federatedinvestors.com/products/mutual-funds/trust-for-us-treasury-obligations/cs.do>. Cash balances swept to a money market fund are not FDIC insured but are protected by SIPC up to applicable limits. SIPC's coverage protects the securities and cash in your investment account up to $500,000, which includes a $250,000 limit for free credit balances. For more information about SIPC coverage, please go to www.sipc.org. Cetera reserves the right to change the Default MMF from time to time.

Money market funds are securities that may increase or decrease in value. In general, money market funds are designed and managed with the objective of preservation of capital and maintenance of liquidity. Although money market funds seek to preserve a net asset value of $1.00 per share, there is no guarantee that this will occur, and it is possible to lose money should the value per share of the money market fund fall.

Cetera receives distribution assistance in the form of annual compensation up to 0.78% for assets held in the Default MMF. Therefore, Cetera has a financial benefit when cash is invested in the Default MMF as opposed to other cash sweep products. This compensation is retained by Cetera and is not shared with your financial professional.

ACCOUNT STATEMENTS

All activity with respect to your FlexInsured Account, including interest earned for the period covered and balances maintained at each Program Bank, will appear on the periodic Cetera Account statement issued by Pershing. You will not receive a separate statement from the Program Banks.

TAX INFORMATION

For most clients, interest earned on deposits in the FlexInsured Account will be taxed as ordinary income in the year it is received. A Form 1099-INT will be provided to you annually by Pershing showing the amount of interest income you have earned on deposits in your FlexInsured Account. Please consult with your tax advisor about how interest earned in the FlexInsured Account may affect you.

NO SIPC COVERAGE FOR DEPOSITS HELD IN A FLEXINSURED ACCOUNT

SIPC provides investors some protection if their brokerage firm becomes insolvent or if cash or securities are missing from eligible customer accounts. The limit of SIPC protection for customer securities and cash is $500,000, which includes a $250,000 limit for free credit balances held by customers at member brokerage firms. SIPC, however, does not provide protection on bank deposits. Therefore, balances in the FlexInsured Account are not eligible for SIPC coverage. For more information about SIPC coverage, please go to www.sipc.org.

FDIC INSURANCE FOR DEPOSITS AT PROGRAM BANKS

Funds deposited on your behalf in a Deposit Account at a Program Bank are insured by the FDIC, an independent agency of the U.S. government, up to $250,000 (including principal and accrued interest) when aggregated with all other deposits held by you in the same insurable capacity at a particular Program Bank. In the event a Program Bank becomes insolvent, the FDIC provides insurance up to $250,000, including principal and accrued interest to the day the Program Bank is closed. These maximum amounts include, in addition to deposits held in your FlexInsured Account, all deposits held by you in the same insurable capacity at the same Program Bank, including, for example, CDs issued to you by a Program Bank.

The information below provides further information on federal deposit insurance limitations.

Individual Accounts. Deposit accounts at Program Banks held in the name of an agent or nominee of an individual (such as the balance from an individual's account in the Deposit Accounts held as part of the FlexInsured Account) are not treated as owned by the agent but are added to other deposits of such individual held in the same insurable capacity at that depository institution (including funds held in a sole proprietorship) and insured up to $250,000 in the aggregate.

Corporate and Partnership Accounts. Accounts established at a Program Bank and owned by the same corporation, partnership or unincorporated association that are designated for different purposes are not separately insured but, rather, are aggregated with all other deposit accounts of the corporation, partnership or unincorporated association at the same Program Bank and insured up to $250,000.

Custodial Accounts. Funds deposited into an account at a Program Bank that are established and held in the name of a custodian (for example, under the Uniform Gifts to Minors Act or the Uniform Transfer to Minors Act) will not be considered the property of the custodian, but are added to other deposits of the minor or other beneficiary held in the same insurable capacity and will be insured up to $250,000 in the aggregate.

Joint Accounts. An individual's interest in joint accounts held under any form of joint ownership valid under applicable state law may be insured up to $250,000 in the aggregate, meaning all accounts held at that bank held under any form of joint ownership. This would be separate and in addition to the $250,000 allowed on other non-retirement account deposits individually owned by any of the co-owners of such accounts. For example, a joint account owned by two persons would be eligible for insurance coverage of up to $500,000 ($250,000 for each person), subject to the aggregation of each owner's interests in other joint accounts at the same depository institution. Deposits into the FlexInsured Account from joint accounts are always allocated assuming two owners.

IRAs and other Self-Directed Retirement Accounts. Funds deposited into IRAs, self-directed Keogh accounts, and certain other self-directed retirement accounts at a Program Bank are insured up to $250,000 per owner and insured separately from other non-retirement funds an owner may have at the same Program Bank. For insurance purposes, the FDIC will aggregate such funds with other retirement funds owned by the same individual regardless of whether or not such funds are eligible for deposit through the FlexInsured Account.

Trusts, medical savings accounts, employee benefit plans and other types of accounts also are subject to certain limitations. Please consult the FDIC or your financial professional for more details. FlexInsured Account balances held in accounts with trust registrations are allocated at the account level and not at the trustee level.

Under certain circumstances, if you become the owner of deposits at a Program Bank because another depositor dies, beginning six months after the death of the depositor, the FDIC will calculate the applicable insurance limit by aggregating those deposits with any other deposits that you own in the same insurable capacity at the same Program Bank. Examples of accounts that may be subject to this FDIC policy include joint accounts, "transfer on death" accounts and certain trust accounts. The FDIC provides the six-month "grace period" to permit you to restructure your deposits to obtain the maximum amount of deposit insurance for which you are eligible. If deposits through your FlexInsured Account or otherwise at a Program Bank are assumed by another depository institution pursuant to a merger or consolidation, such deposits generally will continue to be separately insured from the deposits that you might have established with the acquirer until (i) the maturity date of the CDs or other time deposits that were assumed, or (ii) with respect to deposits that are not time deposits, the expiration of a six month period from the date of the acquisition. Thereafter, any assumed deposits will be aggregated with your existing deposits with the acquirer held in the same insurable capacity for purposes of federal deposit insurance. Any deposit opened at the depository institution after the acquisition will be aggregated with deposits established with the acquirer for purposes of federal deposit insurance.

Your funds deposited through the FlexInsured Account can be deposited at more than one Program Bank, increasing the amount of insurance available to you up to a maximum of $2,500,000 in FDIC insurance coverage, subject to bank availability (provided, however, the FlexInsured Account is designed to limit deposits to 98.6% of the coverage limits in each Program Bank, so the aggregate deposits that would be eligible for deposit insurance could be slightly less than this amount; FDIC insurance coverage available through the FlexInsured Account could also be reduced if you exclude one or more Program Banks from receiving your funds). Once $2,500,000 ($5 million for joint accounts) in total has been deposited at Program Banks, or once Program Banks no longer have capacity to accept additional insured deposits, your excess funds will be placed in Deposit Accounts at Program Banks chosen to serve as the "Overage Banks." Your deposits at an Overage Bank in excess of the Deposit Insurance Limit will not be covered by FDIC Insurance or protected by SIPC coverage. In the event that a Program Bank should become insolvent, the deposits made through the FlexInsured Account are insured up to the applicable Deposit Insurance Limit for principal and interest accrued through the day the Program Bank became insolvent. Interest is determined for insurance purposes in accordance with federal laws and regulations. In the event that federal deposit insurance payments should become necessary, any payments of principal plus unpaid and accrued interest through the date of insolvency made by the FDIC will be made to you. You may be required to provide certain documentation to the FDIC and others before insurance payments are made. Cetera and Pershing are not be obligated to credit your account with funds in advance of their payment by the FDIC.

FDIC INSURANCE FOR DEPOSITS IN TRANSIT

Your funds become eligible for FDIC insurance immediately upon placement in a Program Bank deposit account by Pershing, acting as your agent. While in transit from Pershing to the Program Banks and from the Program Banks to Pershing, the funds generally pass through the Intermediary Bank. While at the Intermediary Bank, funds are also eligible for FDIC insurance up to the Deposit Insurance Limit, depending on account type, when aggregated with any other deposits held by you in the same insurable capacity at the Intermediary Bank. It is possible that your funds in transit at the Intermediary Bank will exceed the maximum amount of FDIC coverage available through the Intermediary Bank as an individual bank until such funds are received by Program Banks or Pershing. Typically, funds will be moved from the Intermediary Bank to a Program Bank or Pershing within one business day.

If you have questions about basic FDIC insurance coverage, please contact your financial professional. You may also wish to seek advice from your own attorney if you have questions concerning FDIC insurance coverage of deposits held in more than one account or insurable capacity. You may also obtain additional information about the FDIC by contacting the FDIC, Office of Compliance and Consumer Affairs, by letter (550 17th Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20409), by phone (877.ASK-FDIC (877.275.3342) or 800.925.4618 (TDD)), by email (dcainternet@fdic.gov) or by accessing the FDIC Website at www.fdic.gov. In addition, you may obtain publicly available financial information concerning any or all of the Program Banks at <https://www.ffiec.gov/NPW> and more detail on FDIC insurance from www.fdic.gov/deposit/deposits/index.html or by contacting the FDIC Public Information Center by mail at 801 17th Street, N.W., Room 100, Washington, DC 20434. Neither Cetera nor Pershing guarantees the financial condition of any Program Bank or the accuracy of any publicly available financial information concerning a Program Bank.

ADDITIONAL INFORMATION ABOUT YOUR FLEXINSURED ACCOUNT

Cetera may modify the terms and conditions of the FlexInsured Account at any time upon notice to you. All activity with respect to your FlexInsured Account will appear on your periodic Cetera Account statements issued by Pershing, including the total of your opening and closing FlexInsured Account balances, the interest earned, and the interest rate for the reinvestment period. You should retain the Cetera Account statements for your records. As always, you should notify us immediately of any unauthorized activity in your FlexInsured Account or any concerns you may have with respect to the FlexInsured Account.

You may contact your financial professional during any business day to obtain the current interest rate, account balances, Program Banks and other information on your FlexInsured Account. If you have online access to your account, you may also view your FlexInsured Account information online. You may also find financial information on current interest rates on Cetera's website at <https://www.cetera.com/cetera-advisor-networks/disclosures/flexInsured-account>.

Cetera Advisor Networks LLC (Cetera) is pleased to welcome you to the Insured Deposit Sweep Account (IDSA), the bank deposit sweep option in our Cash Sweep Program for individual retirement accounts subject to Section 4975 of the Internal Revenue Code and enrolled in certain advisory programs. The IDSA is a sweep option that permits cash balances awaiting investment or reinvestment in eligible accounts to be automatically deposited (or swept) into interest-bearing accounts (Deposit Accounts) at designated program banks, (which may include The Bank of New York Mellon (BNYM) and BNY Mellon, National Association (BNY Mellon, N.A.), (collectively, Program Banks)). Funds in each Deposit Account held for the benefit of a single customer will generally be eligible for federal deposit insurance from the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (FDIC) up to $250,000 (the current Deposit Insurance Limit) per category of legal ownership as recognized by the FDIC (e.g., individual, corporate, trust, etc.) at each Program Bank. Please note that funds deposited through the IDSA are not protected by the Securities Investor Protection Corporation (SIPC). See “FDIC Insurance for Deposits at Program Banks” below for additional information about the FDIC and how FDIC insurance works.

SUMMARY OF TERMS AND CONDITIONS

This summary of the IDSA is prepared for your convenience and must be read in conjunction with the detailed disclosure below.

Cetera has asked Pershing LLC (Pershing), our fully disclosed clearing agent, to assist us in operating the IDSA, which, if you choose to participate, sweeps the uninvested cash balances in your Cetera brokerage account carried at Pershing (Cetera Account) into Deposit Accounts at Program Banks. Funds in Deposit Accounts will begin earning interest from the day they are received by the Program Bank. You may discontinue your participation in the IDSA at any time. BNYM is a NY state-chartered bank and BNY Mellon, N.A. is a national banking association. Both may participate in the IDSA by holding your funds in Deposit Accounts. Pershing, BNYM and BNY Mellon, N.A. are all affiliates and subsidiaries of The Bank of New York Mellon Corporation. By selecting the IDSA as the automatic sweep option in your Cetera Account, you agree to appoint Pershing, our fully disclosed clearing agent, as your authorized agent to establish and maintain Deposit Accounts at Program Banks, which may include BNYM and BNY Mellon, N.A., and to effect deposits to and withdrawals from such Program Banks pursuant to these terms and conditions.

Federal Deposit Insurance. Your funds are deposited into Deposit Accounts in a manner designed to provide up to $2,500,000 of FDIC insurance protection on your IDSA balance, subject to bank availability. This coverage protects your balance held in Deposit Accounts, up to allowable limits, in the event of the failure of a Program Bank. As your agent, Pershing has established a separate account for the benefit of IDSA participants at each Program Bank and intends to limit each customer’s deposits at each Program Bank to $246,500 (98.6% of the Deposit Insurance Limit) to help ensure that principal amounts and accrued interest within the IDSA receive FDIC insurance coverage. Once this amount is reached, additional amounts are deposited in subsequent Program Banks in amounts not to exceed $246,500 at each Program Bank. Once $2,500,000 in total has been deposited at Program Banks, or once Program Banks no longer have capacity to accept additional insured deposits, your excess funds will be placed in Deposit Accounts at Program Banks chosen to serve as the “Overage Banks.” Your deposits at an Overage Bank in excess of the Deposit Insurance Limit will not be covered by FDIC Insurance. Any money you hold at a Program Bank outside of the IDSA may impact the insurance coverage available. FDIC insurance coverage applies to the total amount of a depositor’s balance in all eligible accounts held at an FDIC-insured financial institution in the same category of ownership, as recognized by the FDIC. Therefore, if you maintain funds at a Program Bank outside of the IDSA, this will negatively impact the amount of FDIC insurance for the total amount of your funds held within and outside your IDSA balance at that Program Bank. Balances in the IDSA are not protected by SIPC, which provides protection against risks to customers of member brokerage firms, like Cetera and Pershing, in the event of the failure of that member firm. Under certain economic conditions or for other reasons, it is possible for Program Banks to limit or reduce the amount of deposits they will accept through bank deposit sweep products, such as the IDSA, which will reduce the amount of FDIC insurance available for the cash balance in your Cetera Account. If the Programs Banks, including the Overage Banks, cannot accept any additional balances due to capacity constraints, then the IDSA will be updated so that any additional free credit balance in your Cetera Account will be automatically invested in shares of the Federated Hermes Treasury Obligations Fund Capital Shares money market fund, ticker symbol TOCXX, that Cetera has elected to use for the IDSA (Default Money Fund) or held as a free credit balance. See “FDIC Insurance for Deposits at Program Banks” and “Deposit Capacity at Program Banks” below for additional information.

Access to Funds. You may access your balance in the IDSA (i.e., the funds held in Deposit Accounts at Program Banks) by contacting your financial professional or using features of your Cetera Account that have the effect of transferring IDSA balances back into your Cetera Account. Your ownership in funds deposited at Program Bank accounts will be evidenced by book entry on the account records of Pershing. Your Cetera Account statements issued by our fully disclosed clearing agent Pershing will list the names of the Program Banks holding your swept funds and your balance in each Program Bank. Program Banks are permitted by federal regulation to impose a seven-day delay on any withdrawal request. In the event of a failure of a Program Bank, there may be a time period during which you may not be able to access all or part of your deposits in the IDSA. In the event of a failure of a Program Bank, the amount of your balance returned by the FDIC is also dependent upon the amount of your IDSA balance at that Program Bank that is covered by FDIC insurance.

IDSA Interest Rates. Interest rates will be established periodically and may fluctuate based on market, economic and other business conditions. The interest rates payable in the IDSA are determined by the amount the Program Banks are willing to pay minus the fees paid to Cetera, Pershing and a third-party administrator, as discussed below. The interest rates accruing on your IDSA balance are established periodically and fluctuate as frequently as daily without prior notice, based on market, economic and other business conditions. Current interest rates for the IDSA are available from your financial professional and at www.cetera.com/cetera-advisor-networks/clients/insured-deposit-sweep-account. You will generally receive a lower rate of return on cash deposited in the IDSA than if it were held in money market mutual funds. See “Interest Rates” below for additional information.

Program Banks. Under the IDSA, certain FDIC-insured financial institutions have agreed to act as Program Banks. A separate FDIC-insured financial institution will act as an intermediary bank (Intermediary Bank) that routes deposits to, and withdrawals from, Program Banks. Certain large deposits or withdrawals in excess of FDIC limits may not be fully insured while being routed through the Intermediary Bank. In the event of a Program Bank failure, Pershing will not be obligated to credit your Cetera Account with funds in advance of any payment by the FDIC. When your IDSA balances are allocated to a Program Bank, including BNYM and BNY Mellon, N.A., it realizes an economic benefit from them. The Program Banks, including BNYM and BNY Mellon, N.A., do not have a duty to offer the highest rates available or rates that are comparable to money market mutual funds or those offered by other depository institutions. Balances held in the Deposit Accounts at Program Banks constitute a direct obligation of the respective Program Bank and are not directly or indirectly an obligation of Cetera, Pershing or your financial professional at Cetera. See “Information About Your Intermediary Bank” and “Program Banks” below for additional information.

Fees. For each of their services to support the IDSA product, Cetera, Pershing, and the third-party administrator will receive compensation, as discussed further below. The compensation will generally be paid from amounts paid by Program Banks. The compensation paid to Cetera for making the IDSA product available in your Cetera Account does not vary and is not affected by the amount actually deposited through the IDSA product or any particular Program Bank. See “Administrative Fees” below for additional information. For information on fees related to negative interest rates, please see the “Negative Interest Rate Disclosure” below.

Risks of the Program. You will generally receive a lower rate of return on cash deposited into the IDSA than if it were invested in money market mutual funds. Program Banks are permitted by federal regulation to impose a seven-day delay on any withdrawal request. In the event of a failure of a Program Bank, there may be a time period during which you may not be able to access your balance in the IDSA and the amount of your aggregate balance, both within and outside the IDSA, and FDIC insurance limits will determine the amount of your balance returned to you. FDIC insurance coverage applies to the total amount of a depositor’s balance in all eligible accounts held at a FDIC-insured financial institution. Therefore, if you have money at a Program Bank outside the IDSA, this will negatively impact the amount of FDIC insurance for the total amount of your funds held within and outside the IDSA at that Program Bank. Deposits made through the IDSA are not protected by SIPC, which provides protection against certain risks to customers of member brokerage firms, like Cetera and Pershing, in the event of the failure of that member firm. In the event that the U.S. adopts a policy resulting in negative interest rates, it is possible that Program Banks will begin to charge fees to maintain deposits held through bank deposit programs. This can result in you experiencing a negative overall return with respect to your deposits in the IDSA. See “Negative Interest Rate Disclosure” below for additional information.

Conflicts of Interest. Cetera earns substantial fees from Program Banks based on your participation in the IDSA, and this fee will be significantly higher to Cetera than if your funds were swept into a money market mutual fund or deposited in another product or depository institution. The fees that Cetera receives from your participation in the IDSA defrays its costs of providing and administering the IDSA and is also a source of additional revenue, which is further described below.

This compensation that Cetera receives presents a conflict of interest because Cetera receives a greater financial benefit when cash is swept into the IDSA than it otherwise would if your cash balance was held in a money market mutual fund or other cash alternative, and the fees that Cetera receives reduces the amount of interest you receive in the IDSA. The interest that you receive and Cetera’s fees are both paid from the total funds paid by the Program Banks on IDSA Accounts. Consequently, the greater the fees received by Cetera, the less funds are available to pay client interest on IDSA Account deposits. In addition, we continue to charge an investment advisory fee while your cash is held in the IDSA. If we were to reduce or eliminate our advisory fee for cash balances held in IDSAs where such fee reduction is greater than the amount of compensation we receive on IDSA deposits, this would create a conflict of interest for us to avoid or minimize such cash holdings or to utilize alternative cash equivalent investments, where available.

Cetera therefore has an incentive for your funds to be swept into the IDSA rather than a money market mutual fund or other alternative to the IDSA. The income we earn from Program Banks based on the balances in the IDSA Account program will in almost all circumstances be substantially greater than the amount of interest earned from those same balances. We receive a substantially higher percentage of the interest generated by deposit balances in the IDSA Account program than you receive. As a result, you will almost always receive a lower rate of return on cash deposited into the IDSA Account than could be obtained in money market mutual funds or certain bank products outside of the IDSA Account. The fees paid by Program Banks for your participation in the IDSA are retained by Cetera and are not shared with your financial professional. See “Administrative Fees” below for additional information on the fees received by Cetera for your participation in the IDSA program. If you wish to opt out of the IDSA, you may do so by contacting your financial professional at any time. See “Alternatives to the IDSA Account” below for additional information regarding your options.

Given the conflicts discussed above, each client should consider the importance of the IDSA program to us when evaluating our services, and the total fees and compensation we receive, and then decide whether to opt out of the IDSA. We mitigate these conflicts by disclosing them to you here and in Cetera’s Form ADV and by not sharing the revenue generated from client cash sweeps with our financial professionals.

DETAILED TERMS AND CONDITIONS

ACCOUNT ELIGIBILITY

The IDSA is available only to accounts that are: (i) subject to Section 4975 of the Internal Revenue Code, but not subject to the fiduciary provisions of the Employee Retirement Income Security Act (ERISA) (such accounts, “IRAs”); (ii) enrolled in certain Cetera advisory programs; and (iii) custodied at Pershing. For the avoidance of doubt, IRAs may include traditional, rollover, Roth, and inherited individual retirement accounts, and Coverdell education savings accounts. 403(b) accounts, retirement plan accounts and IRAs that are subject to ERISA (including certain SEP and SIMPLE IRAs) are not eligible for participation in the IDSA. Cetera and Pershing reserve the right, in their sole discretion, to further limit the types of accounts participating in the IDSA.

ALTERNATIVES TO THE IDSA

The IDSA is one option for you to consider in choosing how you want to maintain your cash balances. If you are maintaining an eligible account, as detailed above, the IDSA is the only automatic “sweep option” available. Conversely, you may elect to turn off the automatic sweep option by contacting your financial professional. If you elect not to utilize an automatic sweep option on your Cetera Account, your financial professional can tell you about certain money market mutual funds or other products available through Cetera that you may wish to consider as alternatives to maintaining cash deposits in your account. If you elect to turn off the automatic sweep option, the uninvested cash balance in your Cetera Account will be treated as a free credit balance. A free credit balance will not earn you interest or investment returns; however, SIPC protects the securities and cash in your investment account up to $500,000, which includes up to $250,000 protection for cash held as a free credit balance. For more information about SIPC coverage, please go to www.sipc.org.

Should you wish to move your free credit balance into a money market mutual fund or other alternative to the IDSA that Cetera makes available for purchase, such as U.S. Treasuries or a brokered Certificate of Deposit, your financial professional can assist you. If you are invested in a wrap fee program, all transaction charges are included in the fees you pay for that program. We also offer a limited number of non-wrap fee programs, which would require you to pay the transaction charge for purchasing such a product. If you are unsure of what type of program you are in, please discuss with your financial professional. You should consider your investment objectives, liquidity needs and risk tolerance in reviewing whether participation in the IDSA or another cash alternative is appropriate for you. If you desire to maintain a large cash position in your Cetera Account for an extended period of time, you should contact your financial professional to discuss your options.

DEPOSITS

By electing to utilize the IDSA as the sweep option in your Cetera Account, you consent to have excess cash balances pending investment in your Cetera Account automatically deposited into Deposit Accounts at Program Banks. Each business day, our fully disclosed clearing agent, Pershing or its agent bank, utilizing the services of the third-party administrator or the Intermediary Bank, will deposit the excess cash balances in your Cetera Account into one or more Deposit Accounts maintained at the Program Banks held for the benefit of IDSA participants. Your insured deposit ownership will be evidenced by an entry on records maintained by Pershing and the third-party administrator, as Pershing's agent and record keeper, for each of the Program Banks at which your funds are on deposit. You will not be issued any evidence of ownership of an insured deposit account, such as a passbook or certificate. Your Cetera Account statement, issued by Pershing, will reflect all information regarding your balance in the IDSA, including all deposits, withdrawals, Program Bank deposit balance(s) and the applicable interest rate.

Funds intended for deposit into the IDSA must be placed through your Cetera Account and cannot be placed directly by you with the Intermediary Bank or any of the Program Banks. Only balances transferred by Pershing, acting as your agent, or the Intermediary Bank on behalf of Pershing, will be eligible for inclusion in the IDSA. Once you have selected IDSA as the sweep option, excess cash balances in your Cetera Account on each business day will be transferred to your IDSA on the next business day.

If you decide to terminate your participation in the IDSA, you may establish a direct relationship with each Program Bank by making a request to the Program Bank to establish a Deposit Account in your name, subject to each Program Bank's rules with respect to establishing and maintaining deposit accounts. You would then contact your financial professional and request a transfer of the funds in the IDSA into your individual deposit account. Establishment of a deposit account directly in your name at a Program Bank will separate your balance in the IDSA from the Deposit Accounts used in IDSA at that Program Bank, which is reflected in your Cetera Account. As such, if you establish a direct depository relationship with a Program Bank, your IDSA balance and your balances held in the associated Deposit Accounts at that Program Bank will no longer be reflected in your IDSA balance or on your Cetera Account statement issued by Pershing and Cetera and Pershing will have no further responsibility concerning such Deposit Accounts.

WITHDRAWALS

By electing to utilize the IDSA as the sweep option in your Cetera Account, you consent (and direct) to have your money on deposit at the Program Bank automatically withdrawn from the Program Bank accounts in the event of a debit in your Cetera Account or, on settlement date, to pay for securities purchased in your Cetera Account. Each business day, as needed, Pershing, acting as your agent, or its agent, the third-party administrator, utilizing the services of the Intermediary Bank, will withdraw your cash from the omnibus Deposit Accounts maintained at the Program Banks held for the benefit of IDSA participants.

In the event of a debit in your Cetera Account, any funds necessary to satisfy such debits will be obtained first from free credit balances in your Cetera Account (if any) and then from withdrawals from your IDSA balance. A debit will be created, for example, when you purchase securities or request a withdrawal of funds from your Cetera Account.

Please note, that under federal regulations, Program Banks may reserve the right to require seven (7) days' notice before permitting a transfer of funds out of a deposit account, such as the Deposit Accounts at the Program Banks. While the Program Banks have not indicated their intention to implement such a policy, a Program Bank may, at any time, choose to do so.

RELATIONSHIP WITH PERSHING

Cetera, a registered broker-dealer in securities and member organization of FINRA, introduces your account to our clearing firm Pershing, which carries your account in a fully disclosed manner. Pershing is acting as your agent in establishing and maintaining Deposit Accounts for your swept balances and in depositing your money to and withdrawing your money from the Deposit Accounts at the Program Banks. Having instructed your financial professional to enroll you in the IDSA, your first bank deposit will constitute your appointment of Pershing as your agent to effect deposits to and withdrawals from Program Bank Deposit Accounts in connection with the IDSA. Pershing, a wholly owned indirect subsidiary of The Bank of New York Mellon Corporation, is a registered broker-dealer and is a member organization of the New York Stock Exchange (NYSE), the Financial Industry Regulatory Authority (FINRA) and Securities Investor Protection Corporation (SIPC).

INFORMATION ABOUT THE INTERMEDIARY BANK

A designated settlement bank will act as the Intermediary Bank for the IDSA to route your deposit funds to various Program Banks in order to maximize the amount of FDIC insurance available on your IDSA balance. The Intermediary Bank is identified on the list of Program Banks that is made available at www.cetera.com/cetera-advisor-networks/clients/insured-deposit-sweep-account. See "Program Banks" below for additional information.

PROGRAM BANKS

A current list of the Program Banks, as updated from time to time, is available at www.cetera.com/cetera-advisor-networks/clients (refer to the “Investor Information and Disclosures” section, then click on the link for the Insured Deposit Sweep Account or visit www.cetera.com/cetera-advisor-networks/clients/insured-deposit-sweep-account) or by contacting your financial professional. The Intermediary Bank and each Program Bank is a separate FDIC-insured depository institution duly chartered under the laws of the United States or a state thereof. As described below, Cetera reserves the right to modify the list of eligible Program Banks (meaning adding and removing) and priority from time to time. Such modified and updated lists will be reflected on the website prospectively. Cetera may also change the Intermediary Bank. It shall be your responsibility to monitor changes to the list of the Program Banks.

You may not designate the order in which Program Banks receive funds through the IDSA. You may, however, exclude one or more Program Banks from receiving your cash balances. You may exclude Program Banks at any time and for any reason by notifying your financial professional. If a Program Bank where you already have deposits outside of the IDSA is listed, we recommend you direct us to exclude that Program Bank from receiving any of your IDSA deposits. It is your responsibility to monitor the insurable deposits that you may have with any Program Bank (including deposits outside of the IDSA).

It may take several days following your Cetera Account’s enrollment in the IDSA before we can process any requested Program Bank exclusions. In the event that your funds are allocated to a Program Bank that is designated by you or by us as an excluded Program Bank, but which is also a financial institution in which you maintain cash balances outside of the IDSA, your deposits exceeding the maximum FDIC-insured amount at any such bank may not be protected by FDIC coverage until those exclusions are processed and your IDSA balance at that Program Bank is reallocated to alternative Program Banks.

You may obtain available financial information concerning any of the Program Banks at <https://www.ffiec.gov/NPW> or by contacting the FDIC Public Information Center by mail at 801 17th Street, N.W., Room 100, Washington, DC 20434 or by phone at 878. ASK. FDIC (877.275.3342).

ALLOCATION OF DEPOSITS AMONG PROGRAM BANKS

Program Banks into which your funds may be deposited will appear on a “Priority List” available on our website at www.cetera.com/cetera-advisor-networks/clients/insured-deposit-sweep-account. Other clients may be assigned different Priority Lists. You can identify the Priority List applicable to you by state or, in the case of most corporate accounts, by account type. If your Account is not a corporate account, please refer to the state which you legally identify as your primary state of residence and which you provided to us as your primary address in your account application, which was subsequently used for the registration of your Cetera Account. Program Banks appear on the Priority List in the order in which the Deposit Accounts will be opened for you and your funds will be deposited. You should review the Priority List carefully. The Priority List will also include one or more Overage Banks that will accept your funds without limit and without regard to the $250,000 federal deposit insurance limit if all Programs Banks on the Priority List have received funds up to the applicable deposit limit. If all your funds are withdrawn from an Overage Bank, the next time your funds are deposited in an Overage Bank your funds may be deposited in a different Overage Bank.

You may not change the order of Program Banks on the Priority List. However, at any time, you may designate a Program Bank as ineligible to receive your funds. This will result in your funds being deposited into Deposit Accounts at the next Program Bank on the Priority List. In addition, you may at any time instruct us to remove your funds from a Program Bank and designate the Program Bank as ineligible to receive future deposits. Your funds from an ineligible Program Bank will be deposited at the first available Program Bank set forth on the Priority List. You may not designate all of the Overage Banks as ineligible to receive your funds. If you wish to designate a Program Bank as ineligible to receive your funds, please contact your financial professional. One or more of the Program Banks included on the Priority List may be replaced with a Program Bank not previously included on the Priority List. A Program Bank may be deleted from the Priority List or the order of Program Banks on the Priority List may change. The most current Priority List, as updated from time to time, will be maintained on our website at www.cetera.com/cetera-advisor-networks/clients/insured-deposit-sweep-account. By enrolling in and utilizing the IDSA, you expressly agree to the terms and conditions of this disclosure statement and authorize Cetera and its third-party administrator to designate and approve Program Banks, subject to review by Pershing, and to appoint Pershing as your agent to deposit and withdraw your cash balances in accordance with this disclosure statement. You understand that it is your responsibility to review the list of Program Banks and to notify us if you wish to exclude any of them from receiving your IDSA deposits.

RELATIONSHIP BETWEEN CETERA AND CERTAIN PROGRAM BANKS

To participate as a Program Bank in the IDSA, a depository institution enters into an agreement with Pershing and the third-party administrator. While such depository institutions are not affiliated with Cetera, Cetera may maintain business relationships with certain depository institutions under which the depository institution may offer securities brokerage, investment advisory and/or insurance services through Cetera or its affiliates at one or more of their locations. Such depository institutions may be or may become Program Banks through agreements that the depository institutions enter into with Pershing and the third-party administrator. Client deposits from the IDSA Account program represent a significant amount of cash for Program Banks, and it is a relatively stable source of deposits for them. The Program Banks in turn use the deposited cash for their bank activities such as investments or lending, thus driving their revenue. As a result, the Program Banks have an incentive to pay a rate that is higher than the rate paid to you as described further in the Interest section below.

INTEREST RATE

Funds deposited through the IDSA to a Program Bank will begin earning interest from the day they are received by the Program Bank. Interest on funds in the IDSA will accrue up to, but not including, the day of withdrawal. The interest rate available through the IDSA will be established periodically based on market, economic and other business conditions. Your IDSA deposits will receive the same interest rate regardless of the Program Bank in which cash from your Cetera Account is deposited. The interest rates on the IDSA are determined by the rate the Program Banks are willing to pay on the amount allocated to them minus the fees paid to Cetera, Pershing, and the third-party administrator.

The interest rates paid by Program Banks and also on your IDSA balance may change as frequently as daily without prior notice. The interest rates available through the IDSA will generally be lower than the interest rates available to depositors making deposits directly with the Program Bank or other depository institutions in comparable accounts and for investments in money market mutual funds and other cash equivalent investments available through Cetera. You should compare the terms, interest rates, required minimum amounts, and other features of the IDSA with other accounts and alternative investments. Current interest rate information is available at www.cetera.com/cetera-advisors/clients/insured-deposit-sweep-account or by contacting your financial professional.

The third-party administrator's fee is based on a target percentage of the average daily Deposit Account balances each month of all IDSA-eligible IRAs having funds swept to the IDSA. In any month in which the sum of the total interest on the Deposit Accounts and the fees to Cetera, Pershing and the third-party administrator exceeds the amount that Program Banks have agreed to pay with respect to the Deposit Accounts, such that the third-party administrator does not receive its entire target fee for that month, the interest rate on the Deposit Accounts will be lowered the following month to permit the third-party administrator to collect the full amount of its target fee. Similarly, in any month in which the third-party administrator is paid in excess of its target fee, the interest rate on the Deposit Accounts will be increased the following month. If there are any excesses or shortages with respect to the third-party administrator's fee that accumulate over time despite the adjustments described above, the interest rate on the Deposit Accounts will continue to be adjusted in subsequent months to account for such accumulated excesses or shortfalls.

The Program Banks will use the daily-balance method to calculate the interest that applies to your IDSA balances in the Deposit Accounts. This method applies a daily periodic rate to the principal balance each day. Interest earned on the IDSA principal balance will accrue daily and will be reinvested monthly. Each month, upon the reinvestment date, the total accrued interest will be automatically credited to your IDSA principal each month.

The Program Banks, including BNYM and BNY Mellon, N.A., do not have a duty to offer the highest rates available or rates that are comparable to money market mutual funds. Money market mutual funds generally seek to achieve the highest rate of return consistent with their investment objectives, which can be found in their prospectuses. As such, the rates of interest paid on IDSA balances will generally be lower than the rate of return available from a money market mutual fund or the rate of interest available to depositors making deposits directly with a Program Bank or other depository institutions in comparable accounts. You should compare the terms, interest rates, required minimum amounts, charges and other features of the IDSA with other deposit and investment options when evaluating whether to select or maintain the IDSA as your sweep option. If you desire to maintain a large cash position in your Cetera Account for an extended period of time, you should contact your financial professional to discuss your options. Additionally, if you are seeking to maximize the potential returns on your cash, the ISDA is not and should not be viewed as a long-term option as it will result in long-term underperformance. Please contact your financial professional to discuss other potential options for maximizing returns or yields greater than those available in the ISDA program.

ADMINISTRATIVE FEES

Each Program Bank will pay an amount equal to a percentage of the average aggregate daily balance of IDSA deposits held by each Program Bank. As described in more detail in this section, this amount includes fees payable to Cetera, Pershing, and the third-party administrator, as well as interest payable to participating accounts. The amount paid by each Program Bank may vary from Program Bank to Program Bank. You will have no rights to the amounts paid by the Program Banks, except for interest actually credited to your Deposit Account, as described above. However, amounts collected from the Program Banks during each period, less interest credited, will be allocated on a per dollar per account basis and used to offset your monthly Cetera account fee for providing the sweep services, as discussed more fully below. In addition, part of the payment by the Program Banks will be used to compensate Pershing and the third-party administrator for their services. Cetera financial professionals do not receive any of the fees received by Cetera on IDSA balances.

For its services to support the IDSA product, including making it available as a sweep option, Cetera receives a fixed per account fee each month from Program Banks. Within each month, the amount of compensation paid to Cetera by each Program Bank does not vary and is not affected by the amount actually deposited through the IDSA, including your IDSA deposits, but will vary from month to month based on the actual number of days in the particular month as well as average aggregate daily balance in the IDSA. As a result, from one month to the next, even in an increasing interest rate environment, and/or even if the assets in your account increase or remain the same (or decrease), the interest rate payment to you could decrease. Such a decrease in the amount you receive in the IDSA could result from the average aggregate daily balance in the IDSA decreasing. This structure presents a conflict of interest because the IDSA generates fixed compensation for Cetera even when the lower average aggregate daily balance decreases the amount of interest that clients receive. Beginning on or about November 7, 2022, Cetera's monthly per account fee, based on a 30-day month, will be based on the below fee schedule:

The FFT rate is the rate or the range of rates as expressed in percentages most recently announced by the Federal Open Market Committee of the Federal Reserve System (FOMC) that is the FOMC's target for the rate charged by banks on unsecured loans of the banks' reserve balances at Federal Reserve Banks. Under the fee schedule, increases in the FFT rate will result in increased compensation for Cetera. Cetera can change the applicable fee schedule upon advance notice to you. Although it is generally anticipated that Cetera's fees for the IDSA will be offset by the amounts paid by the Program Banks, as discussed herein, and you hereby direct the third-party administrator to collect such fees from the Program Banks and remit such amounts over to Cetera, Cetera reserves the right to withdraw the monthly account fee, or portion thereof, from your Cetera Account in the event or to the extent that the amount received from the Program Banks and paid over to Cetera by the third-party administrator for the period is less than Cetera's fee for the same period. The monthly per account fee will not generally be seen on your statement due to the manner in which Cetera recoups its fee from the Program Bank payments, as discussed above.

As used under this Administrative Fees section, the term "month" means the applicable period for which fees are charged and paid, interest is accrued and paid, and calculations (as shown below) are based and computed. A month may be a calendar month or one of twelve generally equal time periods in each annual period.

The current FFT rate can be found at <http://federalreserve.gov/monetarypolicy/openmarket.htm>.

The formula used to calculate the monthly per account fee to Cetera is shown in the following examples:

Federal Funds Target Rate = 0.75 – 1.00 (or 75 to 100 in basis points):

Monthly fee for 31 day month = $($8.75 \times 31)/30.4 = \8.923 (rounded to $8.92)

Monthly fee for 28 day month = $($8.75 \times 28)/30.4 = \8.059 (rounded to $8.06)

Monthly fee for 30 day month = $($8.75 \times 30)/30.4 = \8.635 (rounded to $8.64)

Federal Funds Target Rate = 1.00 – 1.25 (or 100 to 125 in basis points):

Monthly fee for 31 day month = $($11.00 \times 31)/30.4 = \11.217 (rounded to $11.22)

Monthly fee for 28 day month = $($11.00 \times 28)/30.4 = \10.132 (rounded to $10.13)

Monthly fee for 30 day month = $($11.00 \times 30)/30.4 = \10.855 (rounded to $10.86)

For its services, including record keeping and other services with respect to amounts deposited through the IDSA, Pershing will receive a monthly fee. Each day within the applicable interest period, the fee paid as compensation to Pershing will be calculated as an asset-based fee as determined by the daily IDSA balances during each interest period. The fee paid to Pershing will be deducted from the aggregate amount paid by the Program Banks, as discussed above. Though it is anticipated that the amounts paid by the Program Banks will satisfy the Pershing fee, Cetera and Pershing reserve the right to debit the Pershing fee, or a portion thereof, from your IDSA balance or Cetera Account in the event or to the extent the Pershing fee is not offset by amounts paid by Program Banks for such interest period.

For its services, the third-party administrator will charge a monthly asset-based fee. This fee may vary period to period based on changes in prevailing interest rates and the average daily balance of accounts participating in the IDSA during the period. The fee will generally equal the aggregate amount payable by Program Banks during the applicable interest period, minus, the interest payable to IDSA participants, the administrative fee paid to Pershing, and Cetera's flat fee. Moreover, the third-party administrator may, from time to time, temporarily reduce its fees during certain periods, such as when necessary to help ensure that the interest rates paid by the Program Banks during the period equal the applicable disclosed rate for the period. Under such circumstances, the administrator is authorized to recover any such reduced fees, subject to its targeted compensation rate, from future periods. You authorize and direct the third-party administrator to deduct its fees for its services from the amounts paid by the Program Banks. Based on the calculation methods set forth above, the third-party administrator will calculate the fees due to Cetera and Pershing.

IDSA fees are higher than the fees that Cetera receives from other sweep investment options. Other than these stated fees, and subject to the Negative Interest Rate Disclosure below, there will be no charges, fees, or commissions imposed on your account with respect to the IDSA program.

NEGATIVE INTEREST RATE DISCLOSURE

In response to certain extraordinary economic conditions, some foreign countries have occasionally implemented a negative interest rate policy to stabilize their economies. Under such a policy, a central bank charges banks a fee to hold reserves, and, as a result, the banks then charge depositors a fee to maintain their deposits. Historically, the U.S. has not adopted policies resulting in negative interest rates, and there is no indication that the Federal Reserve Board plans to adopt such a policy in the future. If, however, such a policy is adopted in the U.S., Program Banks may begin to charge fees to maintain deposits held through bank deposit sweep products, such as the Insured Deposit Sweep Account. In such an event, Cetera will charge a fee to defray its costs for maintaining your deposits at Program Banks through its bank deposit products. This fee will be in addition to fees Cetera receives directly from Program Banks for their participation in the Insured Deposit Sweep Account. Cetera will assess any fees related to negative interest rates to your Insured Deposit Sweep Account on a monthly basis for the duration of the negative interest rate period. If applicable, this fee will appear on your periodic Cetera Account statement. In its discretion, Cetera will increase or decrease this fee periodically to reflect the costs incurred by Cetera to maintain your deposits at Program Banks. Cetera can eliminate the fee at any time. In the event that Cetera assesses fees as a result of negative interest rates, additional information regarding the fees will be available at www.cetera.com/cetera-advisor-networks/clients/insured-deposit-sweep-account or by contacting your financial professional.

DEPOSIT CAPACITY AT PROGRAM BANKS

Under certain economic conditions or for other reasons, it is possible for Program Banks to limit or reduce the amount of deposits they will accept through bank deposit sweep products, such as the IDSA. If the Programs Banks, including the Overage Banks, cannot accept any additional balances due to capacity constraints, then the IDSA will be updated so that any additional free credit balance in your Cetera Account will be automatically invested in shares of the Default Money Fund, a money market fund that Cetera makes available. If the Default Money Fund is not accepting excess funds, then those excess funds will be maintained in your Cetera Account as a free credit balance. The overall amount of available FDIC insurance protection on your IDSA balance will vary depending upon the number of Program Banks accepting deposits through the IDSA at any time, as well as your total balances held at the Program Banks. If most or all the Program Banks have insufficient capacity to accept funds (or further funds), then the aggregate amount of FDIC insurance coverage available to you could be significantly reduced.

If Program Banks have insufficient capacity to accept new deposits but can maintain existing deposit levels, then Cetera may choose to maintain your existing cash balances at Program Banks and sweep all additional available cash balances in your Cetera Account to the Default Money Fund. If the Default Money Fund is unavailable to accept your cash balances, then such available cash balances will be maintained in your Cetera Account as a free credit balance. Once deposit capacity at Program Banks is restored to levels that Cetera believes can support the then-current and anticipated cash balances swept to the Default Money Fund and/or held as free credit balances, the IDSA will resume normal operations and new cash balances will be allocated to Program Banks with available capacity. With advance notice to you, any amounts swept to the Default Money Fund will be converted to cash, at the then current market price, and then allocated to Program Banks on the Priority List. If your funds are being maintained as a free credit balance, then your cash balances will be reallocated to Program Banks. During times that you maintain sweep balances in a money market fund or a free credit balance, and you use cash in your account, such cash will first be deducted from any free credit balances, then redeemed from your money market fund investments, and finally withdrawn from your IDSA balances, as applicable.

Money Market Mutual Fund Features and Disclosures

The Default Money Fund is currently the Federated Hermes Treasury Obligations Fund Capital Shares, ticker symbol TOCXX. The prospectus is available at www.federatedinvestors.com/products/mutual-funds/treasury-obligations/cap.do. Cash balances swept to a money market fund are not FDIC insured but are protected by SIPC up to applicable limits. SIPC's coverage protects the securities and cash in your investment account up to $500,000, which includes a $250,000 limit for free credit balances. For more information about SIPC coverage, please go to www.sipc.org. Cetera reserves the right to change the Default Money Fund from time to time.

Money market funds are securities that may increase or decrease in value. In general, money market funds are designed and managed with the objective of preservation of capital and maintenance of liquidity. Although money market funds seek to preserve a net asset value of $1.00 per share, there is no guarantee that this will occur, and it is possible to lose money should the value per share of the money market fund fall.

ACCOUNT STATEMENTS

All activity with respect to your IDSA position, including interest earned for the period covered and balances maintained at each Program Bank, will appear on the periodic Cetera Account statement issued by Pershing. You will not receive a separate statement from the Program Banks.

TAX INFORMATION

For most clients, interest earned on deposits in the Insured Deposit Sweep Account will generally not be taxed in the year earned when held in IRAs. Interest earned by IRAs is generally not taxed until distributed, and may not be subject to tax if the IRA is a Roth IRA, subject to certain conditions. When held in non-IRA taxable accounts, interest earned on deposits in the Insured Deposit Sweep Account will be taxed as ordinary income in the year it is received and a Form 1099-INT will be provided by Pershing showing the total amount of interest income earned. Please consult with your tax advisor about how interest earned in the IDSA program may affect you.

NO SIPC COVERAGE FOR FUNDS IN DEPOSIT ACCOUNTS

SIPC provides investors some protection if their brokerage firm becomes insolvent or if cash or securities are missing from eligible customer accounts. The limit of SIPC protection for customer securities and cash is $500,000, which includes a $250,000 limit for free credit balances held by customers at member brokerage firms. SIPC, however, does not provide protection on bank deposits. Therefore, balances in the Insured Deposit Sweep Account held in your Cetera Account are not eligible for SIPC coverage. For more information about SIPC coverage, please go to www.sipc.org.

FDIC INSURANCE FOR DEPOSITS AT PROGRAM BANKS

Funds deposited on your behalf in a Deposit Account at a Program Bank are insured by the FDIC, an independent agency of the U.S. government, up to $250,000 (including principal and accrued interest) when aggregated with all other deposits held by you in the same insurable capacity at a particular Program Bank. In the event a Program Bank becomes insolvent, the FDIC provides insurance up to $250,000, including principal and accrued interest to the day the Program Bank is closed. These maximum amounts include, in addition to deposits held in your Insured Deposit Sweep Account, all deposits held by you in the same insurable capacity at the same Program Bank, including, for example, CDs issued to you by a Program Bank.

The information below provides further information on federal deposit insurance limitations.

Individual Accounts. Deposit accounts at Program Banks held in the name of an agent or nominee of an individual (such as the balance from an individual's account in the Deposit Accounts held as part of the Insured Deposit Sweep Account) are not treated as owned by the agent but are added to other deposits of such individual held in the same insurable capacity at that depository institution (including funds held in a sole proprietorship) and insured up to $250,000 in the aggregate.

Corporate and Partnership Accounts. Accounts established at a Program Bank and owned by the same corporation, partnership or unincorporated association that are designated for different purposes are not separately insured, but rather, are aggregated with all other deposit accounts of the corporation, partnership or unincorporated association at the same Program Bank and insured up to $250,000.

Custodial Accounts. Funds deposited into an account at a Program Bank that are established and held in the name of a custodian (for example, under the Uniform Gifts to Minors Act or the Uniform Transfer to Minors Act) will not be considered the property of the custodian but are added to other deposits of the minor or other beneficiary held in the same insurable capacity and will be insured up to $250,000 in the aggregate.

Joint Accounts. An individual's interest in joint accounts held under any form of joint ownership valid under applicable state law may be insured up to $250,000 in the aggregate, meaning all accounts held at that bank held under any form of joint ownership. This would be separate and in addition to the $250,000 allowed on other non-retirement account deposits individually owned by any of the co-owners of such accounts. For example, a joint account owned by two persons would be eligible for insurance coverage of up to $500,000 ($250,000 for each person), subject to the aggregation of each owner's interests in other joint accounts at the same depository institution. Deposits into IDSA from joint accounts are always allocated assuming two owners.

IRAs and other Self-Directed Retirement Accounts. Funds deposited into IRAs, self-directed Keogh accounts and certain other self-directed retirement accounts at a Program Bank are insured up to $250,000 per owner and insured separately from other non-retirement funds an owner may have at the same Program Bank. For insurance purposes, the FDIC will aggregate such funds with other retirement funds owned by the same individual, regardless of whether or not such funds are eligible for deposit through the IDSA.

Trusts, medical savings accounts, employee benefit plans and other types of accounts also are subject to certain limitations. Please consult the FDIC or your financial professional for more details. IDSA balances held in accounts with trust registrations are allocated at the account level and not at the trustee level.

Under certain circumstances, if you become the owner of deposits at a Program Bank because another depositor dies, beginning six months after the death of the depositor, the FDIC will calculate the applicable insurance limit by aggregating those deposits with any other deposits that you own in the same insurable capacity at the same Program Bank. Examples of accounts that may be subject to this FDIC policy include joint accounts, "transfer on death" accounts and certain trust accounts. The FDIC provides the six-month "grace period" to permit you to restructure your deposits to obtain the maximum amount of deposit insurance for which you are eligible. If deposits through your IDSA or otherwise at a Program Bank are assumed by another depository institution pursuant to a merger or consolidation, such deposits generally will continue to be separately insured from the deposits that you might have established with the acquirer until (i) the maturity date of the CDs or other time deposits that were assumed; or (ii) with respect to deposits that are not time deposits, the expiration of a six month period from the date of the acquisition. Thereafter, any assumed deposits will be aggregated with your existing deposits with the acquirer held in the same insurable capacity for purposes of federal deposit insurance. Any deposit opened at the depository institution after the acquisition will be aggregated with deposits established with the acquirer for purposes of federal deposit insurance.

Your funds deposited through the IDSA can be deposited at more than one Program Bank, increasing the amount of insurance available to you up to a maximum of $2,500,000 in FDIC insurance coverage, subject to bank availability (provided, however, the IDSA is designed to limit deposits to 98.6% of the coverage limits in each Program Bank, so the aggregate deposits that would be eligible for deposit insurance could be slightly less than this amount; FDIC insurance coverage available through the IDSA could also be reduced if you exclude one or more Program Banks from receiving your funds). Once $2,500,000 in total has been deposited at Program Banks, or once Program Banks no longer have capacity to accept additional insured deposits, your excess funds will be placed in Deposit Accounts at Program Banks chosen to serve as the "Overage Banks." Your deposits at an Overage Bank in excess of the Deposit Insurance Limit will not be covered by FDIC Insurance or protected by SIPC coverage. In the event that a Program Bank should become insolvent, the deposits made through the IDSA are insured up to the applicable Deposit Insurance Limit for principal and interest accrued through the day the Program Bank became insolvent. Interest is determined for insurance purposes in accordance with federal laws and regulations. In the event that federal deposit insurance payments should become necessary, any payments of principal plus unpaid and accrued interest through the date of insolvency made by the FDIC will be made to you. You may be required to provide certain documentation to the FDIC and others before insurance payments are made. Cetera and Pershing are not be obligated to credit your account with funds in advance of their payment by the FDIC.

FDIC INSURANCE FOR DEPOSITS IN TRANSIT

Your funds become eligible for FDIC insurance immediately upon placement in a Program Bank deposit account by Pershing, acting as your agent. While in transit from Pershing to the Program Banks and from the Program Banks to Pershing, the funds generally pass through the Intermediary Bank. While at the Intermediary Bank, funds are also eligible for FDIC insurance up to the Deposit Insurance Limit, depending on account type, when aggregated with any other deposits held by you in the same insurable capacity at the Intermediary Bank. It is possible that your funds in transit at the Intermediary Bank will exceed the maximum amount of FDIC coverage available through the Intermediary Bank as an individual bank until such funds are received by Program Banks or Pershing. Typically, funds will be moved from the Intermediary Bank to a Program Bank or Pershing within one business day.
